EPPS'S COCOA.
(Breakfast).
Grateful, comforting.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us, ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

THE STATE CAPITAL.

Why Ecclesine's Rapid Transit Bill Was Defeated.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS.

Could Cities Be Governed on Business Principles?

NO BOARD OF FINANCE.

Lively Debate in the Senate—Spring Elections.

ALBANY, April 10, 1877.

There are two lobbyists here who, while they profess having had no part in bringing about the defeat of Ecclesine's rapid transit bill, feel satisfied there was money used to that end. Barbour, the head of the craft, was suspiciously active last week; yet they say the lobby alone would have been unsuccessful without the efficient aid given by one or two members on the floor. The story of the whole transaction must transpire one of these days. Some men invariably get cheated in matters of this kind, and they find it impossible to restrain themselves from talking about it when it happens that any considerable sum of money was set afloat and they failed to get a slice after doing their share of the iniquity. There is no more honor in being on the Railroad Committee than on that of Public Health; yet see every year what a desperate struggle the "commercial" ones among the members make to get themselves placed upon it. And where is there a solitary instance of the Railroad Committee ever reporting a bill to disturb the interests of any well to do railroad corporation and perform a public benefit?

"GREEK," OF COURSE.

Then again it is too much to ask us to believe that the country members who voted almost en masse are all so densely ignorant as not to know that rapid transit is the crying need of New York city. If they read the papers—and it is safe to assume they do—that fact must have been drilled into their minds after the long agitation of the subject during the past ten years. Though the bill introduced by Mr. Ecclesine last evening takes away the grounds of objection from those who voted against his former bill it would be over-sanguine to conclude that rapid transit is all safe. The agents of the street car companies will be on hand promptly. One of them, named Jim Richmond, arrived to-day. He is Mr. Jacob Sharp's man, and he steals in and steals out of here as if he wished to escape observation. On the 28th of this month the argument on rapid transit before the Court of Appeals comes off, and if the order of the Supreme Court, General Term, be sustained the car companies will regret they spent so much money on worthless legislators.

DEBATE ON THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS.

The Senate spent all the day in discussing the constitutional amendments based on the report of the Municipal Charter Commission in relation to the government of cities. The first provides that "the Legislature may provide that elections for members of city boards shall be so regulated as to give minorities a proportionate share of representation therein."

The principle of minority representation, Mr. Woodin said, was already in operation in certain public boards throughout the State, but some doubt had been expressed as to its constitutionality, and the purpose of the amendment was to remove any doubt on that head.

Mr. Kennaday thought the resolution ought to be considered in the Committee of the Whole first, as he was opposed to giving it only a hasty consideration. It was Mr. Woodin's opinion it could be considered just as deliberately in the Senate as in Committee of the Whole, and it was so considered and adopted.

The principal amendment, as it gave rise to most of the debate, was that providing that boards of finance should be elected by the taxpayers, and not by the rabble, so to speak. If the rabble elect, Mr. Woodin substantially held, nothing would come of it but the same old familiar Boards of Aldermen, of which the people were long since tired and disgusted. In New York city, for instance, the Board of Finance would be no better than the old Board of Supervisors that was accustomed to pass upon the estimates. Mr. Gerard had an idea that the cost of having two sets of registration would more than outweigh the pecuniary benefits to be derived from the proposed plan, and Mr. Jacobs, ever true to party, insisted that it would be clearly unconstitutional, being a restriction on the right of suffrage and directly antagonistic to the spirit of free institutions.

THAT VOTING CLAUSE.

Mr. Morrissey said he was in favor of every other part of the bill, but he would be compelled to vote against the whole thing if this discriminating provision in regard to voting was left in. He should feel ashamed to go back to his constituents and have any of them say that "Morrissey don't want a man to vote because he hain't got no money."

A motion of Jacobs to postpone was lost and the discussion was renewed.

AN UNWARRANTED RESTRICTION.

It was Mr. Woodin's view that the claim of restriction was without warrant, because there is no Finance Board now, and the members of the Legislature in creating it can make whatever provisions they choose. The right of suffrage was not a natural right, as it was conferred according to the pleasure of the Legislature.

Mr. Jacobs was surprised that those who favored the amendment to the national constitution looking to the bestowal of the unrestricted right of suffrage upon the negro were now found favoring a resolution putting restriction upon the white man's vote.

WHO PAYS THE TAXES?

Mr. Starbuck contended, in his emphatic way, that the laboring man in the end paid the taxes, yet the proposition was to exclude him from voting in favor of men who happened to be a little better off than himself.

Mr. McCarthy wished to have the amendment submitted to the people, and let them decide upon it.

Mr. Gerard thought the same. If they thought it wise to restrict suffrage who could fairly complain?

Mr. Cole favored the proposition because he thought Senators would have time enough to determine their individual views later on, when the people came to vote on the article.

Mr. Prince was of a similar way of thinking, and he formerly showed there was a radical defect in the government of the cities of the State.

Mr. Emerson made a motion, which was lost, to amend so as to exclude rent payers from the list of those who may vote for members of the Board of Finance.

A LOST CLAUSE.

Another motion made by Mr. Jacobs to amend so as to allow electors who pay not less than $250 per annum for lodging, to vote for the Board of Finance, was also lost. Then Mr. Starbuck followed with a brace and a half of amendments, the first providing that any local work, the cost of which is to be wholly paid otherwise than by the city at large, must be authorized by a vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to the Board of Aldermen, with the consent of a majority in number and interest. The next provided that the section reading "City elections shall be held separately from the State and national elections and in March or April" should not apply to cities having less than 100,000 inhabitants. The third provided that the Board of Finance should have no other powers except such as are conferred in the article. All three amendments, after a stirring debate, were lost.

Mr. Prince made a motion, which was also lost, to recommit the article to the Committee on Cities, with instructions to separate the provision providing for the election of the Board of Finance from the rest of the article.

Mr. Kennaday moved, and it was carried, that the members of the Board of Finance shall possess the same qualifications as those prescribed for electors of the Board.

THE VOTE ON THE RESOLUTIONS.

A vote was then taken on all of the resolutions, except the sections providing for a spring election, and the section of a board of finance, the sections relative to minority representation and to the duties and powers of a board of Supervisors over a board of Aldermen, except where making contracts or creating, allowing, or auditing county charges is involved, were adopted, and subsequently the provision for spring elections, but to the amazement of everybody watching the debate the section providing for the election of a Board of Finance was lost, all the democrats and Baaden, republican, voting in the negative. The debate was animated throughout and unusually prolonged.

A RECONSIDERATION EXPECTED.

To-morrow a reconsideration of the vote by which this particular feature of the concurrent resolutions was lost will be moved and carried. The mishap that befel it to-day was owing to the absence of several republican Senators. The democrats, to a man, put themselves on record as being opposed to any attempt to restrict or discriminate in the exercise of the right of suffrage. They shrewdly enough managed to have the section concerning the Board of Finance separated from the rest, and they were thus enabled to place themselves in a favorable light before the people as voting in favor of all the other reform points in the resolutions, while carrying out the wishes of their constituents by voting against the clause which is the most unpopular and un-American.

The Senate held no session to-night, owing to the late hour at which the morning debate was brought to a close.

THE COMMITTEE ON CITIES.

The Committee on Cities held a meeting and considered various bills, among which was one of Healy's to abolish the office of Corporation Counsel in New York, and agreed on having a further hearing on Thursday. They also agreed to report favorably to-morrow Flecke's bill authorizing the expenditure of $100,000 on the streets below Fourteenth street.

BUSINESS OF THE HOUSE.

Third reading of bills took up the time of the Assembly, most of those passed being of minor and local importance.

STATE BOARD OF ASSESSORS.

In connection with a memorial of the Mayor and Common Council of New York Mr. Morrissey introduced a bill providing that one of the State Assessors shall always be a resident of New York city.

PURE WATER FOR UPTOWN WARDS.

Judge Robertson introduced a bill this morning authorizing an expenditure of $300,000 for giving a supply of Croton water to the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth wards of New York city (newly acquired district). Mr. Purdy, in the House to-night, introduced a bill with a similar purport.

THE EXCISE LAW.

Mr. Nachtman this evening introduced a bill into the Assembly to amend the excise law so as to permit the granting of licenses to liquor dealers generally. The bill grows out of the recent decision of Judge Folger, to the effect that licenses can be granted to sell liquor "to be drunk on the premises" to inn and hotel keepers only.

INVESTIGATING INSURANCE.

DIVING INTO THE AFFAIRS OF THE MUTUAL, GUARDIAN, METROPOLITAN AND EQUITABLE COMPANIES—WONDERS IN PROXIES, BONUSES AND COMMISSIONS.

ALBANY, April 10, 1877.

The Insurance Committee met this afternoon and heard the testimony of Sheppard Homans, president of the Provident Savings Insurance Company. He testified:—

Had been an actuary for seventeen years in the Mutual Life, and three years in other companies; was first connected with life insurance in 1856; proxies are obtained from policy holders with a view to strengthening the position of the officers; agents are frequently requested to obtain them for this purpose; they are generally given to any officer by name; they have no right to require proxies as a consideration for insuring with the companies; proxies are usually kept to be used when there is an occasion for them, but there has only been one or two such occasions in the Mutual Life; in 1870 there were two tickets, and by means of proxies there was an immense majority for the officers' ticket; saw the proxies cast; do not remember to have heard the result declared; the opposition ticket was one made up by policy holders; I think proxies are dangerous when lasting an indefinite time; they may be used for other purposes than the one originally designed by the policy holder who gave it; where proxies are held in great numbers in the case of a stock company it would be a very dangerous power; when the surplus of a stock company equals the amount of policies, the policy holders should be allowed to vote; believe that a law prohibiting the holding of proxies would be very just; there can hardly be any way of preventing officers from using their influence to obtain proxies or to secure votes; my connection with the Mutual ceased in 1871 as actuary, and altogether in 1872; disapprove of the manner in which proxies are given in certain mutual companies; think they should be limited to the particular election for which they are given; the officers have an undue amount of power by means of proxies; if proxies should become invalid after one year it would work very justly; secret combinations to get possession of companies should be guarded against, but not more so than in banking institutions; there was a case in the Mutual Life itself where a combination of policy holders secured proxies and carried an election.

THE POWER OF PROXIES.

Mr. Winston was then able to put in nine new trustees, and had himself made president in place of Mr. Collins; Mr Winston at that time was only a trustee; no one but officers seem to have any chance to find out the names of policy holders, so as to obtain proxies, except by access to the companies' books, which is almost impossible, or by advertising; policy holders, witness thinks, have the right to look over the books; he cannot say that the privilege granted would be accorded very freely; a Mr. McCullough, in 1869, as a policy holder, was given that privilege, but no change in the officers of any importance resulted from it; he was in the interest of an opposition.

INSURANCE TRICKS.

There are several mixed companies where policy-holders have no right to vote; he knows several instances where a majority of the stock has been purchased to control elections in reinsured companies; such was the case in the Widows and Orphans'; Mr. McCurdy, Vice President of the Mutual Life, was a director in the Widows and Orphans', and secured the majority of the stock; it was reinsured in the Mutual Protection; these two companies being consolidated became the Reserve Mutual, which afterward was swallowed up in the Guardian.

ENORMOUS AGENCY EXPENSES.

In examining the accounts of the company witness found a checkstub for $25,000 for agency expenses, which seemed to be suspicious.

Mr. Bliss—Did not the check book show that the check was drawn three months before the consolidation? A. No, sir; a few days afterward.

Witness was also a Director of the Widows and Orphans'; about one-half of the Directors of the Widows and Orphans' were also Directors in the Mutual Life; the stock of the Widows and Orphans' was purchased at par; witness opposed the transfer; Mr. McCurdy drew the contract for reinsuring, as attorney and counsel for the company; the contract was adopted unanimously witness not having voted; opposed the transaction because the Widows and Orphans' was in good shape, while the Mutual Protection was really a suspicious company and in bad repute; Mr. Beers, of the New York Life, said afterward that he would have given $100,000 for the business of the company; witness had no stock at the time of the transfer, although he acted as director; had sold his stock, but it probably was left in his name on the books; the report of the Widows and Orphans' of the year does not to his knowledge show that the company was insolvent, but its stock was somewhat impaired; the business was carefully selected and the impairment resulted from the too heavy dividends declared; upon the calculation by the actuary a liability of some $60,000 was overlooked, and thus resulted the wrong dividend; the witness was consulting actuary but did not make the calculation.

To Mr. Bliss—I do not think I am on record as having stated that the impairment was due to an increased mortality; the differences between the officers of the Mutual Life and myself were due to the fact that Mr. Winston had directed that post-mortem dividends should not be paid, although the charter declares that they must be paid; the witness, as actuary, tried to persuade Mr. Winston that it was wrong, but he could not be persuaded, and witness refused to sign the annual statement unless he could modify the oath that it was true; Mr. Winston objected, and the assistant actuary signed the statement; by-laws were afterward adopted at Mr. Winston's instance, giving the duty of auditing money accounts to the bookkeeper instead of the actuary.

Mr. Mosk—That gave him the auditing of his own accounts?

Witness—Yes, sir.

Witness had also pointed out a defect in a certain calculation for the change of the dividend system, which had been made by certain professors of West Point, a defect which would have involved disaster to the company; a new method of dividend making was then agreed upon, but it proved unsatisfactory and Mr. Winston became angry and his connection with the Mutual was dissolved.

To Mr. Bliss—Do not believe that Mr. Winston intended to do anything wrong in prohibiting the post mortem dividends, but it was in violation of the charter.

THE METROPOLITAN COMPANY.

Joseph F. Knapp testified that he is president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company; his salary commenced at $4,500; then was $5,000 and is now $6,000; has received a commission of one per cent of the next premium income of the company after the expenses are paid; his average compensation has been about nine thousand three hundred dollars; the commission paid him last year was $8,300; there was none paid the first two or three years; a contract had been made to give him a large commission, but he had allowed the amount to remain in the company; he himself had asked the Board of Directors to abrogate the contract when he found the company needed the money; the first bonus was paid the year after the contract was abrogated; a loan of $30,000 was made to me upon real estate, a house and lot worth more than twice the amount; the loan was made because the company needed at short notice a mortgage which the State superintendent could accept in place of the United States securities which the company desired to withdraw.

THE EQUITABLE COMPANY ATTACKED.

Joseph P. Fackler, an actuary, testified that he had made an examination of the Equitable Company at the request of a committee of policy holders; what he discovered on his examination was obtained professionally, and he would prefer not to say anything about it without the consent of the persons for whom he acted.

Mr. Green, counsel for the Equitable, here said that the company had no objection to having the result of the examination made public.

Mr. Fackler said that there was nothing materially damaging shown in his examination.

Mr. Fackler having persisted in his refusal to answer, the committee decided to adjourn until to-morrow at half-past three P. M., when the question of compelling him to answer will come up for decision.

WISWALL WEEPS.

CONCLUSION OF THE EXAMINATION BY THE COMMITTEE OF THREE.

The committee of three appointed to investigate certain charges made through the press and otherwise against Rev. Alvah Wiswall, Master of St. John's Guild, met again last evening at the rooms of the Guild in West Fourteenth street. All the members of the committee, Messrs. Floyd, Spear and Holligarten, were present. Mr. Wiswall was present and his case was conducted by his counsel, Mr. Townsend. No person appeared to make a charge, and Mr. Townsend stated that he had written to Mrs. Wiswall, offering to pay her expenses to New York if she wished to appear before the committee to substantiate the charges she has made against her husband. He read Mrs. Wiswall's reply, which stated that owing to ill health she was unable to come; and also a letter from another lady, to whom he had written, stating that she had called at the house where Mrs. Wiswall lived, and has been informed that the latter lady was in her usual health.

MR. WISWALL EXAMINED.

Mr. Wiswall was then sworn by Mr. Max S. Eller, who said he was a notary public, and a number of questions were put to him by Mr. Townsend regarding the relations between him and his wife, the causes of their separation, &c. Mr. Wiswall denied the truth of the published statements of Mrs. Wiswall charging him with infidelity and with defrauding her out of certain property. He stated that Mrs. Wiswall, who was from twelve to fifteen years his senior, was unreasonably jealous of him from a very short time after their marriage and that their life was rendered very unhappy from this cause. She wished him to give up the ministry and go live in the country with her, and his refusal was one of the principal causes of their unhappiness; she was daily in the habit of charging him with infidelity, and persons of the highest standing and respectability in the church were the object of her suspicions; he gave many instances of her peculiar freaks of jealousy—one being in the case of a child five years old—and said that his daughter was taught to spit in his face and treat him with every mark of disrespect. Mr. Wiswall was asked if he had called his wife "an old hag." Before answering he hid his face behind a piece of manuscript. When he uncovered his eyes they were seen to contain a tear each. "I did," he answered, amid breathless silence. He gave an account of the various sums of money he had paid her for her support and that of their daughter since their separation, the average amount being about $1,000 a year, and her receipts, which were given in evidence, were extraordinary productions. A small piece of paper in Mrs. Wiswall's handwriting was produced, stating that "Mr. Wiswall will be found at Mrs. L——, No. ——," and which, it was sworn, was affixed on one occasion to the outside of his door. A number of postal cards from her to her husband after their separation were also read. They, in nearly all cases, made demands for money to procure clothing for their daughter and other such things, and recommended the spending of less money on champagne and other luxuries for Mr. Wiswall's mistresses. The question of Mr. Wiswall's removal from Trinity Church was then gone into, and a number of letters were read bearing upon the subject. The drift of this portion of the evidence was to show that the removal was not in consequence of the charges made against him, but, as expressed by Dr. Dix, because "his character as a clergyman had been lowered and his influence to some extent impaired" by the scenes caused by his wife's eccentricities. The record of the meetings of St. John's Guild was then produced and the resolution abrogating the canon, till then prevailing, that the Master should be a clergyman connected with Trinity Church, was read. A memorial from over three hundred members of St. John's Chapel protesting against Mr. Wiswall's removal was also produced in evidence.

MR. MAX ELLER'S EVIDENCE.

Mr. Max S. Eller was then examined, and testified that he had seen Mrs. Wiswall come into the rooms of the Guild, in Varick street, under the influence of liquor, and that she acted in such an abusive and violent manner that he was obliged to call a policeman to remove her. Mr. Eller was asked by a member of the committee whether he had ever received any salary or other money from the Guild, and he showed a great disinclination to answer, but finally said he had received a salary as private secretary to Mr. Wiswall.

The committee then, after a short consultation, announced that they had concluded the examination, and adjourned subject to the call of the chair.

THE AMERIQUE AFLOAT.

SAFE ARRIVAL OF THE STRANDED VESSEL IN PORT—SLIGHT DAMAGE SUSTAINED—THE EFFORTS TO GET HER OFF.

A telegram was received early yesterday morning at the office of the General Transatlantic Steamship Company, in Broadway, giving the welcome intelligence that the long stranded steamer L'Amerique had been hauled off the Long Branch beach during the night and at fifteen minutes to eight A. M. was floating, anchored in deep water. At the office of the company many persons called yesterday to offer their congratulations on the event. These were received with great courtesy and satisfaction, accompanied with the assurance that there had never been any other expectation entertained by the company than that the vessel would ultimately resume her place on the line. Their confidence, they said, was founded on the strength and build of the vessel, and though for three months and three days she had been ashore and had endured the unusually severe storms of the winter, it would be found, they thought, that her condition was much better than was generally expected by those unacquainted with the ship.

MEETING THE AMERIQUE.

Mr. L. De Bebian, the agent of the company, and Mr. M. D. Perzell, the superintendent, immediately on the receipt of the telegram announcing the floating of the Amerique went on board a tug and proceeded down the bay to meet her coming up. At Sandy Hook they stopped to obtain any information that might have arrived there since they left the city, and there they saw the Amerique moving to the eastward. At the same time they had the satisfaction of observing the St. Laurent, another of the company's steamers, due yesterday, making for this port.

ARRIVING IN PORT.

It was expected that the Amerique would arrive in the bay about four o'clock in the afternoon, and arrangements had been made for her in the Erie basin. The consequence of this expectation was that a number of gentlemen interested in shipbuilding were found during the afternoon anxiously waiting for her appearance. They were doomed to disappointment, and went away without seeing her. In the neighborhood of the Erie basin there was considerable excited anticipation. On board the steamship the State of Georgia, which was in the Erie dry dock for repairs, the crew turned many an anxious look down the bay, hoping to be rewarded by a sight of the long looked for ship. Owing, however, to the difficulty in handling her with a broken rudder, the Amerique was not seen until about five o'clock, when the tug boat Relief was descried steaming ahead of her. From that time there was a concentration of attention directed on her movements, and she came slowly steaming up with the tug boats, Relief ahead, the Cyclops and the Hudson on the port, the W. E. Gladwitch and Only Son on the starboard. At twenty minutes past six P. M. the first hawser was thrown ashore at the foot of Conover street, Brooklyn, where the New York Warehousing Company's docks are situated and to the north of the Erie basin. The Amerique will be there for a few days and will then go into the Erie dry dock for repairs. The external indications of damage were so few that it excited exclamations of astonishment from the groups of persons on the dock who had been anxiously awaiting her arrival. Her topmast and her yards were down, her rudder was carried away at the water's edge, her stern post was broken and one of the blades of her propeller was gone. These were all the signs of damage.

ON BOARD.

On board there were still fewer indications of the severity of the strain she had sustained and the rough weather she had encountered during the time she had been stranded at Seabright. With the exception of a broken portlight here and there everything on board seemed to be in order and had the same appearance that would have been presented had the vessel come into port in January last. Mr. Lovell, the purser, said that at eight o'clock on Monday night they found, with very great delight, that she began to move, and at four o'clock in the morning she was in deep water, and at eleven o'clock the cables were slipped and she was taken in tow by the tugboats. The ship had not leaked either at the bow, midship or stern. In the saloon there was not the slightest displacement of any article of furniture. Everything was in its accustomed place and the tables were laid for dinner. It required a very strong effort of the imagination to realize that you were on board a vessel that had been stranded for more than three months.

THE OFFICIAL RECORD.

The following is the official record of the success of the efforts to float the Amerique from the time the vessel went ashore:—January 7, went ashore at three o'clock A. M.; January 12, the tugs moved her for the first time and she gained 9 feet seaward; January 14, gained 180 feet; January 16, gained 3 feet; January 27, lost 12 feet; January 28, lost 15 feet; February 22, after having gained 120 feet, the ship was thrown back by the hurricane; February 26, gained 4 feet; February 27, gained 10 feet; March 2, gained 24 feet; March 18, gained 45 feet; March 25, gained 15 feet; March 26, gained 50 feet; March 30, gained 12 feet; April 9, gained 120 feet; April 10, the ship floated at eight o'clock A. M.

OFFICERS AND CREW.

The following are the names of the officers, all of whom have remained on board since the Amerique went ashore, in January:—M. Pouzoiz, captain; M. Joseph Viel, second captain; M. Ruellan, first lieutenant; M. Grader, chief engineer; M. Lovell, purser, and M. Lesprinors, doctor. Many of the crew returned home immediately after the disaster, but there is now a crew of sixty hands. Captain Pouzoiz will return with his ship to Havre, after which he will rejoin the French Navy, in which he holds the rank of lieutenant.

THE WRECKING COMPANY.

Much satisfaction is felt by the Wrecking Company at the successful termination of their long continued efforts. It is understood, and indeed stated by the agents of the Transatlantic Company, that no arrangements in the shape of pecuniary reward have been made with the Wrecking Company for getting the Amerique off. Captain Merritt, who has had personal charge of the Wrecking Company's work, seldom left the ship from the commencement of the operations. Last night, when the first hawser was thrown ashore, he jumped aboard the tugboat Cyclops and steamed for his home, with all steam up.

THE RUSLAND BREAKING UP.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., April 10, 1877.

The surf, which has been unusually high all day, has dashed over the Rusland, preventing all work on board. No boat has been out to her. The break in her side has opened further and is now fully one foot wide. She is settling fast in the sand; but if fine weather sets in it will be possible to save the balance of her cargo with the aid of divers.

THE RUSSIAN FLEET.

VISITORS TO THE SVETLANA—DECORATIONS SENT BY THE EMPEROR.

Several parties of ladies, with gentlemen, in company with officers of the United States flagship Powhatan, or by invitation of the Russian officers, visited the Russian flagship Svetlana yesterday.

To-day the United States flagship Powhatan will leave the port of New York for Port Royal, according to orders. The Minnesota is to take her place and hoist the Admiral's pennant.

At one o'clock Captain Nazimoff, commanding the cruiser Craysser, now lying at Philadelphia, arrived on board the flagship Svetlana, from Philadelphia, to offer his Easter felicitations to the Admiral and Grand Duke Alexis.

DECORATING THE OFFICERS.

The Admiral received yesterday a telegram from the Minister of Marine, dated at St. Petersburg, conveying his felicitations and announcing that the Emperor had signed the order giving different decorations to various officers of the fleet. Among those decorated were Commandant Shafroff, of the Bogatyr, who received the Order of St. Anne of the second class, and Commandant Nazimoff, of the Craysser, who received the same decoration.

The Grand Duke Alexis passed the day on shore and returned to his ship in the evening.

ABUSING A PRISONER.

WHY PETER BRONNER WAS NOT BROUGHT TO COURT FOR THREE WEEKS AFTER HIS ARREST.

Peter Bronner, nineteen years of age, was arrested by Officer Lowe, of the Tenth precinct, on the 17th of March, charged with being connected with a burglary committed on the premises of Bernard Levy, No. 72 Baxter street, on the 16th of March, and also with one committed on the premises of Peter Schilling, No. 43 Eldridge street, on the 11th of March, when $800 worth of metal was carried away. He was brought before Judge Wandell yesterday and held in $1,500 bail on two separate charges. He was not brought to court before because on the night of his arrest Officer Devlin, then special officer of the Tenth precinct, went into Bronner's cell in the station house and demanded from him certain information concerning the above mentioned burglaries. On Bronner declaring that he knew nothing about them, Special Officer Devlin took his club and jammed it into the prisoner's eye. He was taken to the hospital, and had been there ever since till yesterday. He has lost the sight of his right eye forever, and Officer Devlin is on trial before the Commissioners for his brutality. The case comes up to-day. Acting Captain Kass asked Judge Wandell to allow the prisoner to remain in the station house, as he would be required to appear at the Central Office to-day.

THE GANG OF FORGERS.

WHAT LED TO THE ARREST OF THE BOND FORGERS—THE POLICE RETICENT.

The four prisoners arrested by Captain Allaire for complicity in the $64,000 check forgery on the New York Life Insurance Company were yesterday brought to the Central Office, where their portraits were taken for insertion in the Rogues' Gallery. Their names are John Becker, John Worth, Clement Herring and Frederick Elliott. The story of their arrest has been considerably involved and with difficulty any information bearing on the case could be secured. District Attorney Phelps refuses to say anything about it, and Captain Allaire is silent when questioned. From this it would seem that the case is not yet complete and that another prisoner or witness is wanted. It has, however, been ascertained that the discovery and arrest of this gang of forgers and counterfeiters is traceable to a capture made some time ago by a young officer in the Fourteenth precinct named Weinberg, which at the time was thought to be of little account, but from which important developments have since arisen. The story was published in the HERALD at the time, but its subsequent fruits were of course unknown. The following are the facts of the case:—

THE WAGON ARREST.

Early on the morning of February 20 Officer Weinberg, of the Fourteenth precinct, stopped a wagon which was being driven through Canal street and arrested August Sohn, the driver. The vehicle was found to contain the proceeds of a burglary committed at the store of T. B. Peddie & Co., No. 77 Chambers street. Sohn, on being placed in confinement, and seeing the prospect of a lengthy incarceration before him, hinted that he would be willing to make some disclosures which would lead to very important results. In course of time he acknowledged that he had been associated with burglars, and had frequently been employed to transport the proceeds of robberies, and had from time to time carried through the streets to places of concealment the machinery and utensils which a gang of counterfeiters made use of. He said that he had been brought from his house in Cannon street by a number of men to assist in carrying off the plunder from Peddie's place. On this statement Officer Weinberg and Detectives Wade and Moran went to the house and there found Mrs. Catharine Suhrer, who, on seeing them, hurried up stairs and stealthily endeavored to destroy a cigar box by dropping it into the fire. Weinberg frustrated the attempt and found that the box contained two counterfeit fifty-cent pieces. A search of the premises revealed a quantity of counterfeit money in the shape of bills and coin. Furs, jewelry and other valuables, evidently the proceeds of robberies, were also discovered.

A CRIMINAL DEN.

The Suhrer family was found to be more numerous than was at first supposed, and it became evident that they were associated with a gang of counterfeiters and cracksmen of no mean standing. The valuables found in Cannon street never reached the Police Property Clerk but got back into the hands of the people with whom they were discovered. No doubt some of the Suhrers promised to betray their colleagues in crime, as it will be seen there is reason to believe they have done, provided they got off scot free. At all events, they succeeded in escaping the clutches of the law.

VALUABLE INFORMATION.

In the meantime August Sohn in his cell became quite communicative, and said that he would be willing to disclose the names and methods of operation of a gang who had perpetrated a $64,000 forgery. This at once secured him a hearing, and he stated that he had been employed to move about the apparatus of this party; that they had presses and all machinery necessary for doing their work skilfully. He said, however, that it would be impossible to capture them at once, as they were then in the South carrying on some criminal operations, with the character of which he was unacquainted. This statement was at once looked into by Captain Allaire, and he concluded that it was this gang who had forged and negotiated the check on the New York Life Insurance Company which had been cashed by the Union Trust Company. In fact, he freely stated his opinion that they were the parties to his captor, Officer Weinberg, to Captain Allaire, and to others who had access to him.

THE CAPTURE.

The information thus secured was used in working up the case, and all of the parties criminated by Officer Weinberg's prisoner have since been kept under surveillance. A few evenings ago an elder member of the Suhrer family came into the Fourteenth precinct station house and inquired for Captain Allaire. With him he was closeted for several hours, no doubt imparting the news of his colleagues' return from the South and the means of effecting their capture. Captain Allaire hurried off at once with Officers Croker, Wilson, Corey and Wade, and soon returned with the prisoners now in his custody.

These are, doubtless, the four men (it is believed there is a fifth) who employed Sohn to transport their engraving apparatus. This machinery has been found secreted in a house in the suburbs of the city, and, with a quantity of specimen bonds and bank paper, brought to the station house.

Pinkerton's detectives, who have been working on the case, have secured a lot of evidence which will, in all probability, convict the prisoners. If that fail, the testimony of the driver captured by Officer Weinberg, to which their arrest is doubtless mainly due, may of itself serve that purpose.

COURT PROCEEDINGS.

Shortly after three o'clock yesterday afternoon Captain Allaire, of the Fourteenth precinct, entered the Tombs Police Court, and became at once the centre of attraction, the spectators jumping at the conclusion that the mysterious forgery case, about which the police had maintained such sphinx-like reticence, was at last to be made public. The interest was enhanced by the entrance shortly afterward of District Attorney Phelps, whose presence in a police court is of unusual occurrence. Accompanying him were George L. Maxwell, the Wall street broker, whose name figured so extensively in connection with the $64,000 check forgery, and the latter's counsel, Clarence A. Seward. The curious were, however, again doomed to disappointment. Captain Allaire first consulted with the District Attorney, and then whispered a few words to Justice Kilbreth, who nodded his head in acquiescence. "The prisoners are remanded," was the simple announcement explanatory of the conference. When approached on the subject Captain Allaire merely shook his head, saying, "I cannot say anything about the case at the present time." District Attorney Phelps was equally uncommunicative, responding to the inquiries of the reporters, "All will come out in due time."

Justice Kilbreth appeared to be as much in the dark about the nature of the forgery as the reporters. "All I know," said he, "is that the counsel for the prisoners desires the case remanded to-day and the District Attorney acquiesces."

"DAN THE BLACKSMITH."

HIS EXAMINATION BEFORE JUDGE MURRAY—TRYING TO PROVE AN ALIBI.

Daniel H. Burns, alias "Dan the Blacksmith," who was arrested on suspicion of being connected with the Sixth National Bank burglary, was arraigned before Judge Murray, at the Jefferson Market Court, at half-past four o'clock yesterday afternoon for examination.

Mr. Francis Leland, the president of the bank, made a short affidavit to the effect that the bank had been burglariously entered between three and five o'clock Sunday afternoon, and that $990 in fractional currency and $8,106 in silver coin had been carried away; that he hed good reason to believe that Daniel H. Burns, the prisoner, was one of three men who had committed the burglary, on account of information he had received from one Bernard Murphy.

THE PRISONER IDENTIFIED.

Mr. Bernard Murphy, who resides at No. 201 Sixth avenue and is a clerk in a shoe store at No. 310 Fourth avenue, testified that he was standing in the window of a house on Broadway, directly opposite the bank, on Sunday afternoon, and that about a quarter to four o'clock he saw three men come out of a basement underneath the bank, and that their clothing was spotted and colored as if it had been in recent contact with plastering. First one man came out alone, went toward Thirty-sixth street, and a few moments afterward two came out together and followed the first up Broadway; one of the two last he positively identified yesterday as the prisoner Daniel H. Burns. Mr. Murphy was subjected to a long cross-examination by prisoner's counsel; but he persistently stuck to his statement that he could not be mistaken. He said that he had never seen Burns before Sunday afternoon last, but when he was brought to the shoe store by Captain Williams on Monday he recognized him at once. Counsel dwelt a long time on the impossibility of any man being able to swear positively to another that he had never seen but once, and then but for the space of a minute or a minute and a half, and at a distance of at least 100 feet.

THE PRISONER'S WIFE'S TESTIMONY.

The prisoner's wife was then called to testify to her husband's whereabouts last Sunday. Mrs. Burns, a fine, portly looking woman, richly dressed, and with diamond earrings and other jewelry on her person, came modestly forward and took a seat under the Judge's bench. She said her name was Mary Burns, and that she resided with her husband at No. 138 East Thirteenth street; that they had two children, one of whom was at present quite sick, and was very sick last Sunday, so she remembered everything connected with her house on that day; between four and five o'clock last Sunday morning her husband came home from his business and went to bed; he slept till eleven o'clock, when he went out and returned in about twenty-five minutes to his breakfast; after eating breakfast he lay down again, and did not leave the house from that time till eleven o'clock on Monday morning. Judge Murray asked the witness a number of questions as to how much of that time she might have been asleep herself, as she had been necessarily wearied out with waiting on her sick child. Mrs. Burns answered all the questions very clearly.

ANOTHER WITNESS FOR THE PRISONER.

Mary Hanlon, a servant in the house, was called and corroborated Mrs. Burns' testimony as to the time Mr. Burns came in on Sunday morning after going out at eleven o'clock, and also as to his being in the house all the afternoon. As there were several other witnesses to be heard, further examination was adjourned till to-day. The prisoner is a man about forty years of age, is of dark complexion and wears heavy black whiskers and mustache with long black hair. He has a very intelligent face, and the form and build of a powerful man. He listened to the examination in a cool, quiet manner, and made suggestions to his counsel which were invariably acted upon. He seemed to feel confident yesterday that he would be able to clear himself.

OLE BULL.

The Great Violinist Interviewed for the First Time.

NOTES OF A MUSICAL LIFE.

Crushing Denunciation of Wagner and His Murderous Music.

Paganini—Ole Bull—two glorious names stand out like giants in the musical history of this century, attracting to themselves by the force of their own genius the admiration and applause of the civilized world. What Raphael and Rembrandt were to painting the two great violinists were to music in this century. Poor Paganini rests far away in his own sunny land, and the balmy winds wafted from the blue Mediterranean sing mournful dirges over his early grave. His friend and rival, hardy child of the frozen north, dwells with us, and though the snows of sixty-seven winters rest upon his head his hand is as steady and his step as elastic as though he were a young athlete and not the violinist whom a generation which has passed away pronounced great. Neither have his mental powers felt the influence of time, for his memory is wonderfully clear, and as he talks in his frank, open way his eyes sparkle with a brightness that shows the fires of youth have not yet burned out, despite the snow which hangs upon his brow. It would be difficult to imagine a more interesting figure than this youthful sexagenarian, with his noble figure and clear cut manly features, large and massive, but flexible and changeful as a summer cloud. Knowing how much interest the public take in this distinguished man, a HERALD reporter was sent to request from him some reminiscences of his life, a request which he acceded to with thoughtful courtesy.

HIS YOUTH.

I was born in Bergen, in the Kingdom of Norway began the distinguished musician, of a musical family' For though my father was an apothecary he was also distinguished as a musical amateur, as were many other members of my family, especially an uncle, who was the editor of the only newspaper published in Bergen. It was he who first taught me my notes while I was yet little more than an infant. He played on the violoncello, and I remember well when I used to go to sleep in the violoncello case and have to be wakened up to play my part in the family concerts. My first violin was presented to me by this uncle. It was a little yellow instrument, and on it I learned to play step by step. When I was only eight years old I was sufficiently advanced to be able to play in the Philharmonic concert at Bergen, and at nine I played the first violin in Beethoven's Symphony in D. From that time my progress was rapid.

FIRST CONCERT TOUR.

In 1831 I made my first concert tour. I was very little known, and was principally engaged playing as substitute for better known men when they were unable to fulfil their engagements. This was a very unprofitable business, for it was chiefly done without pay. About this time a lucky accident happened, or rather an accident which turned out luckily. I was beginning to be somewhat known and was engaged to play at a concert to be given by the Princess Danremond, for which performance I was to receive five louis d'or or about one hundred francs. Having to select some other musicians to accompany me, I engaged Ernst and the brothers Boucher. When we arrived at the Princess' hotel the Swiss who stood guard over the Grand Chamber intimated that as we were only musicians we should go to some other room and wait until we were called for. This annoyed me very much, and after waiting some time I said to the others, "Let us go in; we were invited to this concert;" and, taking hold of the doors, held them open while my companions entered. Just then some white Polish dogs which were inside ran toward the door, attracted by the scuffle, and, seeing Ernst who had entered first and who was dressed in knee breeches and silk stockings, they ran barking at him. He was frightened and retreated, which encouraged the dogs so much that one of them bit him.

NORSE BLOOD TELLS.

Another came toward me, and, not caring to be bitten, I gave him a kick, sans ceremonie, which raised him in the air and knocked all fighting pluck out of him. He was carried out, and, the Princess being informed that this awful breach of decorum had been committed by one of the musicians, we were all ordered to leave immediately. I refused unless I was paid the five louis d'or which had been promised me, and when they threatened to put me out I told them it would take the whole lot to do it. Just then the Norwegian Ambassador arrived and threw oil on the troubled waters. He was accompanied by the Duke of Montebello, to whom he introduced me, who was a great musician and through whom I met Chopin. So they paid me my five louis d'or and I retreated. About two weeks later I saw an immense procession on the Boulevards, and learned it was the funeral cortége of the Princess, who had probably died of grief for the darling dog whose days I had shortened.

FIRST LUCK.

This story was generally circulated and made an immense sensation, and I soon after, in connection with Ernst, Chopin and the two Bouchers, gave a concert at Paris, which proved a great success. It was at this concert I first introduced Norwegian melodies, which were a real novelty in Paris, where they had never before been heard. They made a decidedly favorable impression. It was with the money made at this concert I went to Italy to study Italian song, so as to know the principle of constructing musical phrases, and while there I composed several melodies in the Italian style.

MEETS PAGANINI.

It was about this time I first met Paganini. I went to hear him, and next day, while walking on the Boulevard, met Sind, the banker, who was in raptures. I was just expressing my enthusiasm when Sind said, "Why, here comes Paganini; I will introduce you." When he shook my hand he said, "Why, Mr. Ole Bull, I know you." He then invited me warmly to his house. He received me in the most charming manner and confided all his griefs to me. He complained bitterly of his treatment by the French critics, whom he denounced for their ignorance. He was wont to declare that the French knew nothing about art except what they had learned from the Italian master Viotti, and that they were destroying all the improvements he had made in the art of violin playing. But the French were so conceited they thought they could teach the Italians to play, while in reality they could neither make violins nor play them.

IN ITALY.

While in Italy I gave a concert at La Scala, but unfortunately introduced the Austrian national air, which I took from Paganini's arrangement, and as he played it I thought I might do so, but the Italians regarded it as an insult and I was fiercely attacked by the critics. When I learned the cause I sought out the chief critic, thanked him for his good advice, and, having convinced him that no insult was intended, from a severe critic he became one of my best friends.

THE MASTER SINGER.

Learning that I had gone to Italy to study melody he promised to introduce me to a great repetitore. He brought me to a concert, where I heard this old man sing with his broken down voice as I never heard man sing before or since. This old man was the famous Micheroux, the teacher of Pasta. After this I composed a number of pieces, and the writer who at first ran me down praised my work so highly that I used to be quite ashamed.

FORTUNE SMILES.

At last the turning point in my career arrived, after long waiting and very hard work. I wished to give a concert at Bologna, but found that the theatre was controlled by Malibran and her husband, De Beriot, who would not permit me to use it. But one evening, when it was very still, I was playing in my room in the hotel; Rossini's first wife, Mme. Colbrand, was passing, and hearing me playing three and four parts thought it was a quartet. On inquiring at the hotel she was told that there was only one young man, and, being very much struck by my execution, went that evening to the Marquis Zampiere, who was President of the Philharmonic, to induce him to engage me. He did not heed the suggestion, however, at that time, but when the day of the concert came Malibran was sick and De Beriot had a bad finger. Then Zampiere thought of me and came to request that I would play, and so I consented and played a quartet alone. This was a great success and the audience recalled me so often that I asked a lady in the front row to give me a theme to improvise. This lady happened to be the Princess Poniatowski and she was very much flattered. Her husband invited me to Florence, where he arranged a very successful concert. I speak about these early struggles not so much from personal vanity as an encouragement to others never to give up the ship. Afterward I visited Naples and travelled all over Italy.

RETURNS TO MECCA.

On my return to Paris I gave a concert at the Grand Opera. It was very well attended, nearly all the distinguished people being present, and here I made lasting friends with Meyerbeer and Jules Janin. Janin was delighted and wrote a magnificent criticism on my performance. He called me "the Northern Savage," but classed me above even Paganini. This, however, was due to personal feeling, because Janin had taken a great dislike to Paganini on account of having refused to play at a concert for the benefit of the people of Janin's native village, who had suffered greatly by an inundation. After this I travelled all over Europe, and met with extraordinary success.

COMES TO AMERICA.

In 1843 I came to America, arriving in New York on Evacuation Day. My reception by the American people was very kind. Some of the French papers attacked me because at the same time Vieuxtemps and Artot, with Mme. Damoreaux, were giving concerts in the city. They were not very successful, while my concerts were crowded. In order to injure me the French papers warned the people not to go to my concerts, as pickpockets were very active. Mr. Bennett, Sr., was very kind to me on this occasion, and offered me free use of the columns of his paper, but I said, "I will not answer them. They write against me, I play against them. You will see who will succeed." During my visit I made the acquaintance of Henry Clay and other distinguished men. At Washington I gave a grand concert, which was attended by the President, Senate, House of Representatives and the members of the diplomatic corps. There is a little history how that was brought about which I will tell you. It occurred this way. Henry Clay was very sick and I was invited to visit him by a mutual friend. I accepted and proposed that I should take my violin and play for him. The idea was approved by my friend who said Henry Clay would no doubt be delighted. On arriving in the house I took up a position in a room adjoining the sick chamber and played in a low tone Clay's favorite melody, "The Last Rose of Summer." His interest was immediately aroused and he asked if some one was not playing in the street. As the tone was raised he said, "Ah, that must be Ole Bull; no one but him could play that air." When I had ended the doors were thrown open and the great man came and embraced me. I felt that a higher honor than if all the sovereigns in the world had embraced me. When this incident became known I was requested to give a concert in Washington, and the request was signed by the Senators and Representatives and also by President Fillmore.

TRAVELS WITH PATTI.

In company with Adelina Patti, who was then only about ten years old, I made a tour through the Union with Strakosch, and met with flattering success. I had some unfortunate experience in attempting to establish a colony of my countrymen in Pennsylvania on account of having fallen into the hands of swindlers, who sold me land to which they had no title.

VIEWS ON WAGNER.

You do not, I believe, admire Wagner's music?

No, I do not admire him. I think he and Offenbach have done more to pollute music than any others combined. If we admit this Germanizing of music we shall destroy its chief beauties. When Germans drink lager bier they can stand coups de canon. We have only to listen to the melodies of Mozart, Rossini, Handel and Bach to feel that there is no comparison between their beautiful works and the monstrosities of the Wagner school.

MUSIC OF MURDER.

He always employs a great number of brass instruments, which never can be played in perfect tune, and the more they are used the more the ear becomes accustomed to suffer discordant sound. The more of these instruments you use the farther you get from purity of style as well as of intonation. Yet Wagner doubles his faulty brass instruments, and thus produces fifths which are discords. A person who comes out of Wagner's concert is not to be trusted. There is murder in that music and something which appeals to the lower passions. It makes honest people sick. It is a pity Thomas will insist on playing Wagner's music. There are people who think because Wagner happened to be born in Germany that therefore he has a right to ruin their ears. I cannot admit that Wagner is a poet because he took the stories of the ancient Logos and put them in recitative form. At Munich they tried to persuade me that I disliked the music because I never heard it properly played. So I went once to the theatre to hear "Tannhauser," but after half an act I was so sick that I was only wishing the act to be over so that I might get out. I was sick all that night. In the "Flying Dutchman" he introduces Norse music, which has as much relation to genuine Norse music as Chinese music has to Italian. After stealing from Meyerbeer and Mendelssohn he abuses them because they are Jews, thus adding insult to injury.

It is said you are going to write a book on the violin?

Yes; I hope to be able to render it easier for learners in future, especially for ladies. I have a theory about the holding of the violin which is founded on my own experience, and this I wish to explain for the benefit of future students. Some other day I will have a chat with you on this interesting subject.

In reply to a question from the reporter Mr. Ole Bull stated he had yet some fifteen concerts to give before his departure for Norway, where he was anxious to return on account of his festival, which takes place in June.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE MISTLETOE BOUGH.

Rarely has the Academy of Music held within the compass of its wide walls a cheerier host than flocked thither last evening in bright attire and with rippling laughter to see the ballad of the "Mistletoe Bough" done in pantomime. This ballad of life in old England when she was truly Merrie England recites, as is well known, the story of Lord Lovell and his bride; how they were wedded and toasted; how they danced and how she in merry mood hid in the old oak chest which sprung upon her and kept her in her fatal prison til half a century having passed over the whitened head of her sorrowing lord, the secret of her doom was disclosed to him and he saw how the old chest

—Closed with a spring, and her bridal bloom
Lay withering there in a living tomb.

The representation was divided into five tableaux, enlisting the services of a large number of ladies and gentlemen and quite a flock of little children. The first picture represented a Yule feast under the mistletoe in an old baronial hall in the north of England. To the brisk notes of "Haste to the Wedding" the curtain rose, discovering a richly attired company whirling in the stirring movements of a country dance so blithely as to set the heels of the audience drumming to keep time in lieu of a more active participation in the delights afoot. The dance is over, and some of the ladies being caught under the mistletoe forfeit the customary salute. To the music of the wedding march enters now the bridal party, the bridesmaids being little girls scarce in their teens. Through a pathway strewn with flowers Lord Lovell approaches with his bride. After they have bowed to the assembled guests in formal style, and the guests have drank a health to the bride, the music changes and the company move with stately grace through the minuet, making a dancing picture of rare beauty. The dance over, the bride coyly breaks away to run off and rest.

"I'm weary of dancing, now," she cried.
"Here tarry a moment, I'll hide, I'll hide."

The second tableau discovers the fleeing bride seeking a hiding place in the tower room, where stands the old oak chest. Fancying she hears her pursuers at the door, she gets into the chest, the lid of which, on a sudden, falls on her in the flurry of her mirthful excitement, shutting her in forever. The falling of the lid was so realistic as to elicit a demand for its repetition, to which the complacent bride was obedient having more command over the spring lock than Lord Lovell's hapless lady fair.

In the third scene was witnessed the bewilderment of the baron and the surprise of the guests at their failure to find the missing bride. Upon the faces of the guests were pictured painful looks of inquiry that other faces answered back with looks and motions eloquent of despair.

The fourth tableau presents a scene only hinted at in the ballad. Fifty years have passed, and the village folk have gathered to see the children at their Maypole dance. This is a bright and beautiful picture of the merry Mayday sports of the olden time, presided over by the May Queen and her ladies of honor. As the little ones skip around the Maypole Lord Lovell enters, old and gray and feeble. The dance recalls to him his lost bride, and the children pause as he moves about, gazing in abstracted mood on the scene. Soon he drifts away again, and the sports are resumed. "Last scene of all that ends this strange eventful history" is the accidental discovery of the bridal veil and withered wreath in the old chest. This is followed by the death of Lovell, who enters as the discovery is being made.

Preceding each tableau Mrs. Gulager sang a verse, or portion of a verse, of the old ballad by way of prologue to the opening scene, and in the interval between the third and fourth tableaux she sang the polonaise from "Mignon," which she was called on to repeat. It was quite late before the last tableau ended, as there was considerable time needed for the preparation of each picture. The buzz of lively conversation told how agreeably these moments of intermission passed for men and maids and brides elect and expectant, who had no fear that, like Lord Lovell's fairy bride, their light should be hid under the lid of any oak chest or other monstrous hiding place.

STEINWAY HALL.

There was a large attendance at this hall last night on the occasion of Mr. Emil Liebling's concert. The evening programme was well arranged and included solos on the violin by Mr. Otto Soldan. Mr. Liebling performed selections from Bach, Chopin and Liszt, but his playing left much to be desired. Signor Tagliapietra was in excellent voice and sang with telling effect Faure's sacred song, "Les Rameaux" and his own song, "The Dream of Love," both of which awakened the enthusiasm of the audience. Miss Anna Drasdil sang effectively Hiller's "Gebet" and Schubert's "Aufenthalt."

ITALIAN OPERA.

The new opera of "Don Carlos" will be produced to-morrow night at the Academy of Music. The management has gone to a good deal of expense in mounting this great work, and it will be presented in a worthy manner. Both the chorus and orchestra have been strengthened for the occasion.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC NOTES.

Robert Heller gives Brooklyn a matinée to-morrow at the Academy.

The new Broadway Theatre has been closed on account of the severe illness of Miss Marian Mordaunt.

Sam Devere and Add Ryman nightly excite the risibilities of those who patronize this home of variety entertainment in the sketch of "The New Bird Cage".

Miss Bouligny, of New Orleans, the celebrated singer, who has met with such a pronounced success in Paris, arrived in New York to-day by the steamer St. Laurent.

The audiences which nightly crowd the Theatre Comique demonstrate that Messrs. Harrigan & Hart have lost neither their skill as caterers nor their ability to please as performers.

The new play entitled "Three Days," by Franklin File, was produced for the first time on any stage at the Chestnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, on Monday evening. The piece has been carefully put upon the stage, and is attracting large audiences.

Mr. J. A. Fryer's benefit in Brooklyn takes place to-morrow night. "Tannhauser" will be the attraction, with Mme. Pappenheim and Messrs. Bischoff and Werrenroth in the cast. Mr. Fryer is endeared to the Brooklyn public as being the first impresario who has presented the operas in the répertoire of his company in the same careful manner as at the New York Academy.

LITTLE EMMA AGAIN.

General Schenck Describes His Flirtation in London.

A LOSING GAME.

Mr. Stoughton's Untimely Jest—A Tilt with Mr Beach.

The suit of the Emma Silver Mining Company against Trenor W. Park and H. H. Baxter was resumed yesterday in the United States Circuit Court, before Judge Wallace and a jury. On the opening of the proceedings General Schenck was called to the stand for cross-examination by Mr. Stoughton. Taking up the question of the validity of the title of Park and the other operators in the mine to sell the same in England, witness, in reply to questions on that point, said:—

GENERAL SCHENCK'S EVIDENCE.

The question of the validity of the title in the United States courts was a subject of anxiety to the company; with reference to the statement that 2,800 tons of ore were at the date of the prospectus en route to England on account of the company, amounting in value to £78,000, and the confidence of the company in the truth of such statement, witness had no recollection of that; he recollected that there was such a statement substantially made, but he did not remember the fact of the company expressing confidence in the statement that that amount of ore was en route to England from the mine; he remembered the fact of the discrepancy between 2,800 tons of ore, as stated in Silliman's report, and some other report making it only 1,800 tons; there was considerable doubt upon this point, and while it was hoped it would turn out to be 2,800 tons, the great object of inquiry was, if there should be a discrepancy in the amount of ore would that discrepancy be made good to the company? recollected that Park made a statutory declaration as required by the laws of England as a guarantee to the company; never recollected seeing that declaration, however, as he never attended any of the meetings afterward for the purpose of business; his great concern was to be satisfied that the prospectus was at least substantially correct; he had no distinct recollection of any discrepancy between the prospectus except with regard to this 1,000 tons of ore, which it was agreed Park should make up; didn't recollect that the discrepancy—if such should turn out to be the case—was to be made in cash, but it was generally understood that Park would in some shape or way make it up; remembered receiving a telegraphic report, after which he made up his mind to go into the company.

THE DIVIDEND QUESTION.

Q. Do you remember Mr. Park saying that a nonpayment of the dividends would be fatal, and to ensure its payment he would become responsible for the amount of the dividends? A. Didn't recollect hearing that Mr. Park was to make himself responsible to that extent; knew very well that there was an assurance given in some way that there would be dividends on the stock; the first dividend was paid on the 1st of December, 1871; dividends were paid for thirteen months, beginning on the 1st December, 1871, and ending 1st December, 1872, at the rate of one and a half per cent per month; the dividends were paid every month, as he supposed, out of the moneys in the hands of the company, from sales that were made in New York and other moneys applicable for that purpose.

Q. Have you the original papers executed by you on the 1st of December? A. Yes—my arrangement with Park, the paper referred to, was executed and sealed on the 1st of December, and referred to the exchange of the guarantee; the indorsements on the notes, according to his recollection, was in the handwriting of Park, and part in witness' handwriting; the first £500 he received from Bates he paid over to Park as his first payment on the shares received by witness from Park.

BUYING ON A "BULLED" MARKET.

Q. You had purchased a quantity of stock independent of these first shares received by you from Park? A. I had 300 shares allotted to me, but having no time to attend to it myself I allowed another party, Mr. Fisher, to take charge of it; part was sold at advance for our joint benefit; stimulated by that Fisher proposed to go into the purchase of 500 shares; he (witness) reluctantly consented, and, unfortunately, Fisher bought when the market was at its highest; that was in May, 1872; he paid £31 a share, and it was told subsequently at a very great loss; witness said he had no shares now, excepting the 475 shares, his original subscription.

Q. Looking at the paper of October 17, 1872, there is an indorsement there for £1,894 7s. 3d.; do you recollect what transaction that arose from? A. That was an accounting by Park to me as part of profits on some stock transaction he made on our joint account and which he gave me the benefit of; on the final settlement of balance, May, 1874, I was in New York on leave of absence to attend to some personal affairs, this among the rest; I was anxious to get a final settlement with Park; I borrowed some money in addition to the mortgage on my house and lot in Washington; paid part of the mortgage since—not all; Park still holds as collaterals a number of certificates of stock which he hoped to be able to redeem: the first knowledge I had of Fisher was in 1869, to whom I was then introduced in London; Fisher was a Vermonter residing in London and practising law there; subsequently became well acquainted with Fisher; travelled through a portion of England in company with him; we were at Oxford and Stratford-on-Avon together, and Fisher, when witness came to England as United States Minister, met him on his landing at Liverpool; had no transactions with Fisher in connection with the Emma Mine beyond the selling of the shares, but was connected with him in operating in Colorado—the Colorado Land Improvement Company; that was between 1869 and 1871; witness would explain the whole of that matter if necessary to this case.

Counsel—It is not necessary.

Witness (continuing)—I had more confidence in Fisher after their first acquaintance than afterwards; believed he had become somewhat dissipated before the close of his life.

A TILT BETWEEN COUNSEL.

Mr. Stoughton—It must have been a surprise to him to be drowned in water after that.

Mr. Chittenden—That is a very improper remark.

Mr. Stoughton—No more improper than the other—that he had become dissipated before the close of his life.

Mr. Beach—I don't see any reason why we (defendant's counsel) should take any exception to the abuse or improper remarks of counsel for the plaintiff. We have been treated to a good deal of it from the commencement of the trial. The remark in this instance is an imputation as uncalled for as it is unkind.

Mr. Stoughton—I throw myself on the Court and jury. I was really anxious to learn the extent of Mr. Schenck's confidence in Mr. Fisher and the cause of its withdrawal, and my remark was not dictated by unkindness.

Mr. Beach—Your remark was a scurrilous jest against a dead, a drowned man; that is just what I say of it, and what I mean.

Mr. Stoughton—I am sorry you should make such an observation.

Mr. Beach—You should be sorry that you deserved it. Your remark was not called forth from anything in the evidence before the Court.

Mr. Stoughton—It was called forth on the general remark of witness that Fisher had become dissipated before the close of his life, and that he had more confidence in the man in the earlier than in the latter part of his life. It was this that caused me to make the remark I did, with no unkindness whatever in it.

The examination was then resumed.

Q. You had not latterly the confidence in him you had at first? A. No; but that is all. I thought him a generous, kind-hearted man, with a great many good points about him; had no interest in the mine but those 475 shares, which I understood would be extinguished by the sale of the property.

Q. Did you understand them to be extinguished? (Objected to.)

The Court—This line of examination has been continued far enough. The answer was not responsive to the question. I will exclude further inquiry on this subject.

By Mr. Chittenden—Did you know Fisher's wife? A. I did.

Q. They were both lost on the steamship Atlantic? A. Yes.

Q. Was their position in London respectable? A. It was.

Q. Mrs. Fisher was the daughter of General Ripley? A. I understood so; in reference to the sale of some of Emma stock to me, Mr. Park was in considerable trouble for but which he had hoped would have been to my advantage, and he was anxious to get me out of the trouble as well as he could; Park's agent told me Mr. Park intended to do what he could to give me the benefit of his buying and selling the shares and in his own personal transactions in this business, but witness had not the slightest idea what was contemplated by Park in the way of benefit to him, or what the benefit was to be, till he received from Park an adjustment of the accounts and a statement of the sales of shares; whatever profit had accrued from these transactions was credited to him in fair proportion; after the 28th of November there was quite a number of telegrams relating to the title passing between Evarts on this side and Park on the other in reference to Mr. Evarts' opinion, and while this was going on—a period of a few days—the trustees waited for such certificates, which, if they should be satisfied with the title, would authorize them to pass over the title to the purchasers; the delay consequent upon passing over the title under these circumstances went over to the 1st of December, and before the final negotiation on that question closed it was then, according to my impression, the 30th of December.

DRAWING ME INTO THE CONCERN,

SILLIMAN'S COMPENSATION.

Q. Did you know Mr. Silliman? A. I never saw him; knew him by reputation.

Q. When the matter was first brought to your attention was it stated to you that there was an arrangement by which Professor Silliman was to examine and report on the mine? A. I was told that Professor Silliman was selected for that purpose.

Q. If it had been communicated to you that Park was to pay Silliman in advance for his examination and report would that have made any difference as to your opinion of the value of the property or the prospective product of the mine? A. I think not; I should naturally have supposed he would be well paid for going out to the mines to make the examination.

Q. Suppose you had been told, in view of the valuation of the mine, as you had been informed on that head, that Professor Silliman was to be paid $25,000 for that examination and report, would that have made any difference in your opinion of it? A. That is a hypothetical question, and I am not capable of replying as an expert; it would be hard to say whether such a figure would be too high or too low—comparing it with the professional fees of you gentlemen I should not suppose it was too much.

Oliver A. Gager was recalled, but nothing important to the case was elicited and the court adjourned to this morning at eleven o'clock A. M.

NEW JERSEY MUTUAL.

NOYES' BAIL NOT YET FIXED—STARTLING REVELATIONS EXPECTED—A MYSTERIOUS PACKAGE.

No decision has yet been rendered by Judge Depue in the Benjamin Noyes case upon the question of bail. Mr. John H. Kase, a well known Newark banker, and formerly a director in the Mutual Company, has been before the Grand Jury, and gave considerable testimony. To-day or to-morrow Mr. C. C. Lathrop, formerly Vice President of the company, will be called in, and it is expected that some matters will be laid bare showing a state of things disgraceful in the extreme.

A PRIZE PACKAGE.

Yesterday Daniel J. Noyes, the ex-attorney for the company, called at the office in Newark and handed to the clerk in charge a large package, tied with an ordinary string, which he said contained $350,000 worth of the late assets of the said company, and he desired a receipt for them. Mr. Kase, the clerk, assured him that as he knew nothing of the contents of the bundle, and had no right to act in the capacity of receiver, he could not give him the desired receipt. He could simply, he said, give him a receipt for a bundle purporting to contain the amount he named, and could only do that in an individual capacity. With that, however, he said he would be satisfied, as Governor Parker was absent, and the receipt was accordingly made in that shape and handed him. Governor Parker will be in town to-day, when the package will be opened and its contents ascertained.

THE COMPANY'S PAST HISTORY.

There are some points in the past history of the New Jersey Mutual that will demand considerable attention from Receiver Parker. When that company passed into the hands of the managers of the old Hope Mutual, and before the latter was reinsured by the former, the stockholders of the New Jersey were paid $150 000 for their stock, or a premium of fifty per cent. There was no money in the treasury of the Hope at the time, and the New Jersey Mutual stockholders were paid in mortgages or bonds belonging to their own policy holders. The question now arises, if the stock was thus paid for by a collusion between the officers of the two companies, and from the treasury of the New Jersey itself, is not the amount, with interest, recoverable from these stockholders for the benefit of the creditors? The entire consummation of this reinsurance between the Hope and New Jersey is considered questionable, and the Hope stockholders are now expecting to recover a portion of their property, pendente lite.

LIFE INSURANCE NOTES.

Within a day or two it is expected that Judge Westbrook will call up the Continental case for argument, when the questions of how to distribute the assets and who shall distribute them will be determined. Meanwhile Mr. William R. Grace, the present receiver, is holding in abeyance all matters of importance outside of routine duties.

Mr. Emerson W. Keys, formerly Assistant Bank Superintendent at Albany, has been selected to perform the actuarial duties pertaining to the affairs of the bankrupt North America Life Insurance Company. The appointment was made, as the law requires, by Receiver Pierson and sanctioned by the Insurance Superintendent. Mr. Keys will make a detailed calculation of the condition of the company with the object of determining the best disposition to be made of its affairs.

FLANKING CAMPBELL'S FOES.

It will be recollected that the Committee on Public Works of the Board of Aldermen, on motion of Alderman Tuomey, were directed to investigate certain charges against Commissioner Campbell. They held several sessions but did not make any report. The principal charge was that Mr. Campbell held two positions—that of Commissioner of Public Works and President of the Consolidation Coal Company. The ground has been taken from under the feet of the Aldermen in this particular, as Mr. Campbell now only holds one of the positions mentioned. The next point harped upon by the watchful city fathers was in reference to the appointment of Deputy Commissioner, who, it was alleged, is incapable of discharging the duties of his office. These charges were openly made by Mr. Tuomey in the Board.

At yesterday's meeting, in view of the fact that no report had been sent in by the Committee on Public Works, Alderman Simonson offered resolutions, which, after reciting the facts of the reference and the failure to report, concludes as follows:—

Resolved, That the preamble and resolutions adopted by this Board on the 8th of February, empowering the Committee on Public Works to investigate certain charges against Allan Campbell, the Commissioner of Public Works, and his deputy, contained in a preamble and resolutions presented in the Board on the 1st of February, 1877, and referred to said committee, be and are hereby annulled, rescinded and repealed; that the said Commissioner and his deputy are hereby exonerated and exculpated from the charges therein preferred or allegation therein contained; that the Committee on Public Works be and is hereby discharged from the further consideration of the subject, and that all the papers relating thereto be placed on file.

The resolutions were referred to the Committee on Public Works.

THE ALDERMEN AND THE "OTHER JOHN."

At a meeting of the Board of Aldermen yesterday Mr. Michael Tuomey, representative from the Nineteenth ward, rose to a question of privilege. He remarked that in a recent speech delivered by a certain State Senator the character of the Board had been impugned. Allusions had been made to a former $60,000 transaction for the purpose of lowering the character of the Aldermen in the eyes of the Legislature. "I understand," continued Alderman Tuomey, "that this Senator was himself the man who received the $60,000 and was the go-between in the transaction with the Aldermen. He it was who paid the money over for the purpose of having a certain head of a department confirmed. This confirmation took place when the old ring was in power. I want a committee appointed to investigate the matter."

This ended the affair, no action whatever being taken.

MUNICIPAL NOTES.

At the suggestion of Mr. Lewis the several committees of the Board of Aldermen have been empowered to visit the various departments and confer with the Commissioners so as to secure concert of action in the transaction of public business.

The resolution relative to reduction of teachers' salaries, which passed the Aldermen recently, has been withdrawn from the Mayor on motion of Alderman Shiels, in order to strike out the recommendation as to giving the Commissioners of Education exclusive control of their funds.

The petition of M. A. Brunham, who holds a patent for the construction of a depressed rapid transit road, for a hearing was received at yesterday's meeting of the Board of Aldermen. He states that his plan will secure a transfer of passengers from the City Hall to Harlem in fifteen minutes. The matter was referred to the Committee on Railroads.

Corporation Counsel Whitney has transmitted a bill to Albany at the request of the Common Council, which provides that among the Board of State Assessors shall be appointed a resident of New York city.

Mayor Ely has requested the Aldermen to pass an ordinance regulating the placing of calcium lights in the streets. The Law Committee has been directed to draft the necessary law.

William L. Morris, a lawyer, eighty-three years of age, who has been a commissioner of deeds for the past fifty-nine years, was yesterday reappointed by the Board of Aldermen. He received his first appointment from Governor De Witt Clinton.

The Park Commissioners have been requested by the Aldermen to inquire into the advisability of removing the present tar pavement from the carriage way in front of the City Hall and substituting therefor granite block pavement. The alteration is urged on the ground that the completion of the Brooklyn Bridge will necessitate the opening of a thoroughfare for vehicle travel across the City Hall Park.

Commissioner of Public Works Campbell has reported to the Board of Aldermen against the feasibility of using in this city the Liverpool system of preventing waste of water. He considers that such a plan would necessitate the tearing up of streets, laying new water mains and other expensive alterations.

A CONTESTED SURROGATESHIP.

The quo warranto proceedings in the suit brought by Abram H. Dailey against Walter L. Livingston to oust the latter from the office of Surrogate of Kings county, are progressing slowly. Yesterday a supplementary bill of particulars was served on the attorney for the respondent. The contestant was the regular democratic nominee for Surrogate last fall, and the present incumbent was the republican and Slocum candidate. The document setting forth the particulars of the case is voluminous and contains the names of voters by whom Mr. Dailey expects to prove his election to the office of Surrogate. The position is worth $10,000 per annum and the term is for six years.

A DOG-GONE SHAME.

John McShane, a boy five years old, residing at No. 101 Pearl street, Brooklyn, was bitten on the right cheek last evening by a dog. The animal was shot by a policeman of the Second precinct.

REFORMED CHURCH CLASSIS.

SPIRITUAL AND FINANCIAL CONDITION OF THE CHURCHES—PROPER USES OF CHURCH BUILDINGS.

The South Long Island Classis of the Reformed Church met yesterday morning in the church at Flatbush. After the call of the roll and the reading and approval of minutes, the Rev. Mr. Hill was chosen moderator, and the Rev. U. D. Gulick, the retiring moderator, preached a sermon on the Church based on the text:—"Who is she that looketh forth as the morning, fair as the morn, clear as the sun and terrible as an army with banners?"

At the close of the sermon the business of Classis was resumed, and Rev. A. M. Wyckoff was received from the Classis of Poughkeepsie. He is now laboring in Brooklyn. The new Brooklyn church was recommended to the Education Board for $75 for its parochial school; the South Church was recommended to the Domestic Mission Board for $450, and the East Reformed Church, now the Bedford Avenue Church, asked for $1,000 to help it out this year. While the corporation known as the East Reformed Church is still in existence, and as much responsible to the law as ever for what the law can get out of it, the Bedford Avenue Church has really superseded it, occupies its house of worship, called a pastor and promised him a salary of $2,000 a year, one-half of which they can raise, together with the running expenses of the church. Their application for $1,000 was referred to a committee to investigate as to the ability and necessity of the church for so large a sum. It was afterward allowed. The church at Canarsie which was organized last year asked for $250 to help pay its pastor, but was denied. The church has bought four lots, valued at $800, but which they get for $275, and they have pledges for $700 toward a building fund.

THE USES OF CHURCH BUILDINGS.

The special committee which was appointed to report the sense of the Classis on the uses to which church buildings should be put reported against all scenic, histrionic or mimic representations in them, and that they may properly be used for the worship of God and for the moral and spiritual enlightenment of the people, but their use for worldly amusements is contrary to the word of God and inconsistent with the practices of the Reformed Church. A discussion arose as to the limit of this resolution. If it prohibited concerts, stereopticon lectures and the like, brethren were ready to oppose it. But these things were not included in the minds of the committee to be prohibited, and being so understood, the resolution was adopted.

The Board of Publication was recommended to the churches of Classis for an annual collection. The report of the state of religion showed a good spiritual and financial condition of the churches. Two new churches were organized during the past year, and one, the New Utrecht Church has just closed the second centennial of its existence without debt and added forty-four to its membership during the past year.

Reports were received on Church extension, on assessments for Classis and other Church matters and an appropriate minute was adopted on the death of Rev. Henry R. Dickson.

The statistics of the churches are as follows:—

Churches.	Members.	Sunday Schools.	Contributions.
Brooklyn	453	596	$7,570
Flatbush	222	325	6,085
Flatbush Mission	31	30	—

Canarsie	69	95	310

After examination of the pastors and elders of the several churches on doctrines and discipline, providing for visitation of churches and some other routine business the Classis adjourned.

MISSIONARY CONVOCATION.

A quarterly meeting of the Southern Convocation of the Diocese of New York was held yesterday at St. James' (Protestant Episcopal) Church, Fordham. Divine services were conducted by the rector, Rev. J. N. Blanchard, assisted by Rev. Messrs. E. B. Wyatt, of Westchester, and B. Morgan, of Portchester. The sermon was preached by Rev. Joshua Morsell, of City Island. After the sacrament of the Lord's Supper had been administered the members of the Convocation repaired to the chapel, where the annual report was read and other business transacted. On motion it was resolved that the next Convocation be held at Pleasantville. Among the other clergymen present were Rev. C. S. Stephenson, of North New York; Rev. C. B. Brewster, of Rye; Rev. Isaac Van Winkle, of Cold Spring, and Rev. R. Mansfield, of Spring Valley.

CONFIRMATION.

The Right Rev. Horatio Potter, D. D., LL D., D. C. L., will administer the sacred rite of confirmation in St. Chrysostom's Chapel of Trinity Church, Thirty-ninth street, corner of Seventh avenue, this evening, at eight o'clock. The Rev. Morgan Dix, D. D., rector, will present the candidates.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH CONVOCATION.

The Jersey City Convocation of the Episcopal Church met yesterday at Christ Church, of which Rev. Dr. Mombert is pastor. Prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Putnam and Dean Abercrombie, after which the clergy proceeded to discuss the condition of the churches in the district. Rev. Dr. Mombert was congratulated for the excellent church work he had performed in Lafayette, where he established St. Peter's mission, and in connection therewith the Christ Church Guild. The church was handsomely decorated with flowers by the ladies of the parish. After the business meeting an address was delivered by Professor Seymour on the necessity of spiritual progress.

THE PRIESTHOOD.

ANNUAL ORDINATIONS AT WOODSTOCK COLLEGE—CONFERRING OF MINOR ORDERS.

[From the Baltimore Gazette, April 5.]

Yesterday the annual ordinations began at the Jesuit College at Woodstock. Right Rev. James Kane, Bishop of Wheeling, W. Va., officiated, owing to the ill health of Archbishop Bayley. Fourteen theological students received the order of subdeacon and forty of the philosophy class received minor orders. This class is the largest ever ordained at the college since its opening, nine years ago. They represented the three provinces of the United States, Maryland, Missouri and New York, and two in Europe, Naples and Turin, and their nationalities were:—United States, 7; Ireland, 1; Spain, 2, and Italy, 4. Their names are as follows:—Bartholomew Calzia, Orneedia, Italy; Thomas Ipina, Biscay, Spain; Joseph F. Rigge, Cincinnati; James A. McHugh, Philadelphia; Felix Cristobal, Burgos, Spain; Nicholass Russo, Ascoli, Italy; Edward V. Boursaud, Brooklyn, N. Y., a native of Baltimore; William Doherty, New York; Joseph M. Jerge, Buffalo; Francis Smith, New York; John W. Rover, Washington; Michael Kennedy, Limerick, Ireland; Antonio M. Mandalari, Reggio, Italy, and Joseph Sasia, Vanesea, Italy. To-day they will receive the order of deacon and to-morrow they will be elevated to the priesthood.

POPE PIUS IX.

LECTURE BY JOHN R. G. HASSARD BEFORE THE XAVIER UNION.

The rooms of the Xavier Union, at No. 20 West Twenty-seventh street, were well filled last night with the members of the Union and their friends, the occasion being a lecture on Pope Pius IX. by Mr. John R. G. Hassard. The opportuneness of the subject added interest to the lecture. Mr. Hassard very ably set forth the Pope's earnest efforts in the cause of true liberty and related many anecdotes of his private life comparatively unknown heretofore.

The lecturer declared that Pope Pius IX. not only surpassed all his predecessors in the length of his reign but he was illustrious above all other Popes of modern times in the importance of his labors. Two contrary movements had been in progress since he came to the throne—one a revolt against the divine authority, the other a consolidation of the authority of the Church over the minds of the faithful. One embraced the Holy Father's heroic life of constancy and suffering, the other his life of triumphant action.

THE REVOLUTION OF 1848.

The lecture was mainly occupied with the first branch of the subject, and might be called the story of the Pope and the revolution. After an elaborate review of the history and tendencies of the secret societies of Europe, and a survey of the political condition of Europe on the eve of the revolutions of 1848, the lecturer went on to show that the object of the Carbonari, the Society of Young Italy and similar organizations, was to destroy all public worship as well as existing political institutions and to establish everywhere a pagan democracy. He described the enthusiasm aroused all over the world by the first liberal measures of Pius IX. in 1846, and the devices of the Mazzinians to turn this popular feeling against the Pope's government. They had succeeded in driving the Pope to flight and establishing the Roman Republic, but that was speedily overthrown by the French troops. The secret societies next negotiated with Victor Emmanuel, and, in return for his attacks upon the Church, confiscation of Church property, suppression of religious orders and secularization of education, agreed to help him to the crown of Italy. Thus a part of the "pagan conspiracy" was carried out. Having overthrown the priests, he continued, the conspirators may be expected next to resume their plots against the kings, so that Victor Emanuel does not know which to dread the more to-day—the adversaries or the supporters of his government. On the other hand, although the Pope had lost his temporal power, he had accomplished a great work on the spiritual side of the Church by exposing the fallacies and illusions of the time, declaring the truths upon which Christian society is based, abolishing all differences of party within the Church, and bringing the episcopate to an absolute unanimity. Driven from his capital and despoiled of his goods, he was yet victor in his syllabus.

DIRT SCOWS ADRIFT.

A FLEET OF THE STREET CLEANING BUREAU'S BOATS SCATTERED BY A GALE—ALMOST A SERIOUS DISASTER.

Information was yesterday morning brought to Captain Gunner, of the Street Cleaning Bureau, that a serious accident had occurred in the lower bay to some of the scows employed to remove garbage. It seems that when off Coney Island the wind blew a gale, the sea rose, and the seven inch hawser which formed the tow line parted. At the same moment the scows rolling about in the heavy seas dashed against each other and some of their timbers smashed. Soon, however, they parted and drifted out to sea, carrying with them a number of Italian laborers. These at once became panic stricken, and in a frenzy of excitement rushed about the lumbering craft and seemed half disposed to leap into the sea. Some of them, perched upon the masses of dirt made signals of distress and crouched together, fearful every moment of being hurled into the water. At length some of the timbers on one of the scows gave way, and, a heavy sea striking it at the same moment, half overturned it. Some of the men were washed overboard, the rest clung tenaciously to the stout projecting timbers and rendered what assistance men in their terrified condition were able to give. The tug which had the scows in tow meantime raised her signals, and kept beating about, shrieking with her steam whistle for assistance. A number of tugs in the lower bay at this put out to sea, took in tow three of the scattered dirt boats and rescued the men who had been struggling in the water. The others were washed by the waves upon the Long Island and Jersey shores. This disaster, it is claimed, goes to show that the dumping of the street refuse outside of Sandy Hook is not as practicable as some supposed.

THE HEAD DUMPER'S REPORT.

Mr. David Stevens, the superintendent of dumps, yesterday made the following report of the matter to Captain Gunner:—

"I left with the tugboat M. M. Caleb, at the foot of East Seventeenth street, at half-past seven o'clock A. M. Picked up tow of five scows on East River—the last two at Stanton street at five minutes past nine o'clock A. M. to go to sea. The numbers of the scows were 5, 7, 39, 21, 15, and we reached Fort Hamilton at fifteen minutes past eleven o'clock A. M. I placed the hawser between each scow, and had reached the point directly opposite Coney Island, when all at once the wind blew heavy and the sea was very rough. I told the captain that it was best to make for Coney Island Bay, which he did, and just as we were turning in the bay the hawser broke, and before we could get the scows picked up they were outside of buoy No. 16. We started to go back, and for fifty minutes made no headway. Suddenly the centre timber of one of the scows broke off, leaving three adrift. At the same time the hawser connecting the three scows parted, and they drifted rapidly out to sea, with the men on board, for about three or four miles. We hoisted the signal of distress and blew the whistles for relief, and the tugs Crofort, William Burris and Gratitude came to our rescue. The tug Crofort was the first on hand. She got sixteen men off the scow which had capsized. The next—William Burris—made fast to the scow and brought it to Laight street with the men on her. The tug Gratitude made fast to a scow and took it to Jersey City. This scow was about half filled with water, and I took two men and a pump to put on her, but the captain would not let them come aboard, saying that he would take charge himself until the charges were paid. I had two of the largest scows and twenty-five men with the tug M. M. Caleb, and took them to Coney Island dock and made them fast with two hawsers each, one on the end, the other on the side of the dock. I had fifty-five men on the scows. I brought twenty-five to the Battery and put them off there, arriving at about five o'clock P. M. and leaving the tug M. M. Caleb to get water and coal.

DUMPING IN THE SOUND.

At the Pilot Commissioners' meeting yesterday complaint was made that on Monday evening, between five and six o'clock, the tugboat Robert Robertson dumped four scow loads of refuse in the Sound, beginning at Whitestone, L. I., and ending at Throgg's Neck. In corroboration of this complaint a letter was received from a passenger on a passing steamboat. The captain of the tug, however, denies the charge. The Police Commissioners have notified the Board of Pilots that, on evidence furnished by them, persons so detected will be prosecuted.

THE MAYOR AND STREET CLEANING.

Mayor Ely has not yet received any formal charges against the Police Commissioners. He acknowledges that he is ready and willing to take into consideration any specific statements that may be made to him relative to a dereliction of duty on the part of the Police Commissioners. He has not had an interview with a single delegation relative to the subject, but yesterday announced that he would make an engagement at any time with citizens desirous of making their grievances known to him in the matter. Mr. George Fox, one of the Fifteenth Ward Association, in his interview with Chief Clerk Hardy, stated that he was prepared to prove several allegations as to incompetency of the Police Commissioners in cleaning the streets. Mr. Hardy is Chief Clerk to the Mayor. He conveyed the substance of the conversation thus held to his chief, and Mr. Ely directed him to notify Mr. Fox and associates that it would be necessary for them to put their charges in writing. This was the condition of affairs yesterday as far as Mayor Ely is concerned.

THE COMMISSIONERS FRIGHTENED.

According to instructions given by General Smith and Commissioner Erhardt the captains of the different precincts made a personal inspection of the street cleaning gangs employed in removing the city dirt, and reported such men as seemed inefficient, useless or unable to work. The report was handed to Commissioners Wheeler and Nichols yesterday morning and forty laborers were named as unfit for duty. A complete change in the department is momentarily expected, and the Commissioners claim that they will spare no pains to make it as efficient as possible.

THE SCANLON MYSTERY.

The post-mortem examination of the body of Cornelius Scanlon, whom Officer Hatton on Monday morning found outside of No. 41 Mulberry street, suffering from injuries of which he died the same day at the Chambers Street Hospital, was made yesterday by Deputy Coroner Miller. Fracture of the rear part of the skull was the cause of death; but how this was sustained did not appear.

The Coroner's position in this affair is somewhat peculiar. When first reported the case was Coroner Flanagan's; but Coroner Woltman took charge of it, because the former had to go out of town. Woltman went down to the hospital to see the man, but he was dead. Yesterday Coroner Woltman went to the Fourteenth precinct station house and looked over the blotter. He found that Philip Franchanci, Felix Serevani, Angelo Jerevela, Elizabeth Scanlon and Catharine Fox had been arrested for feloniously assaulting Cornelius Scanlon. After the man's death the charge was changed to homicide. Now comes the queer part of the affair. The prisoners are in the Tombs, and will be examined by Judge Kilbreth to-day. Coroner Woltman yesterday said that he sent for Officer Hatton and questioned him in relation to the matter. The policeman said he had made no charges against the prisoners, nor has anybody else, so far as the Coroner knows. In fact, the matter, according to Coroner Woltman, is in this shape:—A man has died from having had his skull fractured; but there is no evidence, either in the form of complaint, affidavit or verbal allegation, before the Coroner, charging any one with having been in any way implicated or concerned in the infliction of the injuries. To-day the examination of the prisoners may bring the matter into shape.

A LAWYER IN TROUBLE.

Joseph P. Joachimsen, attorney-at-law, of No. 176 Broadway, was brought to the Tombs Police Court yesterday, charged by a former client named Michael Gross with obtaining money from him by trick and device. The amount alleged to have been thus obtained is $75. According to the complainant's affidavit it appears that about a year ago Gross and three other persons were arrested in Elizabeth, N. J., charged with the larceny of a wagon. Frank L. Kuntz became Gross' bondsman pending the trial, and Gross, to secure him, placed $1,200 in his hands. Joachimsen was retained to defend Gross and succeeded in virtually acquitting him, he being fined only $5. Gross when released looked to Kuntz for the $1,200, but Kuntz delayed payment by various excuses, finally paying him only about $400. To obtain the balance Gross brought an action and placed his case in Joachimsen's hands. On October 19, last year, Joachimsen informed his client that he had commenced proceedings for the recovery of the money in the Supreme Court at Newark. The case not coming to trial Gross became anxious, but was repeatedly assured by his lawyer that it was all right and had been delayed for various reasons. A number of telegrams were produced showing such assurances. Becoming tired of waiting Gross went to Mr. Hunt, another lawyer, who soon learned that proceedings had never been instituted as alleged. Prior to this Joachimsen had asked for and obtained from Gross the sum of $75. The prisoner pleaded not guilty and was held in $1,500 bail, which was promptly furnished.

ST. MARK'S HOTEL WAR.

The litigation going on for some time between Messrs. Crawford & Dempsey and Mrs. Olivia De Camp in relation to the possession of St. Mark's Hotel, on Staten Island, came up before Justice Corbitt, in Richmond county, yesterday, in a new phase. Already Judge Gilbert, of Kings county, had decided that Crawford & Dempsey had been unlawfully dispossessed and had ordered their restoration to possession by the Sheriff of Richmond county, but had, on the application of Mrs. De Camp's counsel, granted a stay of the execution of the writ for three days. While this stay was pending a new proceeding was commenced on the 5th inst. before Justice Corbitt to again dispossess Crawford & Dempsey. On the 7th inst. Judge Gilbert revoked his order staying proceedings, required Mrs. DeCamp to file a bond in $4,500 on appeal, and ordered the Sheriff to proceed forthwith to place Crawford & Dempsey in possession. On Saturday last they were put in possession by the Sheriff, but ten minutes thereafter Constable Cronin entered and put them out on a warrant issued by Justice Corbitt. This warrant was against Mrs. DeCamp, and was obtained at the suit of Mr. Talman, the owner of the premises, on the ground that Mrs. DeCamp was in default in a balance of rent to the extent of $500. This warrant being against Mrs. De Camp and not against Crawford & Dempsey, who were dispossessed under it, it was stated by counsel, at the hearing before Justice Corbitt, yesterday, that the proceedings by which his clients were thrown out after but ten minutes' possession were illegal and that suit would be commenced against both the owner and the constable for having taken forcible possession. On the call of the case before the Justice Mr. H. F. Averill submitted a counter affidavit on behalf of his clients, Crawford & Dempsey, in which all the allegations of the plaintiff, Mrs. De Camp, are denied. The statute under which these proceedings to dispossess were instituted provides for the use of the words "hold over," but the affidavits used in this case had the words "held over." This, it was claimed by Mr. Averill, was insufficient to give the Justice jurisdiction, but the Justice persisted in holding fast to his jurisdiction and the plaintiff not being prepared to proceed with the trial it was adjourned to the 20th inst.

WILLIAM M. TWEED.

Nothing new was developed in the Tweed matter yesterday. Mr. Townsend, the prisoner's counsel, did not come down town until late in the afternoon, and then seemed to be very much out of temper at the turn things have taken for his client. Mr. Wheeler H. Peckham, representative of the Attorney General, declares that no move has been made by the other side, so far as he knows, which will in any way affect the position of the "Boss," and from all that can be gleaned from the parties most interested it appears that the proposition drawn up by Mr. Townsend for the release of Mr. Tweed has been shelved. It has become evident to the "Boss" and his friends now that he must make an unconditional surrender of his property, and make a clean breast of his dealings with judges and legislators, or else lie in jail for the remainder of his life. Mr. Tweed's intimates allege that he is prepared to make any sacrifice to procure his freedom, and the only reason why he does not now comply with the requirements of the Attorney General is that many of the vouchers demanded are not now in his possession, and he is only waiting until they are recovered to tell all he knows, and emerge from "Castle Ludlow."

NORTH SIDE IMPROVEMENTS.

THE AMOUNT ALLOWED FOR SURVEYORS' FEES—HOW TO ECONOMIZE—AN ALDERMAN FOR THE TWENTY-THIRD AND TWENTY-FOURTH WARDS WANTED.

A meeting of the North Side Association was held yesterday afternoon at Morrisania, at which several interesting reports were read from the various committees. That of the Tax and Assessment Committee was valuable, as it explained how thousands of dollars could be saved by the city. The report contains tables which show the amounts allowed for surveyors' fees in street openings under the old system, and what the cost of the same work would be under the system established by the Department of Parks. In nineteen cases where the total amount allowed by the courts was $375,743 91 the estimated cost under the Park Department system was $176,560 02.

The report states that the committee brought this matter to the attention of Messrs. Butzel, Blumenthal and Lewis, commissioners for opening twelve new streets in the Twenty-third ward, and that these gentlemen paid no attention to the communication and appointed their own surveyor. After the reading of the report a gentleman stated that the surveyor appointed by the commission was the brother-in-law of the Judge who made the commission.

ASKING FOR REPRESENTATION.

The Executive Committee reported that an act had been drafted and forwarded to the Legislature authorizing the election of an Alderman from the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth wards. The reasons why the passage of such an act was desirable were set forth in a letter forwarded to Hon. William B. Woodin, chairman of the Committee on Cities. In the letter it is stated that no partisan considerations influence the petitioners; that it is essential to the well being of 45,000 citizens, occupying land equal in extent to three-quarters of Manhattan Island, to have some man from among them to look after their interests in the city government; that to be represented intelligently and honestly it is proper that the representative should be personally responsible to his constituents, and should be familiar with the peculiar needs of the section comprised in the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth wards. The committee also reported that an act has been forwarded to Albany authorizing the Commissioner of Public Works to expend not more than $300,000 in laying pipes and doing such other things as may be necessary for the distribution of Croton water for the extinguishment of fires and other uses in the annexed district.

It was suggested in the report of the Committee on Harlem River that the construction of a bridge over the river at 138th street and Madison avenue be asked for immediately, as the assessment for the same has already been paid to the city.

ANTI-RAPID TRANSIT.

A large number of property owners and taxpayers have sent a protest to Albany against the building of a steam railroad on any of the streets within the district bounded by Broadway and South street and south of Fulton street. In it they say:—

Within this section the principal financial and commercial business of the city is conducted, especially in cotton, coffee, tea, sugar, &c., for the sale of which articles it is absolutely necessary to have unobstructed light. The building of an elevated railroad on these crowded and extremely narrow streets, would drive millions of business from long established localities, and reduce the value of many of the finest and most costly office buildings to such an extent as to amount almost to confiscation. The city would lose at least one-half the taxable value of this property, and in case of fire the obstruction caused by an elevated railroad in streets as narrow as Pearl (the proposed route) might endanger the safety of the whole lower part of the city. We consider the taking of such streets for a steam railroad as wholly without warrant of law or equity, and protest against a monopoly being allowed, under pretence of public good, to obtain control of our city thoroughfares for their own benefit, to the incalculable injury of property and business.

JAMES HOWIE'S MONEY.

Coroner Simms, of Brooklyn, yesterday turned over to Algernon S. Sullivan, Public Administrator of New York, the $6,000 in government bonds which were taken from the body of James Howie, on Sunday morning last, when the corpse was recovered from the river at the foot of Gold street. The Coroner has received several letters from persons who pretend to have claims for money due them from the deceased, but as most of the letters are evidently fraudulent the Coroner will take no steps to liquidate the alleged bills.

REAL ESTATE.

The sales at the Real Estate Exchange, No. 111 Broadway, yesterday, were numerously attended and a large number of parcels were sold, chiefly to the plaintiffs in foreclosure proceedings. The sales were as follows:—

OUR COMPLAINT BOOK.

RECKLESS BLASTING.

To the Editor of the Herald:—

We desire to call attention to the manner of blasting out the rock on the Riverside Park at Seventy-second street. At every blast the rock flies in every direction, endangering the lives of the poor people who live in the vicinity and of the passengers in the coaches of the Hudson River Railroad. L.

MILITIA DRILLING.

To the Editor of the Herald:—

"Kept Out," in his remarks on militia exclusiveness, is really in order. Militia regiment armories should be open to visitors. I would recommend the Twenty-second not to be afraid of being seen at drill.

DISBANDED VOLUNTEER.

FOR THE PARK COMMISSIONERS.

To the Editor of the Herald:—

I noticed a few weeks since a reader of the Herald was in favor of having "football grounds." I myself am in favor of it also, and I think if football grounds could be provided somewhere in the upper part of New York it would be a great advantage to our school boys, giving them plenty of sport and healthful exercise. E. G.

HARD WORKED BOYS.

To the Editor of the Herald:—

I would like to complain in behalf of boys who work in business houses down town. Some have to work from seven A. M. to nine P. M. for $2 a week. C. P.

AN UNSAFE AND UNHEALTHY ARMORY.

To the Editor of the Herald:—

The complaint of a Sixty-ninth man in the Herald of Monday is to the point. The building is in a dilapidated condition, unhealthy and unfitted for an armory. What is the matter with Colonel Cavanagh that he does not have this evil remedied? The Inspector of Buildings, I am sure, would not allow any number of men to drill there if he knew of its unsafe condition. The Board of Health ought to pay a visit there soon, or the mortality in the neighborhood of Grand, Ludlow and Essex streets will be largely increased during the coming summer. CORPORAL.

IMITATION BUTTER.

To the Editor of the Herald:—

I see another complaint about imitation butter. Is there not any remedy to stop this fraud, or what interest have some of our health officials in the concern? Why not abate the nuisance in Forty-eighth street, which has already caused so much sickness in that locality? W. O. HAYS.

FIREMEN'S FAMILIARITY.

To the Editor of the Herald:—

Can you inform me if there is any way in which the offensive conduct of some of the men attached to the fire engine in East Broadway can be put a stop to? Every evening, as the working girls are passing by, they are subject to offensive and insulting remarks. Such expressions as "There goes my darling;" "Say, pet;" "How is it now, son," may be amusing to these official-clad men, but is distressing to the innocent working girl and highly offensive to me.

INDIGNANT PARENT.

BLOOD AND THUNDER.

To the Editor of the Herald:—

I want to protest against those "literary" (?) weekly papers that corrupt the minds of our youth. According to the late police report quite a number of boys last month in this city and Brooklyn ran away from their homes by false impressions made on their minds through reading those stories. The influence which such papers have on the minds of thoughtless girls who read them is still more baneful. It is therefore the duty of all parents to prevent their children from reading such papers if they desire to have honest and virtuous children. LUMBARDO.

SWEEPING THE FERRY CABINS.

To the Editor of the Herald:—

Permit me to notify the officers of the Catharine Ferry Company of the wrong done to passengers in having their boats swept and dusted while they (the passengers) are going aboard. Frequently the ladies' cabin is so filled with dust that many prefer, even on a cold morning, to remain outside on the deck, and those who do enter are obliged to be in a draught caused by the doors of the cabin being fastened back to allow the dust to escape. This can and ought to be remedied.

TREBLAX.

THE SPITZ IN THE TENEMENTS.

To the Editor of the Herald:—

Will you, in the interest of suffering humanity, again urge on our City Fathers the propriety of effecting some legislation against the Spitz dog? This is more especially in the interest of people residing in the crowded tenements, where one family, in their desire to retain a favorite Spitz, imperils the lives of probably twenty or thirty children as well as adults. In the mansion in which I reside two of these dogs are allowed to prowl around after dark through the house, and, should some unfortunate traveller be called down stairs and step on one of them, he receives an unpleasant recognition. Why cannot we at least compel landlords to refuse tenants who are desirous of keeping them? B. V. T.

FOR THE ENEMIES OF RAPID TRANSIT.

To the Editor of the Herald:—

I wish to call attention to some of the evils to which we workmen living on the east side are constantly subjected. In the first place, we are compelled, through the avarice of the combined Landlords' Association, to permit ourselves to be packed in crowded tenement houses like sardines, at outrageous prices for miserable accommodations, where their long continued recklessness as to sanitary measures have so thoroughly impregnated the apartments that the little we may be able to save from our already meagre earnings is swept away by the physician and the druggist, whose services are required to preserve the health of our families. It seems to be useless to appeal to the Board of Health. If we demur and make any attempt to ameliorate our condition by seeking a home in the rural districts, we are compelled to travel long distances at great expense of time and money. If we make the venture, as many of my old neighbors have done in anticipation of the success of rapid transit, there again we are checkmated by some of our mis-representatives at Albany, who apparently are so delighted with the air we are forced to breathe.

Oh, would that these legislative leeches who have decided we shall not enjoy the privilege of rapid transit might be caged in the abominable smells we enjoy, until they fully appreciated the benefits of tenement house life on the east side!

AN EAST SIDE WORKMAN.

STREET ANNOYANCES.

"J." makes a suggestion. He says:—"Let's hang the Street Cleaning Commissioners and get some new ones."

"J. K." would like to make a complaint with regard to signs across the sidewalks. He had a sign up some few months ago and was compelled to take it down by the Attorney for the Corporation. He noticed in the same ward a great many other signs hanging.

"Suffering Merchant" says that Eleventh avenue has not been cleaned since last fall. He describes it as four inches deep with filth.

"Citizen" writes that there is a large hole in the street opposite Fox Brothers', in Washington square, which is dangerous to life and limb, and has been that way for the last three months.

"O." informs us that scows of garbage now lie at the foot of 100th street, East River, subject to emptying; while at Ninety-ninth street, Second avenue, and at 103d street and Third avenue, are large signs painted "Free Dump," where garbage and rubbish can be found in its primitive state.

"Knickerbocker" argues that one of the results of the long neglected condition of our streets is that having gone knee deep in mud we are now being blinded and choked with dust. He finds it a consolation to know that measures are being taken to prefer charges against the Street Cleaning Bureau.

"Suffering Humanity" says he can positively assert that the streets above Forty-second street have not been swept since January 1, 1877, and that the residents and taxpayers fail to see a sign of any pavement except that of the sidewalks, as the dirt is so thick that the streets are about as soft and dusty as country roads. The garbage and ashes are collected by fits and starts, and the people, in desperation, make a habit of emptying their ash barrels into the streets.

"L. B. N." complains that her efforts at housecleaning are completely frustrated whenever a window is opened by the cloud of dust that immediately enters. She don't believe in sprinkling the streets now, for it might with the aid of a hot sun breed a pestilence from the filth.

"J. R." asks space for his complaint for the sake of the little children that are sick from the filth and accumulation of dirt and garbage in Thirty-ninth street, between Ninth and Tenth avenues. He says the stench is insufferable, and after a few warm days the death rate will be the same as in the hot days of July and August. He says:—"We have not had our street swept since November, and, for God's sake, send your sweeping brigade, as a couple of hours' work will save a good many dollars to the poor people for physicians' aid."

"C. I. K." inquires whether there is not a law for preventing the obstruction of sidewalks from gutter to a certain given line from lot. He thinks it would also aid the same purpose to apply a somewhat similar rule to the centre of the streets. He says he refers to downtown trucks that are placed in uptown streets to be there kept over night and Sundays. In some of our passable and even good neighborhoods in the central location of the city, he declares, the passage of the street is barred by large moving downtown trucks, backed and anchored against the sidewalk, and thus occupying fully one-half of the street and scarcely permitting a vehicle of ordinary size to drive through between them and the opposite gutter. On this score he particularly cites the block between Sixth and Seventh avenues, in Twentieth street.

THE COURTS.

A Penitent Milkman Imploring the Milk of Judicial Kindness.

A COCKNEY TAR OUT OF HIS DEPTH.

Military Obligations of Disbanded Militia Companies.

WILL OF THE CENTENARIAN LAHRBUSH

The unexpectedly severe penalties imposed upon milkmen acknowledging the soft impeachment of watering their milk do not seem to be relished by all of the derelict lacteal vendors. Moses B. Polinsky, who pleaded guilty to the indictment of selling watered milk, and was sentenced by Judge Gildersleeve to pay a fine of $200, and also to thirty days' imprisonment in the Penitentiary, was yesterday brought before Judge Donohue, in Supreme Court, Chambers, on writs of habeas corpus and certiorari, sued out with a view to effect his discharge from the Penitentiary. Mr. Hugh Coleman, counsel for Polinsky, made quite an elaborate argument in the case. He insisted that the penalty imposed by the Court was clearly in violation of the Laws of 1862, chapter 467, as amended, Laws of 1864, chapter 544, and all the acts amending the same; that the only penalty which the Court could have imposed was a fine of $50, and if the fine was not paid then imprisonment in the Penitentiary for thirty days; that the law in the case simply provides that any person or persons who shall knowingly sell or exchange, or expose for sale or exchange any impure, adulterated or unwholesome milk shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall be punished by a fine of not less than $50 for each and every offence, and if the fine is not paid shall be imprisoned for not less than thirty days in the Penitentiary or County Jail, or until said fine shall be paid; that no power exists in the Court to impose both punishments; that it must exhaust one penalty in the case alluded to before it can resort to the other; that a statute points out the terms of the penalty and it must be strictly pursued, and that whenever a statute creates an offence and expressly provides a punishment the statutory provisions must be followed out strictly and expressly. He then went on to say that in two cases which he had before Justice Davis in this Court in 1873 the same identical question was argued, and Judge Davis decided that the Court of Special Sessions or any other Court had no power to inflict the punishment of fine and imprisonment at the same time that the first punishment would have to be inflicted, and if the prisoner refused to pay such fine then the duty of the Court was to impose the imprisonment. He then added that if the prisoner has been convicted of a former like offence yet that cannot militate against him in this question, as the statute does not make any provision applicable to the prisoner Polinsky. As to the Board of Health, he claimed that it has no power to pass any ordinance making a misdemeanor or creating an offence where the Legislature has already created an offence of a like nature, the Legislature being the higher power and the acts of the Board of Health being subordinate to the acts of the Legislature. Assistant District Attorney Tracey made an elaborate reply, combatting strenuously the various points raised by the opposing counsel. He cited a statute making such violation of the Board of Health ordinances a misdemeanor, and therefore punishable by fine and imprisonment. Judge Donohue took the papers, stating that he would render his decision to-day.

HIS FIRST TRICK AT THE WHEEL.

A case of an amusing character, in the light of the contradictory nature of the evidence and the manner of testifying by the principal witness, came up for trial yesterday before Judge Sheridan, of the Marine Court. It was a seaman's case, the complainant being James E. Lowe, a sailor on board the American ship Southern Chief, and Captain Howard M. Higgin the defendant. The suit was brought to recover $1,000 for alleged assault and battery on the high seas. The defendant, as he appeared in court, was an object of some wonderment to the members of the Bar present and to the crowded room generally. He stood six feet five and a half inches in his stocking feet, and weighed 265 pounds avoirdupois, and withal as straight and erect as the pines in the forests of his native State, Maine. The plaintiff gave his testimony in the purest cockney and amused the Court immensely with his reckless treatment of the Queen's English. He said he joined the ship at Liverpool on the 3d of March last.

"Please state," asked the counsel, "the circumstances of the assault."

"On the 7th, it being my watch," he replied, "I took my second 'trick' at the w'eel; they were then hout four days; the weather was 'azy and the wind hunsteady; the w'eel jerked about; Captain 'iggins came haft and hasked me a-what I was a-doing with the ship; hi answered, 'Nothen, zur;' he told me to steer close to the wind; I 'ad the sails a-shaking, he suddenly takes a 'old of my nose; then he lets me 'ave an 'it in the heye, and another in my ribs that knocked the wind a'most outer me; then the mate 'e comes haft, and the captain says to him if hever I comes a'near the w'eel again to take a club and club my 'ed hoff."

"What is the difficulty with your nose?" pursued the counsel.

"Ah, no difficulty," replied the witness, looking bewildered and greatly puzzled, and after drawing a long breath continuing, "no difficulty as hi knows of."

"After the captain pulled your nose?"

"Ah, halter that hit wasn't as hit orter to be."

Four witnesses swore that they saw the plaintiff immediately after the alleged ill usage and that he presented a black eye and that he complained of sore ribs. "What was the difficulty with his nose?" asked the counsel. "I didn't know of any difficulty he had with his nose," answered the witness; "the only difficulty he had was with the captain." For the defence the captain swore he never touched or laid a hand upon the complainant during the whole voyage. Four witnesses swore that they remembered the 7th of March at sea; saw the plaintiff and didn't observe as much as a scratch upon and never heard him complain of his ribs or that he had been abused by the captain, and knew nothing about the difficulty about his nose. The jury were out but a short time and brought in a verdict for the defendant.

IMPORTANT TO MILITIAMEN.

There has already been published in the Herald the fact of the disbanding of Company A, of the Seventy-first militia regiment, by its Colonel. An appeal to the Courts, since made in the case, promises to settle a question of no small importance to members of our militia regiments. Some of the members of the disbanded company claim that through its disbandment they are no longer members of the regiment. It will be understood that the reason of the disbanding of the company was the fact of the membership of the company having been reduced to below forty-six, the minimum number required to complete a company's organization. Upon the disbanding of the company its late members were consigned to other companies of the regiment. The determination now is to bring the matter to a legal test whether such disbanding of the company absolves its members from further military duty. Among those refusing to do duty in any other company was John Starch. This recusant member was accordingly fined for non-attention to his military duties, and in default of payment of such fine was lodged in Ludlow Street Jail. A writ of habeas corpus has been procured, and through proceedings under such writ it is proposed to determine the question. It is claimed on the one hand that the colonel, having disbanded a company, has no longer any jurisdiction over the disbanded members, and consequently cannot compel them to do their duty. On the other hand, it is insisted that by an act of the Legislature a colonel of a regiment has power to disband any company when below the minimum number and assign the members to other companies. The case was to have been argued yesterday before Judge Donohue, but owing to the engagement of counsel was postponed until to-morrow.

COUPON BONDS QUANDARY.

Ferdinand P. Dempfil is the owner of certain first mortgage bonds, with coupons attached, of the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern Railway Company. In an affidavit submitted yesterday to Judge Donohue he states that Mr. Henry G. Marquand, Vice President of the Union Trust Company, told him that he understood that there was now on deposit in the Union Trust Company some $12,000, the proceeds of the sale of some of the mortgaged lands of the railway upon which the bonds in question were issued; that he requested Mr. Marquand to ask Mr. Edward King, President of the Union Trust Company, if such money could be applied to the payment of the coupons, and that Mr. King told him that he did not see why this could not be done; but he preferred first to ask counsel about it. Mr. Dempfil states, further, that Mr. Thomas Allen, President of the railway company, told him that there had been a sale of some of the mortgaged lands, and that the proceeds of such sale had been placed in the hands of the trust company for the purpose of paying off the bonds and coupons. Mr. King, however, makes affidavit that there is no money or other property of the railway company in the hands of the trust company, and that the latter is not indebted to the railway company in any sum. As the matter appears a little complicated, and with a view to get at the truth, Judge Donohue yesterday granted an order to show cause why some officer of the Union Trust Company should not be examined as to the facts of the case. This order was made returnable to-morrow.

THE VETERAN LAHRBUSH'S WILL.

Frederick Lahrbush, the veteran who died a few days ago at the patriarchal age of 111 years, made a will on the 26th June, 1871, when he was, according to his own statement at the time, 105 years of age. The will then made was yesterday admitted to probate by Surrogate Calvin. In it he bequeathed to Eliza McGovern, his aged and faithful housekeeper for many years, the sum of $500. The remainder of his accumulations he bequeaths to the rector, church warden and vestrymen of the Church of the Ascension for the use of the church. The executors are Mr. Edward J. Jaffray and Mr. James M. Browne. A codicil was added to the will in which the chivalric old soldier says:—"In addition to the $500 given in the body of the will to Eliza McGovern I, in consequence of many years of devotion and fidelity to me, give and bequeath to the said Eliza McGovern all my household furniture of every kind and description contained in my apartments No. 513 Third avenue." The deceased leaves no next of kin of any degree.

SUMMARY OF LAW CASES.

Owen Fay was yesterday convicted on a charge of passing a ten dollar counterfeit note on the Lafayette National Bank of Indiana. He was brought before Commissioner Shields, and held in default of $500 bail.

Judge Donohue has set aside the sale of the property in Brooklyn included in the assets of the Mechanics and Tradesmen's Savings Institution, of which mention was made in yesterday's Herald. The ground of the order was that the property was sold too low.

Before Judge Van Brunt, holding Supreme Court, Circuit, there was tried, yesterday, a suit brought by Moses J. Moody and James R. Calfair against Robert L. Pell to recover on a note for $10,000. The defence was no consideration, and this fact being substantiated to the satisfaction of the jury a verdict was given for the defendant.

A suit brought by J. Weyman Jones against George L. Kent and others for an accounting and to enforce an alleged trust was yesterday tried before Judge Sanford, in the Superior Court, and submitted. The suit grew out of the sale of 2,000 shares of the St. Joseph Lead Company to E. Rockwell, in 1864, for $6,000 and half of any profits that might arise on the sale of the stock.

Among those arrested as disorderly persons in the recent nocturnal raid in the Eighth ward were Maria Smith and Sophia Jones, two colored women. They were each locked up in the Tombs, not being able to pay the $10 fine imposed. Having been locked up ten days, Judge Donohue, on having his attention called to the case yesterday, and on representation of Colonel Spencer, their counsel, that they were respectable washerwomen, ordered their discharge.

Augusta Wall, a young lady, eighteen years of age, has, through her guardian, Carl Wall, brought a suit against Moritz Schwab to recover damages for alleged seduction under promise of marriage. She charges that Schwab seduced her last July at No. 618 Eighth avenue, and that a child has since been born. She asserts further that at the time he promised to marry her within a reasonable time, which he now refuses to do, but wants to give her a sum of money in settlement. Chief Justice Daly, of the Court of Common Pleas, yesterday appointed Carl Wall, her father, as her guardian ad litem.

In the matter of the contested will case of the late Judge Connolly testimony was resumed yesterday before Surrogate Calvin. The case for the contestants having closed at the last meeting that of the proponents of the will was proceeded with. The testimony was directed mainly to the contradiction of the witnesses of the principal contestant, the daughter of the deceased. Several witnesses testified that they had known the deceased Judge as a political leader, as a public man and as a friend socially, and that in every phase of life he never could be charged with having been of noticeable intemperate habits.

Henry Hoffman has brought a suit by his guardian, Mina Hoffman, against the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company, to recover $25,000 damages for injuries sustained. The complaint states that Henry Hoffman, then an infant about seven years of age, got on one of defendant's cars attached to the Yonkers train to ride from about Thirty-ninth street to Forty-fourth street; that while the car was in motion the conductor carelessly pushed the plaintiff off the car. He fell and the rear wheels of the car passed over his leg, crushing and mutilating it to such an extent as to render amputation necessary. The defence is a general denial. The trial of the case was commenced yesterday before Judge Speir in the Superior Court. Messrs. Nelson Smith and Leavitt appear for the plaintiff and Mr. Frank Loomis for the defendant.

DECISIONS.

Hewitt vs. Ping; Arnold vs. Serrell; Society for the Reformation of Juvenile Delinquents vs. Bernet.—Motions granted.

Mott vs. Mott; Listman vs. Blant.—Motions denied.

Saymisch vs. Saymisch.—Motion denied, with leave to renew.

Jacobs vs. Miller.—Motion denied. See memorandum.

Eliot vs. King.—Motion denied. I do not think the order should be made until pending appeals be disposed of.

Hart vs. Meyers; Michel vs. Scheey.—I desire to see counsel.

Melzer vs. Melzer.—Reference ordered.

Janes vs. Borrowes.—Examination must proceed.

Stone vs. Torrey.—Let the party be examined.

By Judge Lawrence.

Murray Hill Bank vs. Smith.—The affidavit was not sufficient to warrant the granting of the order. The statement of the cause of action does not appear to be properly stated. But even if it be conceded that the cause of action is sufficiently stated the proof of the exercise of due diligence is finding the defendant within this State, and as to the non-residence of the defendant is entirely defective. The motion is, therefore, granted. (Bixby vs. Smith 3, Hun, 60.)

SUPREME COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

Hawkins vs. Huerstel.—Motion to open default granted.

GENERAL SESSIONS—PART 1.

Before Recorder Hackett.

SOUR GRAPES.

A respectable looking gentleman, named Frederick Hennsler, residing at Mott Haven, was arraigned for trial yesterday under peculiar circumstances. Mr. Hennsler, who is well and favorably known in musical circles and Professor at the Blind Asylum, is the proprietor of a very picturesque garden, teeming, in the summer time, with beautiful flowers and prodigious bunches of delicious grapes. His numerous friends enjoy these sights as well as his hospitality, and his grapes are said to be as sweet and acceptable as the voice of a new tenor who learns more than the high C. But the grapes could not dangle so temptingly in the noonday sun without arresting the attention of envious passers by, whose mouths watered, so to speak, as the luscious fruit almost invited acquaintance. The result was that a horde of little pilferers were always in the neighborhood and gave the proprietor but little rest. His pedestrian exercises through his garden were frequent, and as he was known to be good natured the lads were bold and unscrupulous. Mr. Hennsler had another enemy in the plump little sparrows, which used to make havoc all round, and by way of combining sport with pleasure he procured a gun which once in a while he filled with grains of shot and perforated the winged invaders. But the boys were insatiable, and would have the grapes at all hazards, and, despite many warnings, continued their plundering career. It happened on the 2d of September last that Mr. Hennsler spied a youth named Louis Grener revelling in his garden, and, thinking to frighten him, picked up his gun, and after giving sufficient warning fired at a considerable distance away. Some of the shot entered the boy's leg, but he was, nevertheless, able to get over the fence nine feet high and go about his business. The boy, however, made a complaint, and Mr. Hennsler was placed under arrest, and yesterday, as already intimated, was arraigned for trial. The complainant testified that he got over the fence, intending to appropriate the grapes, when he was reminded of Mr. Hennsler's whereabouts by the perforation of his leg. In response to Mr William F. Kintzing, his counsel, the defendant stated that his place at Mott Haven was infested by thieves, and that his shrubbery had almost been destroyed by their depredations in broad daylight. He was over forty yards away when he fired the shot, and emphatically asserted that he did not intend to hit the boy, his object being simply to frighten him. Mr. Kintzing then examined a number of witnesses as to the good character of the accused, among them being Mr. Augustus Schell and Mr. Waite, Superintendent of the Blind Asylum, who gave ample testimony of his peaceful disposition. The jury promptly acquitted Mr. Hennsler, who left the court with the hope that in future his grapes would be let alone.

A RECEIVER OVERHAULED.

Robert Jackson, of No. 231 Mott street, a brass moulder, was arraigned for trial by Assistant District Attorney Herring, charged with receiving stolen goods. On the 1st of April the premises of Jane McGuerin were broken into and robbed of a quantity of clothing. Detective Slevin, of the Fifteenth precinct, traced the stolen property to the prisoner, who was yesterday convicted. The Recorder sentenced him for the term of three years in the State Prison.

THE WRONG MAN.

Nicholas Miller charged one Gotleib Steller, a milk pedler, with stealing $52 from his saloon on the 22d of March last. Miller swore that he counted his money and placed it on a shelf under a table, and that no other person but the prisoner was in the place from the counting to the missing of the money. In reply to his counsel, Mr. John O. Mott, the prisoner testified that he did not take the money, and witnesses were produced to prove an excellent character for the accused. Testimony was also adduced to show that the complainant had stated that he was not sure whether he had placed the money there or whether he had lost it. The jury acquitted the prisoner.

GENERAL SESSIONS—PART 2.

Before Judge Sutherland.

PATRICK MAHONEY'S FIGHT.

There was arraigned for trial yesterday by Assistant District Attorney Rollins a somewhat belligerent individual named Patrick Mahoney, who was charged with assaulting his sister-in-law, Bridget Donnelly. On the 16th of March the accused, who lives at No. 16 Washington street, in company with the complainant's husband, went out for their "bitters," having, in company with others, disposed of two quarts of whiskey at fifty cents a quart the night before. When he returned he was naturally irritated, but his ire was considerably increased when he found the ladies disposing of what remained of the whiskey which had been carefully stowed away for future discussion. He commenced an attack on his better half, and when the complainant, who was her sister, attempted to interfere in her behalf, he seized a small axe and inflicted two slight wounds. From the evidence in the case it would seem there was a general mêlée in which the fair sex took a prominent part. Mahoney was found guilty of assault, and Judge Sutherland sent him to the Penitentiary for eight months.

PLEAS AND SENTENCES.

Wallace C. Laduc pleaded guilty to the charge of stealing $30 worth of clothing from Arthur Purt, of No. 411 Seventh avenue, and was sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment.

Albert Albert, who gave his residence as the New England Hotel, pleaded guilty to forgery in the third degree, having on the 17th of March last presented to Thomas O. Young, of No. 113 East Eighty-second street, a forged document, on the strength of which he obtained $15 commission. He was sent to the State Prison for one year and six months.

Three youths, named James Dunlap, Henry Zinglar and John Harney, carried off two coats from in front of the store of Jackson M. Wawger, No. 36 Fourth avenue, on the 4th inst. They pleaded guilty and were sent to the State Prison each for the term of one year.

UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT.

Washington, D. C., April 9, 1877.

No. 211. First National Bank of Washington vs. Whitman—Error to the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia.—This was an action to recover upon a draft of the Treasurer of the United States drawn in favor of the intestate of the defendant in error, who sues as administrator. The claim was that the bank had paid it to parties not authorized to receive it. The judgment was for the administrator, and it is here maintained that the bank was not responsible, as it was acting as the mere agent of the United States; that the Treasurer was bound to know the signature of his payee, which was entirely unknown to the bank. It is also said that the suit could not have been maintained by the original plaintiff and cannot be by the administrator. Riddle & Miller for plaintiff in error and Shellabarger & Wilson for defendant.

RUMSELLERS, BEWARE!

A LEGAL BOMBSHELL AMONG THE LIQUOR DEALERS—LICENSES OF NO VALUE—NEW LEGISLATION NEEDED—A TEMPERANCE CRUSADE PROMISED.

A case of general interest was determined yesterday in the Court of General Sessions, Judge Sutherland presiding. The recent decision rendered by the Court of Appeals as to the power of the Board of Excise Commissioners to issue certain licenses has naturally raised a commotion, and will doubtless result in the adoption of some measure by the Legislature that will meet the pending difficulty. It would appear that some years ago Mr. W. H. Mundy, a lawyer, insisted that the Board of Excise had not the power to grant licenses to saloon keepers to sell intoxicating liquors other than ale and beer to be drunk on the premises. Legal points were prepared on the subject, and, for the purpose of testing the matter, an application was made to Judge Wandell at the Tombs for the arrest of the Commissioners of Excise. No immediate action was taken, and later Mr. Mundy made a similar application before Judge Morgan, the complaint being finally dismissed. With considerable persistency Mr. Mundy then appeared before Judge Wheeler at Fordham and lodged a complaint against James Gibney for selling liquor drunk on his premises by way of testing the question at issue. Gibney was held under bail to await trial. The legal points taken were finally sustained by the Court of Appeals. It was argued that as far back as the government of the New Netherlands in the seventeenth century an excise law was passed confining the sale of liquors to be drunk on the premises to innkeepers, and giving the privilege to sell small measure to be carried away to storekeepers. It was further claimed that this distinction had been maintained with the exception of one or two short intervals up to the year 1855. The law under which the defendant Gibney was indicted was passed in 1857. The old policy of the law was revived by this act, which continued in full force throughout the State until 1866. In that year the Legislature enacted what was known as the "Beer law," which gave boards of excise the power to license any person to sell beer to be drunk on the premises. In the year 1886 the Metropolitan Excise law was passed allowing licenses to be granted to "any persons of good moral character," but did not refer to drinking on the premises. It would seem that this law applied to the Metropolitan Police district except Westchester county, the law of 1857 being still in force throughout the balance of the State. In 1870 a new law was passed, which was almost identical with the Metropolitan Excise law, and embodied to a great extent the law of 1857, "except such parts as were inconsistent" with the law of 1870. Here the difficulty commenced, and the question soon suggested itself as to what portions of the law of 1857 were inconsistent with the law of 1870. It was claimed by Mr. Mundy that the law of 1857 created two kinds of licenses—one an innkeeper's license, to sell liquor to be drunk on the premises; the other a storekeeper's license to sell, but not to be drunk on the premises. It was further claimed that the law of 1870 permitting licenses to "any persons of good moral character," being silent on the subject of drinking on the premises, did not grant the privilege. It was also urged that the law of 1857 forbade it, and that that law was re-enacted and made part of the law of 1870. The construction of this law as thus presented has been upheld by the Court of Appeals, and Mr. Mundy has therefore carried his point. The case taken to the General Sessions was a test one, and as already suggested, will doubtless call for prompt action at Albany.

GIBNEY'S GUILT.

When the case of Gibney was called a plea of guilty was entered, and Assistant District Attorney Rollins, who appeared on behalf of the prosecution, said that when he called the attention of the Court to the case on the day preceding he supposed the defendant would proceed to trial; but he was now informed that by advice of counsel he would plead guilty to the offence charged. The defendant had a license from the Commissioners of Excise in accordance with the form which had been used by them for several years past, whereby he was permitted to sell liquor to be drunk on the premises. In view of the fact that the defendant pleaded guilty it was unnecessary to direct attention to the various provisions of the statute which had recently received its interpretation by the Court of Appeals. The main provision set forth that whoever shall sell intoxicating liquors to be drunk on the premises and who has not obtained a licence therefor as an inn, tavern or hotel keeper shall forfeit the sum of $50 for each offence. The defendant in this case frankly acknowledged that he did sell liquor on his premises believing he was under protection of the licence which he had obtained from the Commissioners of Excise. Of course he (Mr. Rollins) might fairly assume that, under the circumstances, the Court would not inflict a severe penalty.

A NOMINAL FINE.

Judge Sutherland, in passing sentence, said that the defendant had no license to keep a tavern or an inn. He had a license granted by the Excise Commissioners on the theory that they had a right to grant it. The defendant doubtless supposed that the license so granted authorized him to sell liquor to be drunk on the premises. There could not be, therefore, any criminal intent on his part. Nevertheless, as the result of the decision of the Court of Appeals, it would appear that the Excise Commissioners had no power to grant the license by which the law was violated. The result was that the defendant would have been convicted if he had gone to trial, the supposition being based on the fact that he would have admitted that he had sold liquor which was drunk on the premises. According to the law, however, it would be inferred that there was criminal intent from the interpretation put upon it by the Court of Appeals. In this instance there was nothing left for the Court to do but impose a nominal fine. As matters now stood he would advise the defendant to stop selling liquors, there being no other suggestion to offer in view of the recent decision, for if he were brought up a second time, knowing the law, the presumption was that he would be punished. Under the circumstances the Court would impose the fine of $1.

STOP SELLING LIQUOR.

This was a very important question, and the Court did not desire to control the action of the defendant in the matter. In view of the decision of the Court of Appeals it was clear that those who had not the proper licenses must stop selling liquor; and indeed, added Judge Sutherland, it would not be a terrible calamity if they did.

The defendant then paid the fine of $1 and was discharged.

WHAT THE DISTRICT ATTORNEY SAYS.

District Attorney Phelps stated yesterday that after the decision of the Court of Appeals, and upon complaint being made, he sent the case of Gibney before the Grand Jury, so that the matter might be disposed of in court. As the matter now stood, the law, as interpreted by the Court of Appeals, with which he fully agreed, was such that the several thousand liquor dealers in the city who had no hotel or tavern license could be proceeded against for violation of the law. Mr. Phelps further intimated that it was his province to act upon complaints as presented to him, and that in every instance it would be his duty to act with the same promptitude with which he acted in the case of Gibney. The District Attorney thought that the matter would finally be remedied by proper legislation.

It was ascertained that the temperance people are about to take advantage of the decision of the Court of Appeals, and will organize a temperance crusade under the leadership of Oliver Cotter.

PROTEST OF THE COMMON COUNCIL.

The Common Council has passed a resolution protesting against the proposed Albany legislation giving to the Police Board authority over the granting of liquor licenses. This action was taken on a petition from liquor dealers of the Fourth Senatorial district.

BAD FOR BEER SELLERS.

The suit brought in the Kings Court Court by Mrs. Mary Ireland, before Judge Moore, against Louis Prosch, a lager beer dealer, to recover $1,000 damages for the loss of the services of her husband, under the Civil Damages act, was concluded yesterday. The plaintiff charged Prosch with selling intoxicating drink to her husband. The jury rendered a verdict for the plaintiff, who is awarded $350 and costs. The case is remarkable as being the first of the kind ever tried in Brooklyn. Counsel for defendant gave notice of his intention to appeal from the decision.

LOCAL OPTION IN NEW JERSEY.

At the recent town election in Montclair, Essex county, N. J., a majority of the citizens voted against the licensing of any taverns. For this reason the Special Sessions Court of Newark yesterday refused to grant licenses to persons to sell liquor. Tipplers will, therefore, be compelled to dispense with their "consolation" or purchase it by the gallon.

A POLICEMAN PUNISHED.

Officer Michael Cleary, of the First police precinct, Brooklyn, who beat Mr. George Batty, of Lawrence street, about two weeks since, in such a terrible manner that his life was at one time despaired of, pleaded guilty before Justice Walsh, yesterday, to assault and battery. He was thereupon sentenced by His Honor to six months in the Kings County Penitentiary. It is expected that the Grand Jury will find an indictment against Cleary for assault, with intent to kill. This indictment will in nowise conflict. Should such, however, not be the case, and an indictment merely of assault and battery be found, the present sentence will stand as it is. Cleary will be confined in Raymond Street Jail to await the disposal of his case by the Grand Jury.

NEW YORK'S MORTALITY.

A FAVORABLE SHOWING IN THE DEATH RATE AS COMPARED WITH FOREIGN CITIES—LAST WEEK'S DEATHS.

The following is the quarterly report of Dr. Nagle touching the mortality in this city for the first three months of the year. Comparisons are made between New York and other cities' death rates also. This is the report:—

W. De F. Day, M. D., Sanitary Superintendent and Register:—

Sir—During the three months ending March 21, 1877, 6,002 deaths occurred in the city, of which 1,068, or 17.79 per cent of the total, were in public institutions. This is equal to an annual death rate of 22.28 per 1,000 of the population, which is estimated at 1,077,228 for the middle of the year. This death rate compares favorably with the latest complete returns received from American and foreign cities. The latest quarterly returns from London show an annual death rate of 21.06 per 1,000 inhabitants of the population estimated to be living in the middle of the year:—Paris, 25.8; Berlin, 25.3; Vienna, 24.5; Liverpool, 25.1; Manchester, 26.2; Glasgow, 23.2; Dublin, 22.4; Calcutta, 33.5; Bombay, 28; Madras, 39; Brussels, 22.5; Geneva, 20.7; Amsterdam, 24.9; Rotterdam, 25.4; The Hague, 27; Copenhagen, 22.9; Stockholm, 26.7; Christiana, 19.8; Hamburg, 23.4; Breslau, 25.2; Munich, 33.3; Buda Pesth, 36.3; Rome, 23.9; Naples, 26.8; Turin, 21.5; Alexandria, 45.7. Although the population of New York city is steadily increasing, the mortality for the quarter ending March 31, 1877, was 1,298, 8 less than the average number of deaths for the corresponding five years. A comparison of the deaths for 3 months with the corresponding period of the past 5 years shows that there were 1,631 deaths less than in 1876, 1,840 less than in 1875, 550 less than in 1874, 965 less than in 1873 and 1,508 less than in 1872. This decrease was particularly noticed in deaths from contagious diseases, which, with 1 exception, were below the average deaths for the corresponding quarter of the preceding five years, viz.:—

	Quarter Ending March 31, 1877.	Average First Quarter Five Years Preceding.
Smallpox	5	96.0
Measles	9	92.8
Scarlatina	293	262.0
Diphtheria	226	389.0
Whooping cough	92	140.0
Typhus fever	7	11.6
Typhoid fever	41	59.0
Totals	673	1,250.4

DISEASES IN THE WARDS.

The deaths that occurred during the quarter were in the following wards, viz.:—First, 110; Second, 8; Third, 33; Fourth, 123; Fifth, 75; Sixth, 121; Seventh, 231; Eighth, 185; Ninth, 240; Tenth, 236; Eleventh, 339; Twelfth, 453; Thirteenth, 156; Fourteenth, 152; Fifteenth, 96; Sixteenth, 239; Seventeenth, 430; Eighteenth, 288; Nineteenth, 1,012; Twentieth, 398; Twenty-first, 450; Twenty-second, 474; Twenty-third, 98, and Twenty-fourth, 55. The highest number of deaths from scarlatina was in the Nineteenth ward, 60; from diphtheria the Nineteenth, 32; from croup the Tenth, 15; from whooping cough the Nineteenth, 14; from typhus fever the Fourth, 2; from typhoid fever the Seventeenth 5; from malarial fevers the Nineteenth, 13; from puerperal fever the Twenty-second, 4, and from cerebral spinal fever the Nineteenth, 8.

LAST WEEK'S DEATHS.

Dr. John T. Nagle, Deputy Register of Records to the Board of Health, reported that during the week ending April 7, 1877, 482 deaths were reported, being an increase of 40 as compared with the preceding week and 96 less than were reported during the corresponding week of 1876. The actual mortality for the week ending March 31 was 466, which is 104.4 below the average number of deaths for the corresponding week of the past five years, and represents an annual death rate of 22.57 per 1,000 persons living, the population estimated at 1,073,296.

The following is a comparative statement of cases of contagious diseases reported at the Sanitary Bureau for the two weeks ending April 7, 1877:—

	—Week Ending— March 31.	April 7.
Typhus fever	—	1
Typhoid fever	1	2
Scarlet fever	99	93
Cerebro-spinal meningitis	2	7
Measles	18	33
Diphtheria	48	38

BROOKLYN THEATRE FIRE FUND.

The Executive Committee having in charge the work of receiving and distributing the money contributed for the relief of the sufferers by the burning of the Brooklyn Theatre will meet this morning for the purpose of preparing a public report of their work up to the present time. The total amount subscribed thus far is about $40,000. On February 26 the cash on hand amounted to $32 876 60. The subscriptions in March increased this amount to $36,312 20. It has been decreased by distribution since then to $30,566 31, $14,219 66 of which is deposited in the Mechanics' Bank, and $16,346 65 in the Brooklyn Savings Bank. Between five and six hundred persons are receiving aid from the fund, and the largest amount paid to any one family is $20 per week, which is the case of a widow with eight children. The payments are made every two weeks, and the money on hand will last about one year longer.

BROOKLYN SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

The Directors of the Board of Managers of the Brooklyn Sabbath School Union have decided to hold the annual parade of the children on Wednesday, May 23. They anticipate, from the returns of the schools now in, that 70,000 little ones will join in the procession.

TRIPLE SHEET.

NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 11, 1877.

NOTICE TO COUNTRY DEALERS.

The Adams Express Company run a special newspaper train over the Pennsylvania Railroad and its connections, leaving Jersey City at a quarter past four A. M. daily and Sunday, carrying the regular edition of the HERALD as far West as Harrisburg and South to Washington, reaching Philadelphia at a quarter past six A. M. and Washington at one P. M.

From our reports this morning the probabilities are that the weather in New York to-day will be slightly warmer and partly cloudy or clear.

WALL STREET YESTERDAY.—The stock market was more active and fairly steady, with the exception of Rock Island and the Northwest stocks. Gold was higher, the price rising from the opening figure of $105\frac{1}{8}$ to $105\frac{1}{2}$, with a subsequent decline of $\frac{1}{8}$. Government, railroad and State bonds were higher and firm. Money on call was very easy, at rates fluctuating from $2\frac{1}{2}$ to 4 per cent, the former being the closing quotation.

TWEED'S RELEASE upon a compromise seems to be improbable, and his only chance of obtaining his freedom is by a complete surrender.

A SUPERFLUOUS IMPORTATION—the infernal machine that arrived yesterday on the steamship Frisia. The city has quite enough crime of its own manufacture.

THE SUPREME COURT DECISION that the Centennial Board of Finance must refund to the United States Treasury the million and a half dollars loaned to the Exhibition has had the effect to decrease the dividends so much that stock bought for ten dollars is likely to pay but three.

OLE BULL is a name that has been familiar to the musical world for many years, and the account we print to-day of his career, as related in his own words, will be read with great interest. It is an example of what genius may accomplish when it is attended by energy and perseverance.

THE LOUISIANA COMMISSION has thus far not fulfilled the hopes of the country. Instead of restoring peace it seems to have added to the political excitement in that State, and our New Orleans despatches are not encouraging. The problem is difficult indeed to solve but if the commission is really the failure it is said to be then the sooner it is recalled the better.

THE EXCISE LAW.—The recent decision that a license to sell liquors permits none but hotel and inn keepers to sell them to be drunk on the premises has alarmed the retail dealers of the city, and yesterday a new excise bill was introduced into the Legislature which is meant to affirm the previous construction of the law. There are prospects of another temperance war in Albany.

THE AMERIQUE is once more afloat and has been towed safely to her dock in Brooklyn. This is a satisfactory conclusion of a protracted effort at getting her off the Seabright beach. It reflects credit on the salvage crews who rescued the ship; but no merit attaches to those responsible for running her ashore, although they also helped to save her. They must work long and faithfully and sail over many seas before the stain of that piece of negligence and stupidity can be washed from their reputations as seamen.

INDICT THEM BY ALL MEANS.—We believe that, sooner or later, and the sooner the better, the Grand Jury will be called on to deal with our wasteful, worthless and dishonest officials. No other course seems to be open to the people of New York in stopping the system of public plunder that is steadily draining the city of her resources, without a particle of benefit resulting from these misappropriations of the revenue. When a citizen takes an official oath to discharge an important public trust for a salary consideration and receives from the public treasury large sums of money to disburse for special purposes, he assumes a responsibility personally as well as officially. If he fails to perform his allotted duty and at the same time squanders the public moneys intrusted to him he becomes amenable to the law.

THE WEATHER.—The storm centre has now fairly left the Carolina coast, and the pressure is rising at all points east of the Mississippi River. Yesterday rain prevailed very generally from the South Atlantic States northwestward to the Lower Missouri Valley, the heaviest fall being at Norfolk, Va. The winds on the Middle and South Atlantic coasts are moderating, but continue brisk northward of Boston, and have been high on the Texas coast. The temperature is high throughout the States, even in the lake district where the pressure is highest. Clear or fair weather prevails over the lakes and Middle States, but rains have fallen in Nova Scotia, where the weather is yet unsettled. Another depression is approaching from the Pacific coast, where the barometer has been comparatively low, with brisk westerly winds. A storm will probably prevail on the British, French and Spanish coasts on next Saturday and Sunday, with heavy gales and rains. The Lower Mississippi and Cumberland have risen. All the other rivers are falling. The weather in New York to-day will be slightly warmer and partly cloudy or clear.

The Government Surveys.

Among the minor but by no means unimportant reforms in the work done by the government we hope to see the next Congress consolidate and put into some systematic order the various government surveys and explorations in the Western Territories.

There are now three principal surveying parties, which take the field every summer and spend the winter in Washington, employed in the double task of working out their field notes and lobbying in Congress for next year's appropriations. As the gentlemen employed in these scientific labors are, or at least ought to be, scientific men, it is certainly not fair that they should have to give any part of their time to the painful work of buttonholing Congressmen for the means to continue their explorations. It is an indignity that science should have to stand about in the lobby. The three principal surveys are those of Lieutenant Wheeler, called the "Geographical Survey of Territories West of the One Hundredth Meridian;" Dr. Hayden's "Geological and Geographical Survey of the Territories," and Major Powell's "Geographical and Geological Survey of the Rocky Mountain Region." King's important "Geological Exploration of the Fortieth Parallel" has been completed, we understand, and Mr. King is now seeing through the press the last volume and charts. There are besides these a Black Hills surveying party and, we believe, some others.

The three first named are the principal surveys now going on. Hayden and Powell are under the control of the Interior Department. Wheeler is sent out by the War Department. The last Congress gave $75,000 to the Hayden survey, $50,000 to the Powell survey, and $50,000, with transportation by the War Department, to Wheeler. We take it for granted that all three of these parties are headed by able men and do useful and important work. But we notice that a not unnatural rivalry between the three, each working independently of the others, leads to the multiplication of needlessly costly books, which are no doubt pleasing and seductive gifts to Congressmen when the appropriation bills are coming up for scrutiny, but which are certainly the cause of trouble and waste of time to men of science here and in Europe, to whom the results of these surveys are for the present of the greatest interest and importance. Why, for instance, should each of these expeditions publish an independent account of the natural history of its region, including descriptions of all the animals found, when, as is easily seen if one compares the different issues, they cover the same animals, with very few exceptions? It would surely be better to have one systematic account, easy of reference, and then note the exceptional animals, if any. No one can examine and compare the numerous and sometimes very costly publications made by these surveys without seeing that a great deal of public money is wasted on mere book-making work of a kind which can make only confusion and vexation for scientific men, and worse for a layman who seeks information. We venture to say that the numerous and bulky volumes, enough to form a library, which have been put forth by these different expeditions, if properly edited and condensed, as they would be if the expeditions were all controlled by one head, could be compressed into a tenth of the space they now occupy and be a hundred times more useful, besides costing very much less to the country.

Nor is this all. The work of these expeditions is conducted in so unsystematic a manner that, as the charts and other records show, one survey often in its work overlaps the other, and thus duplicates expense by needless resurveys; and not only this, but causes another waste in the duplication of printed volumes of often very costly charts. For instance, we notice that Wheeler's Survey, volume 3, publication of 1875, contains a map of the Twin Lakes which seems to us substantially the same as the map of the Twin Lakes at page 53 of Hayden's Report for 1873. We do not mean that Lieutenant Wheeler has taken a copy of Dr. Hayden's map, but that the two parties have evidently covered the same ground by their surveys. Again, the triangulation charts of Wheeler, 1875, and Hayden, 1873, to a considerable extent cover the same ground, and here must have been a serious waste of human effort, not to speak of money. We should think not less than fifty thousand dollars must have been flung away here. Again, King's and Powell's reports show duplications to the amount, we judge, of at least eight thousand square miles of country which King appears to have surveyed in 1875 and Powell in 1876. Mr. King's work has been going on for ten years and has produced results of undoubted scientific and public importance, and surely there was no need of Major Powell going over a part of King's ground.

The work of the United States Coast Survey has always been under a single head, and it is the admiration of scientific men all over Europe. If, however, there had been three or four or half a dozen coast surveying expeditions, each taking a part of our shores and working independently of the rest, our charts would be muddled, the work of the Coast Survey would have been the contempt of men of science and it would have cost probably ten times as much as it has. Why should not the same system be applied to terrestrial explorations and surveys as to marine? It can very easily be done. The whole of the surveys of the Western Territories ought to be put under a single competent head, who should lay out the work systematically, and who could then carry it on with economy and efficiency. At present much more money is wasted in printing than in the field work. The annual appropriations, the amounts of which we gave above, cover only the outdoor work; the printing is extra, and we believe if a committee of Congress would collect all that has been printed at the public expense in the last ten years by the three principal expeditions we have named, and carefully look up the duplications in charts and reports, it would almost be tempted to abolish the whole surveying business in pure disgust. We wonder that some of our scientific men have not called the attention of Congress to this matter before now; and as under President Hayes we are promised various reforms we suggest here an evil which needs attention.

Officials Speculating in Murder.

Lee's confession continues to create a feeling of intense uneasiness among those whom there is good reason to suspect were his confederates in crime. But, singularly enough, it is not to the Mormon leaders exclusively that we now look for attempts at concealing the facts, but to those who should be most active in making them public in the interests of justice. There is a strong suspicion that the confession of Lee, as officially communicated by the United States District Attorney, is a garbled statement made up for either one of two purposes—namely, a book-making speculation or the protection of rich and influential Mormons. We do not see how any other view can be taken of this matter, considering the evidence before us. If the officials involved feel aggrieved by this suspicion they have only themselves to thank for the position in which they are now placed. While Lee was in their hands at Beaver City they took extraordinary precautions against any outsiders reaching the prisoner and learning anything from him. They refused the HERALD representative access to Lee until a short time before his death and when it was too late to obtain a detailed verbal statement from the condemned man. From the beginning of the last trial, and when it became almost certain that Lee would be convicted, there was plainly to be perceived a desire on the part of the Mormon leaders to isolate and destroy him before he could give any statement damaging to their Church. They had used Lee and were ready to cast him into his grave as a sacrifice to an outraged public opinion, but chiefly to silence him forever. In this they were successful, thanks to the co-operation of the legal officials who saw in the situation an opportunity well worth improving. The developments of later evidence promise, however, to make everything clear and to brand the guilty with the full marks of their crime and bring them to speedy justice. It is plain that the officials "dickered" with Lee for his confession as the price of his life in order to use the first as a means of speculating on the fears of his confederates. According to the statement, under oath, of Gilman, one of Lee's keepers, which we print to-day, the representatives of justice held out delusive hopes of pardon to the prisoner; and these were extinguished only by the death volley of the executioners. The prospective profit was temptation enough for the officials to screen the leading Mormons by suppressing every damnatory statement of Lee regarding them. We have pursued the investigation of this shameful affair so closely that, as a correspondent writes us, the officials are beginning to "squirm," and we certainly will not abandon it until every fact is known. In another column to-day will also be found some very interesting details of the game of "hide and seek" sought to be played in screening Brigham Young, as well as a strong indictment of the officials who should, but, we fear, do not, represent the majesty of the law.

The Trouble in Europe.

Russia, it is reported, demands that Turkey shall decide by the 13th—in two days—what course she intends to take with regard to the suggestions of the protocol. These suggestions were that Turkey should reduce her armies and reform her government. Turkey, it was to be assumed, would take the suggestions in high dudgeon and rant somewhat about her independence, a possession she did not greatly plume herself upon in the days when she needed the support of Western armies to prevent her annihilation. She has proved as intractable in the present case as it was thought she would; but Russia wishes to know immediately whether Turkey proposes to act or to treat the protocol and declaration with contempt. This reported demand of Russia is somewhat in the nature of an ultimatum; for it can scarcely be doubtful that if Turkey gives an unfavorable answer Russia's inquiry contemplates immediate action as the next necessity. If Turkey takes the protocol in good part and acts on the declaration the result is to be the disarmament of Russia, and there an end for the present. But if Turkey takes the other course, then Russia does not disarm, and she cannot propose to keep her armies on foot and idle indefinitely. She will use them for the purpose for which they were equipped, and will use them forthwith. It is already reported that Turkey has rejected the protocol and the demands of the Montenegrins, but will send an envoy to St. Petersburg. But the sending that envoy is, by the protocol and declaration, only to follow action on the other demands, and if sent without such action he would probably not be received. It appears to be generally agreed that the declaration by Count Schouvaloff is now the one great obstacle to peace, which is a quaint commentary on the skill, foresight and happy inspirations of British diplomacy.

Cats and Dogs.

For children in the streets alone to be bitten by Spitz dogs is one of the common casualties of the time. Scarcely a day passes without the report of such an occurrence; and one recently reported in Brooklyn might almost be accepted as an evidence that this species of dog, reputed to be related to the Arctic fox, is in reality related to the Arctic wolf. Hydrophobia results from these bites in an extremely large proportion of the cases. It is noted that in several recent cases of hydrophobia the rabid animals by which men or women were bitten were not of the Spitz species, and some comfort seems to be gathered from this fact by the people who admire the Spitz. But the presumption is that the Spitz dog does not confine his attentions entirely to the human family. He sometimes bites other dogs as well as children, and those dogs in due time become mad also; so that hydrophobia caused by the bite of another dog is, perhaps, in the large number of cases, only one remove from some virulent Spitz. Recently a person bitten by a cat died, as chronicled, from "fright." These cases of "fright," as a consequence of bites, will perhaps be found always to occur in the practice of physicians who deem themselves a little wiser than any one else and superior to the common "prejudices" about hydrophobia. It is strange, considering the number of cats in any city, how few cases of hydrophobia result from their bites. The fact is probably due to their great activity in keeping out of the way of stray curs and mad dogs on their "march."

South Carolina Free—Ex-Governor Chamberlain's Address.

At noon yesterday, in pursuance of the order of President Hayes, the federal troops were withdrawn from the State House at Columbia. There was no visible excitement or commotion; nothing occurred to disturb the public tranquillity or create apprehension; and we are confident that that misgoverned, faction-tossed State, the scene of so much agitation and violence for the last eight years, will henceforward be one of the most orderly and best administered of our American Commonwealths, as it always was previous to the war. Under the régime which has now closed South Carolina has suffered more than any of her sister States. Her Legislature has been the most ignorant and corrupt, her county officers the most incompetent, her minor judges the most scandalous, her taxes the most exorbitant, her expenditures the most extravagant and wasteful, the increase of her debt the most stupendous in proportion to her resources, and the depreciation in the value of property the most alarming of any even of the carpet-bag States. The people have been compelled to pay six or eight times as much annually for bad government and for intolerable oppression and swindling as they paid for good government previous to the war. The restoration of local self-control foretokens strict economy, low taxes, business confidence and an immediate and decided enhancement of the value of property. The withdrawal of the federal troops is an auspicious event for which the whole country should thank President Hayes and congratulate Governor Hampton and his fellow citizens.

Ex-Governor Chamberlain acts wisely in making no further resistance. We are sorry that his address announcing this intention is not in better temper; but some allowance must be made for his disappointment and chagrin. A suitor in court who loses his case must be pardoned if he "goes to the tavern and swears," since it is his only resource for relieving his excited feelings. In the course of a month Governor Chamberlain, who is really a man of sense and ability, will probably recover his equanimity. He will then perceive how wildly illogical are the denunciatory parts of his impetuous address. The facts he states, allowing them to be facts, demonstrate how utterly unworthy his supplanted State government ever was of respect or support. By his own confession it disgracefully failed, even with federal troops to reinforce it, to discharge the first and chief duty of a government—the preservation of order and protection of citizens against violence. Here is what he says to his supporters in taking leave of them:—"From authentic evidence it is shown that no less than one hundred of your number were murdered because they were faithful to their principles and exercised rights solemnly guaranteed to them by the nation. You were denied employment, driven from your homes, robbed of the earnings of years of honest industry, hunted for your lives like wild beasts, and your families outraged and scattered, for no offence except your peaceful and firm determination to exercise your political rights."

Be it observed, this is Governor Chamberlain's own description of what took place under his government. It was a government that did not govern; even with federal troops to back it it was powerless to preserve order, powerless to repress violence, protect life or punish crime; and a government of which this is a true picture, painted by a friendly hand, passes an irreversible sentence of condemnation upon itself. And when it is added that this condition of anarchy and violence, this government which did not govern, ate up the substance of the people by exorbitant, ruinous taxes, and was a hotbed of reeking corruption, Mr. Chamberlain's protest seems absurd to the degree of being an insult to the common sense and moral feeling of the country. There is every reason to expect that this hideous picture will be reversed under the wise, just, enlightened administration of Governor Hampton.

Miss Dickinson and Her Critics.

The strange spectacle of an actress criticising her critics was presented at the Eagle Theatre on Monday night, when Miss Anna Dickinson replied to the censors of the New York press. While she complained of their cruelty she was herself more merciless than the worst of them, and we consider that in fiery and eloquent denunciation the lady has the advantage. She complains that she has been unjustly treated, and to prove it she attempts the task of stepping outside of herself and judging the critics and Anna Dickinson as an unprejudiced observer. This is impossible.

The command of the Grecian philosopher, "Know thyself," has never been obeyed, and to appreciate the truth of unpleasing criticism is as difficult. It is noteworthy that artists never complain of praise when it is unjustly bestowed, but invariably resent censure. Miss Dickinson supplied an example when she quoted, with evident delight, Mr. Henry Watterson's opinion that "A Crown of Thorns" was the greatest historical play of the century, which is quite as unjust as the opinion that it is the smallest. It is, therefore, natural that in her capacity as supreme judge she should decide that the critics are all wrong, that the play and the player are all right, and should repeat her verdict on the first night she appeared in Boston—"This is success." To make the public agree with this verdict is another matter. People do not pay at the theatres for the purpose of magnanimously overlooking defects because of other merits, and Miss Dickinson's illustrious career as a lecturess does not atone for her deficiencies as an actress. When a lady assumes a high artistic position in any art she must expect to be coldly and critically considered, and the true critic must be as calm as the anatomist who uses his dissecting knife. It is not only what the artist is, but what he claims he is, that must be considered. Probably Miss Dickinson expects by this appeal to the public to increase her audiences, and we do not object to this kind of criticism occasionally, but we suggest that it would be quite as well to hire a few discharged critics who are capable of writing letters on both sides of the subject. Still a better way would be to act, not argue, and let the work speak for itself. But as this course is not likely to be adopted we suggest in all kindness to Miss Dickinson, and without prejudice against the critics of the "Hub," that she shall produce her next new masterpiece in New York, and by purchasing the leading journals crush the conspiracy of critics, and thus obtain all the praise she desires, but which, under the present system, it is unlikely she will get. Her appeal for sympathy on the ground that she is a small, weak, sick, miserable, crushed and heartbroken woman, will not be unheeded, and we hope that the public will take her advice not to trust to newspaper estimates, but to go to the theatre and judge for itself.

A Just Decision.

Judge Davis rendered a decision yesterday which seems to be so sound and just, and covers a matter so frequently in litigation, that it is surprising it has not been reached before. In contested will cases it has been the practice of the Surrogate to make an award out of the funds of the estate to the counsel of the contestants where they have been unsuccessful in their opposition to the probate. Judge Davis decides that the Surrogate has no power or right to make any such award; that when a contestant fails to break a will the result shows that the property belongs to others, and not to him, and no person has a right to take one man's money out of his pocket to pay another man's legal expenses. This is the substance of the decision, and it appears to be a wise judgment. The practice of paying the legal expenses of contestants out of an estate is calculated to lead to illegitimate litigation and even to conspiracies to contest wills, especially where large estates are involved. Judge Davis' decision is likely to do a great deal of good.

The Garbage Question Solved at Last.

Having awaited with becoming modesty the action of the Boards of Health and Police regarding the filth in the streets, and having waited so long that patience has ceased to be a virtue, we would ourselves suggest a plan by which this most important problem may at once be solved. Let a number of hurdles be prepared by which any street can be closed at any portion of its length; let a certain number of streets be daily fenced off in short sections, and then let the city advertise itself as a great hog-fattening corporation. The modest and accommodating nature of the porcine palate is well known. All is grist that comes to the pig's digestive mill, while the adequacy of the swine's snout to any amount of investigation of the soil is universally admitted. Put pigs into these street pens, and all garbage would speedily be transformed into prime pork, while the residue would be a fertilizer of established commercial value. At first thought it would seem that people might object to having manure factories in front of their doors, but this is a mistake; they would, at least, know the name and nature of what is before them, and that would be a degree of knowledge about the contents of our streets after which the wisest of observers have groped with only indifferent success. It may be urged in objection that such a system would prevent many streets from being thoroughfares; but the truth is that many of them are already in this condition and without any friendly fence to warn the traveller against risking his life in them either. It may also be urged that the porkers' vocal notes would prove unwelcome to refined ears; but it should be remembered that many New Yorkers are pious, and would prefer any sound to that of the swearing of the truck driver or milkman whose way is blocked by the hills and valleys of our city streets. Should the supply of offal run short we might send the inactive scows of the Street Cleaning Bureau after the garbage of Boston and Philadelphia, though the paltry filth of another city or two could not make any considerable addition to our home supply. As for our citizens, they would never object to our streets becoming the dumping ground of the nation; they have been trained to endure any quantity of garbage. It seems, however, that our present accumulation is sufficient to feed all the hogs of all the world for at least a century to come.

BISMARCK OUT FOREVER.

[BY CABLE TO THE HERALD.]

LONDON, April 11, 1877.

If the news of this morning which reaches us from the Bosphorus and the Neva be true, there is an end of doubt. England will be pushed aside; all her good intentions and most of the astute Ignatieff's promises will be forgotten together. Turkey has trifled too long. The hour for Russia has come. A vast future, filled with all sorts of grand possibilities, looms up before her. News unfavorable to peace flows into St. Petersburg from all directions. A war manifesto is expected to be promulgated there on Friday. This is the most serious crisis that has yet come. England's mediation failed, the conference was unsuccessful and now the protocol proves worthless. Russia has not men enough to take Constantinople, but she can proceed at once with her conquests in Asia Minor and the annexation of the northern Turkish provinces. England has already declared that she will not interfere unless Constantinople is directly menaced. This Russia need not do at present. Wallachia, Roumania and Bulgaria, on the one hand, and Armenia, on the other, will satisfy her for the present. She can afford to wait. The Times, in its leading editorial, reviewing the situation, says:—"A circular has been issued by the Porte giving an unfavorable reply to the protocol and the demand for disarmament. Even though the refusal may not be so absolute as to preclude further negotiation or dissipate every hope that the determination may be reconsidered, it is impossible to look upon it except as a very grave event. Only the most urgent representations of the Powers at St. Petersburg and Constantinople can now prevent a collision."

CHANGE OF VIZIER REPORTED.

The Berlin correspondent of the Standard says according to private intelligence from Constantinople a change in the vizierate is expected Achmed Vefix Effendi is to succeed Edhem Pacha. The latter is said to be inclined to comply with the protocol.

THE ULTIMATUM.

The Russian representative in Constantinople has informed Salvet Pacha that Russia desires to receive the Porte's reply about the protocol before the 13th inst. This is reaffirmed in the most positive manner this morning, but there is a general feeling that what is meant is that the Porte must give its decision in regard to sending an extraordinary ambassador to St. Petersburg. In whichever way it is viewed the crisis is a most critical one. The Agence Russe says everything depends upon the decisions which an ambassador from Turkey would bring; but in any case Russia, having gone to the utmost limit in the path of concession, will not go a single step further. The St. Petersburg Bourse Gazette declares that war is inevitable. The situation is such that retreat is impossible for either party.

TURKEY THROWS ALL HOPE AWAY.

The Turkish Chamber of Deputies has finally rejected the demands of the Montenegrins by a vote of 65 to 18. Twenty-two members were absent, however. Their views will be ascertained before a final decision is made in regard to Montenegro. The Chargés d' Affaires have received the Porte's decision respecting the protocol. It does not differ from the circular which the Porte yesterday telegraphed to Turkish representatives abroad. The decisions announced therein were not announced to the Chargés d'Affaires in Constantinople until last night. The circular lays stress on the Porte's desire for peace and determination to execute reforms. It does not reject the protocol absolutely, but only those points which admit of foreign interference in Turkey's internal affairs. It repels the declaration appended to the protocol by Count Schouvaloff, and says the Porte will only consent to send a delegate to St. Petersburg and disarm if Russia is disposed to disarm at the same time. It asks the Powers to induce Montenegro to show a more conciliatory attitude. Peace or war now depends upon Russia's reception of the Turkish circular. There is some question of prolonging the armistice between Turkey and Montenegro after April 13. The Porte will consult the Chamber of Deputies to-day about Montenegro, and give the Montenegrins a final answer to-morrow. The Political Correspondence, of Vienna, claims to have intelligence from St. Petersburg that the Porte has rejected the protocol and the Montenegrins' demands, but will send an envoy to St. Petersburg.

THE PROTOCOL IN THE WAY OF PEACE.

To a certain extent the Russian declaration, which was devised to prevent a collision and remove difficulties, has become an obstacle in the way of a settlement. Although not officially informed regarding the negotiations in London, the Porte seemed before hand to anticipate the general tenor of the protocol. It was immediately perceived at Constantinople that the main question at issue for Turkey was the principle whether she should be a party to a transaction virtually abrogating the treaty of Paris or by protesting place herself in opposition to the guaranteeing powers. But the stipulations of the treaty of Paris could only have real value to Turkey so long as they were respected and recognized by the powers who signed the treaty. Therefore, before seeing the protocol, the Turks had reconciled themselves to its acceptance. Although some are convinced that sooner or later a collision with Russia is inevitable, and that it will be some time before Turkey will be so well prepared as now, those at the head of affairs in Turkey shrink from the responsibility of a step which might bring the country to ruin, and they find support in the Sultan, who yields nothing to the Czar in his desire for peace. In fact, previous to the communication of the Russian declaration the best disposition prevailed at Constantinople, and had it not been for this declaration possibly all might have been arranged by this time. Rightly or wrongly, it is looked upon as an insult. Turkey by now sending an envoy to St. Petersburg would accept the part of an inferior, not an equal. In the present state of the population the Sultan and his Ministers cannot accept such a position.

THE ISSUE IN PARLIAMENT.

In the House of Commons on Monday the Marquis of Hartington gave notice that he will on Friday move for further papers on Turkey, and particularly the draft of the protocol which Count Schouvaloff presented to Lord Derby on March 11; also for any correspondence in reference to the Russian circular of January 19 and the protocol of March 11. It is generally believed that this is intended to bring on a debate on Eastern affairs without challenging the government, and to prevent individual members of the opposition introducing resolutions directed against the ministerial policy. It seems the leaders of the opposition are unable to agree upon a plan of action satisfactory to the more advanced liberals.

A telegram received in London yesterday from Vefyk Pacha, President of the Turkish Chamber of Deputies, says "the Russians declare things are going very badly in Bulgaria. They are right. We have discovered the existence of two incendiary Russian agencies there."

NO MORE BISMARCK.

As the HERALD has repeatedly declared, the retirement of Prince Bismarck is to be final. It makes very little difference what name is given it—the end of Bismarck's power has come. The Pall Mall Gazette of last evening published a special despatch from Berlin stating that the Reichstag will consider a communication from the Emperor calling upon it to invest Herr Camphausen and Herr Von Bulow with power to represent Prince Bismarck during his absence. The Prince for the present retains all his various dignities and offices. He proposes, however, to leave Berlin in the course of a week on indefinite leave granted in the first instance for several months, but renewable at his request if necessary. Notwithstanding the present arrangement it is said to be doubtful if the Chancellor will not shortly retire altogether from office. When submitting his request for retirement he presented a medical certificate showing that his continuance in office must be highly prejudicial to his health and may even imperil his life. On this ground the Prince is reported to be averse to pledging himself to any length of time. The Berlin Poste states that the Emperor, in gracious terms, has refused Prince Bismarck's request to be pensioned off, but accorded him lengthened leave of absence. Camphauser, by right of seniority, will represent the Chancellor in all imperial affairs. Communication to this effect will be made to the Reichstag to-day.

SURPRISE FOR PHILADELPHIA.

DISAPPOINTMENT OF CENTENNIAL STOCKHOLDERS—THE DECISION OF THE SUPREME COURT—DIVIDENDS DWINDLED SEVENTY PER CENT.

PHILADELPHIA, April 10, 1877.

The final decision of the United States Supreme Court that the Centennial Board of Finance must return to the United States Treasury the million and a half appropriated to the Exhibition has fallen like a shock upon the worthy people of this city, who contributed so largely, in more ways than one, to the success of the great world's fair. The fiat of the appellate court was entirely unexpected, no one seeming to have imagined that it was likely to reverse the decision of the tribunal below. It is the one topic of conversation in town to-day, and its results will be very far reaching. So much of the Centennial stock was taken in this city from motives of civic pride by people who cannot afford to lose money at present, that this reduction of the dividends from ninety per cent to about twenty, which is sure to follow this unexpected judgment, will be seriously felt by numbers of Philadelphians.

The general feeling on the subject seems to be well expressed by Mr. Robert N. Willson, who argued the case as counsel for the new permanent exhibition enterprise. Like all the lawyers in the case, Mr. Willson was very much astonished at the decision, and when questioned about it said that he could not imagine how the Supreme Court found reason to inflict this great loss upon the people who had personally aided the Exhibition, for which the whole nation had received the credit. The International Exhibition Company who expect to open next month the permanent show on the style of the Crystal Palace Exhibition at Sydenham, will be very much embarrassed, temporarily, by this action, as some $300,000 of their stock consisted of transferred shares of Centennial stock, upon which they expected to be paid about ninety per cent of their original cost, instead of which they will now receive but twenty.

WAS IT PREJUDICE?

One of the directors of the permanent exhibition enterprise said in the course of an interview:—"I think the Supreme Court's decision was caused by geographical influences against Philadelphia. Judge Strong, who represents Pennsylvania on the bench, gave his decision strongly in our favor, but all the others were against us. I have often seen the tendency in Washington to disparage Philadelphia and her interests. Congress was dilatory in aiding us with the Post Office, in accepting League Island, in making our river improvements and in supporting our efforts to make the Centennial Exhibition a success."

THE EFFECTS.

"What will be the effect upon the permanent exhibition?"

"We expected to pay for the Main Building, which we bought at $250,000, mainly in Centennial stock, estimated at at least $8 a share. This decision, which is final, takes $1,500,000 from the Board of Finance, leaving the sum so small that I fear not more than $3 a share will be realized. We will have to pay up so much more stock as will meet this depreciation, say about $200,000."

"What amount of cash does the Board of Finance now hold?"

"They have $2,350,000 in cash deposited in four banks. From all I can learn, all the indebtedness has been paid and this amount is clear."

THE WITHDRAWAL OF THE TROOPS FROM THE STATE HOUSE—A HISTORY OF THE OCCUPANCY—ADDRESS OF CHAMBERLAIN—ACTION OF THE STATE OFFICIALS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

COLUMBIA, April 10, 1877.

With the evacuation of the State House by the federal troops to-day Chamberlain kicked the Gubernatorial bucket. He died resignedly, after a very gallant but unsuccessful contest. His great ambition was to have republicanized the white people of South Carolina, and his failure is perhaps due more to the political power of his opponents than to any defects in the policy he adopted during his last Gubernatorial term. His manifesto issued to-day in the form of a farewell address to the republicans of South Carolina is written with his usual ability, and is a severe but respectful criticism of the Southern policy of President Hayes. Its great force commends it to the admiration of his political enemies, while its sentiments are thoroughly indorsed by the republicans of the State. In retiring to private life for at least a brief period Mr. Chamberlain stands intellectually head and shoulders over every republican leader in the South and the peer of any in the North.

WITHDRAWAL OF THE TROOPS.

Unlike the time of their entry into the State House, the scene to-day at the withdrawal of the troops was entirely devoid of any excitement. It was done with military punctuality, precision and dignity, and reflects great credit on Colonel Black, of the Eighteenth infantry, commanding the post here.

DETAILS OF THE OCCUPANCY.

On the 29th of November last, the day previous to the meeting of the Legislature, and almost at the dead hour of midnight, the State House was taken possession of by a battalion of federal troops under the command of Major Kellogg, of the Eighteenth infantry. How the illegal Mackey House of Representatives was organized, how the democratic members who held the certificates of the Supreme Court were excluded, how Mr. Chamberlain was indecently inaugurated Governor, and all the exciting scenes that occurred during the months of November, December and January last, have all been told in the HERALD. Up to about the middle of January a strong force was held in the State House, but when popular excitement had subsided and the bulk of the troops were withdrawn from the State the garrison at the State House was reduced to one solitary company or detachment, numbering not more than twenty men. For the better management and the convenience of the troops two companies were specially detailed to do this State House duty. These were Company B, Second infantry, commanded by Lieutenant Abner Haines and F. O. Briggs, numbering fifteen men and five non-commissioned officers, and Company D, Eighteenth infantry, commanded by Lieutenants Leahy and Cabanniss, and numbering about the same rank and file. These companies relieved each other regularly every three days, the written instructions to support the colored special constabulary if called upon by them in the event of an attack on the State House, being regularly turned over by the retiring officer to his successor.

WITHDRAWAL OF THE TROOPS.

It so happened that Company D, of the Second infantry, Lieutenant Abner Haines commanding, was on duty to-day, and that officer and his men will now figure historically in the annals of South Carolina. In conformity with the express wishes of Governor Hampton, announced in his address upon his reception here on Friday, when he returned from Washington, no white persons went near the State House. Inside the building, on the lower floor and immediately in the vicinity of Houdon's bronze statue of Washington, the scene was interesting. A crowd of about two hundred of the negro special constabulary and others who have been on duty were standing around attentive observers of all that transpired. There were not over twenty whites present, and these were republican State officials, ex-members of the State Board of Canvassers, members of the press and military officers. Mr. Chamberlain was in his office in the west wing of the building finishing his farewell address. It was in this wing, and directly in front of the Executive Chamber, that the detachments were posted, and at half-past eleven A. M., everything having been gotten in readiness, the soldiers fell in behind their stacked arms, with knapsacks, blankets and all their equipments on. Major Michael Magginis, of General Ruger's staff, arrived here this morning with the official order removing the troops. It was he who carried the order in November last to place them in the building.

MARCHING OUT.

Precisely at forty minutes past eleven A. M. Colonel Black and Adjutant Potter arrived in the State House and immediately afterward Lieutenant Haines gave the order to his men to take arms and marched them close to the open entrance on the south side of the building. Here they were halted preparatory to making their exit at noon. The interest was now intense, and the great black crowd thronged around the small detachment of soldiers. Colonel Black stood with watch in hand near the north entrance listening for the first stroke of the city clock announcing midday. Lieutenant Briggs stood close to the Washington statue to signal the order to march to Lieutenant Haines, who remained in front of the soldiers. The anxious crowd now waited with great expectancy, and as the clock and a dozen chronometers marked the hour of meridian the orders were signalled, and Lieutenant Haines gave the orders, "Right shoulder arms, right face, forward march," and in another instant the State House was evacuated by the troops. The last file had scarcely crossed the threshold when the negro constabulary indignantly slammed the doors behind them and secured and locked them. This was not done from the apprehension that any whites would rush in, but as an insult to the United States government, which in this final act in the dual governmental drama had deserted them. In a few moments more the spectators withdrew, and the State House was left in the possession of the few special constables, who chose to remain in the building. Soon afterward Governor Chamberlain issued the following address:—

CHAMBERLAIN'S ADDRESS.

TO THE REPUBLICANS OF SOUTH CAROLINA:—

By your choice I was made Governor of this State in 1874, and at the election on the 7th of November last I was again, by your votes, elected to the same office. My title to the office, upon every legal and moral ground, is to-day as clear and perfect. By the recent decision and action of the President of the United States I find myself unable to maintain my official rights with the prospect of final success, and I hereby announce to you that I am unwilling to prolong a struggle which can only bring further suffering upon those who engage in it.

Announcing this conclusion, it is my duty to say for you that the republicans of South Carolina entered upon their recent political struggle for the maintenance of their political and civil rights, constituting beyond question a large majority of the lawful voters of the State. You allied yourselves with that political party whose central and inspiring principle has hitherto been the civil and political freedom of all men under the constitution and laws of our country. By heroic efforts and sacrifices, which the just verdict of history will rescue from the cowardly scorn now cast upon them by political placemen and traders, you secured the electoral vote of South Carolina for Hayes and Wheeler.

THE BLOODY SHIRT.

In accomplishing this result you became the victims of every form of persecution and injury. From authentic evidence it is shown that not less than 100 of your number were murdered because they were faithful to their principles and exercised rights solemnly guaranteed to them by the nation. You were denied employment, driven from your homes, robbed of the earnings of years of honest industry, hunted for your lives like wild beasts, your families outraged and scattered for no offence except for your peaceful and firm determination to exercise your political rights. You trusted, as you had a right to trust, that if by such efforts you established the lawful supremacy of your political party in the nation, the government of the United States, in the discharge of its constitutional duty, would protect the lawful government of the State from overthrow at the hands of your political enemies. From causes patent to all men and questioned by none who regard truth, you have been unable to overcome the unlawful combinations and obstacles which have opposed the practical supremacy of the government which your votes have established. For many weary months you have waited for your deliverance. While the long struggle for the Presidency was in progress you were exhorted by every representative and organ of the national republican party to keep your allegiance true to that party in order that your deliverance from the hands of your oppressors might be certain and complete. Not the faintest whisper of the possibility of disappointment in these hopes and promises ever reached you while the struggle was pending.

THE PARTY ABANDONED.

To-day, April 10, 1877, by the order of the President whom your votes alone rescued from overwhelming defeat, the government of the United States abandons you and deliberately withdraws from you its support, with the full knowledge that the lawful government of the State will be speedily overthrown. By a new interpretation of the constitution, at variance alike with the previous practice of the government and with the decisions of the Supreme Court, the Executive of the United States evades the duty of ascertaining which of the two rival State governments is the lawful one, and by the withdrawal of the troops now protecting the State from domestic violence abandons the lawful State government to a struggle with insurrectionary force too powerful to be resisted. The grounds of policy upon which action has been defended are startling.

THE REASONS CONSIDERED.

It is said that the North is weary of the long Southern troubles. It was weary, too, of the long troubles which sprung from the stupendous crime of chattel slavery and longed for repose. It sought to cover them from sight by wicked compromises with the wrong which disturbed its peace. But God held it to its duty until, through a conflict which rocked and agonized the nation, the great crime was put away and freedom was ordained for all.

It is said that if a majority of the people of a State are unable by physical force to maintain their rights they must be left to political servitude. Is this a doctrine ever before heard in our history? If it shall prevail its consequences will not long be confined to South Carolina or Louisiana.

It is said that a democratic House of Representatives will refuse an appropriation for the army of the United States if the lawful government of South Carolina is maintained by the military forces. The submission to such coercion marks the degeneracy of the political party or people which endures it. A government worthy the name—a political party fit to wield power—never before blanched at such a threat.

NO TASTE FOR A USELESS STRUGGLE.

But the edict has gone forth. No argument or considerations which your friend could present have sufficed to avert the disaster. No effective means of resistance to the consummation of the wrong are left. The struggle can be prolonged. My strict legal rights are, of course, wholly unaffected by the action of the President; no court of the State has jurisdiction to pass upon the title to my office; no lawful Legislature can be convened except upon my call. If the use of these powers promised ultimate success to our cause I should not shrink from any sacrifices which might confront me. It is a cause in which, by the light of reason and conscience, a man might well lay down his life; but to my mind my present responsibility involves the consideration of the effect of my action upon those whose representative I am. I have hitherto been willing to ask you, republicans of South Carolina, to risk all dangers and endure all hardships until relief should come from the government of the United States. That relief will never come. I cannot ask you to follow me further. In my judgment, I can no longer serve you by further resistance to the impending calamity.

With gratitude to God for the measure of endurance with which He has hitherto inspired me; with gratitude to you for your boundless confidence in me; with profound admiration for your matchless fidelity to the cause in which you have struggled, I now announce to you and to the people of the State that I shall no longer actively assert my right to the office of Governor of South Carolina. The motives and purposes of the President of the United States in the policy which compels me to pursue my present course are unquestionably honorable and patriotic. I devoutly pray that events may vindicate the wisdom of his action, and that peace, justice, freedom and prosperity may hereafter be the portion of every citizen of South Carolina.

THE REPUBLICAN STATE OFFICES.

The republican State officials have addressed the following letter to Mr. Chamberlain:—

COLUMBIA, S. C., April 10, 1877.

TO HIS EXCELLENCY D. H. CHAMBERLAIN, GOVERNOR OF SOUTH CAROLINA, COLUMBIA, S. C.:—

DEAR SIR—Recurring to the views severally expressed by us during the personal conference which we had the honor to hold with you yesterday in regard to the political complications which have grown out of the late canvass in this State, we beg leave to apprise you formally of the conclusions we have reached after mature deliberation and the gravest reflection which we have been able to bestow upon the subject. While we are no less inspired with admiration for the dignified and resolute manner in which you consistently maintained your claims to the gubernatorial chair by virtue of the election held in November last than we are solemnly impressed with the validity of your title to the office, we are unanimous in the belief that to prolong the contest in the absence of that moral aid to which we feel ourselves and our party justly entitled at the hands of a national administration, installed in larger measure through the same agencies which are now held to be insufficient for our maintenance, will be to incur the responsibility of keeping alive partisan prejudices which are in the last degree detrimental to the best interest of the people of the State, and perhaps of precipitating a physical conflict that could have but one result to our defenceless constituency. We cannot afford to contribute, however indirectly, to such a catastrophe, even in advocacy of what we know to be our rights.

We are agreed, therefore, in counselling you to discontinue the struggle for the occupancy of the gubernatorial chair, convinced, as we are, that, in view of the disastrous odds by which its maintenance has been subjected by the action of the national administration, your retirement will involve no surrender of principle, nor its motive be misapprehended by the great body of that political party to which, in common with ourselves, you are attached, and whose success in the past in this State has been ennobled by your intelligent and unselfish services. We have the honor to be, very respectfully, yours,

ROBERT B. ELLIOTT, Attorney General.
THOMAS C. DUNN, Comptroller General.
JOHN R. TALBERT, Superintendent of Education.
F. L. CARDOZA, Treasurer, of South Carolina.
JAMES KENNEDY, Adjutant and Inspector General.
H. E. HAYNE, Secretary of State.

SURRENDER OF THE STATE HOUSE.

The following correspondence has transpired between Governor Hampton and Mr. Chamberlain:—

HAMPTON TO CHAMBERLAIN.

STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA, EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
COLUMBIA, S. C., April 10, 1877.

SIR—Having learned that you now purpose to turn over to me the Executive Chamber, with the records and papers belonging to the executive office now in your possession, I beg to inform you that I will send a proper officer to receive the same at any hour you may indicate as most convenient to yourself.

I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

WADE HAMPTON, Governor.

To Hon. D. H. CHAMBERLAIN.

CHAMBERLAIN TO HAMPTON.

STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA, EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
COLUMBIA, S. C., April 10, 1877.

SIR—Replying to your note of this date, I have to say that my private secretary will meet such officer as you may designate at twelve meridian to-morrow at the Executive Chamber for the purpose indicated in your note. Very respectfully.

D. H. CHAMBERLAIN, Governor South Carolina.

To Hon. WADE HAMPTON.

INSTALLATION OF HAMPTON.

In accordance with the terms of the correspondence Governor Hampton will to-morrow at noon send his private secretary to the State House, who will receive from the private secretary of Mr. Chamberlain possession of the Executive Department and the records thereof. This involves the possession of the entire State House, and as Hampton will follow soon afterward he will be master of the situation. If necessary he will supplant Chamberlain's special constabulary by his own, a strong force of which has been organized for the time. As there are several vacant rooms besides the regular State offices now occupied by the ex-members of the Board of State Canvassers and republican State officials, Hampton will doubtless be followed by his executive officers, who will install themselves in the most comfortable and convenient manner possible. In this way his entire government will be in operation and his authority acknowledged within the walls of the State House.

THE REPUBLICAN STATE OFFICIALS.

The first effect of the new movement will be to discourage the republican State officers whose cases are now pending before the Supreme Court upon quo warranto proceedings instituted by the democratic claimants. As to the first decision when the cases are adjudicated there is not a particle of doubt that the decision will be in favor of the democratic State officers, and with this result staring them in the face it is more than probable the republicans may take time by the forelock, and following the example of Chamberlain, abandon the offices to which no salary is attached and from the occupation of which no martyrdom can be gained. Thus Hampton's way will be made comparatively smooth, and his administration will begin under the most favorable auspices.

CONVENING THE LEGISLATURE.

One of his first official acts will be to call the Legislature together, which will probably convene in two weeks from this date. The first important business to come before that body will be the elevation of a Chief Justice to succeed Chief Justice Moses, recently deceased. In the event the cases of the State officials should come before this tribunal that election assumes the gravest importance. The democrats, upon the organization of both branches of the General Assembly, will have a bare majority on joint ballot. They will hold a caucus and place a democratic candidate in the field, with a possibility of electing him. It is predicted now that the republicans will also nominate a liberal democrat as their candidate, with not only the possibility, but the probability, of electing him. In either horn of the dilemma the interests of the democratic officials will be safe and the triumphant success of the Hampton government assured.

To-night the utmost quiet prevails, the republicans seeming to acquiesce in the inevitable, and the joy of the whites is deep and heartfelt.

SATISFACTION IN ADMINISTRATION CIRCLES—PATTERSON TALKING ABOUT A DEATH KNELL—TELEGRAPHIC DESPATCH FROM HAMPTON.

WASHINGTON, April 10, 1877.

The President and members of the Cabinet severally express their gratification that there was no disturbance consequent on the withdrawal of the troops from the State House, and that there is absolute peace. In fact, they thought this would be the result from the assurances of Governor Hampton, otherwise the order for such withdrawal would not have been issued; and, besides, Governor Chamberlain when here said nothing to the executive authorities which would lead to the belief that he would commit any act to obstruct the wishes of the administration on behalf of Governor Hampton. Senator Patterson is much discouraged in consequence of the events at Columbia, and says that the death knell of the republican party in the South has been sounded by the act of the President.

HAMPTON TO GORDON.

Governor Hampton telegraphed to Senator Gordon this afternoon as follows:—

COLUMBIA, S. C., April 10—3:32 P. M.

General J. B. GORDON, Washington, D. C.:—

Perfect peace prevails. Troops withdrawn and Chamberlain surrenders. South Carolina thanks you.

WADE HAMPTON.

SENATOR GORDON'S REPLY.

Senator Gordon responded as follows:—

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 10, 1877.

GOVERNOR HAMPTON, Columbia, S. C.:—

Your telegram just received. The friends of peace, justice and constitutional government everywhere rejoice with you.

J. B. GORDON.

REJOICING IN CHARLESTON.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

CHARLESTON, April 10, 1877.

The news received here a few minutes after twelve o'clock to-day that Chamberlain had yielded spread like wildfire and electrified the whole community. Elation was visible on every face, flags were instantly displayed at prominent points throughout the city, and jubilant crowds gathered on Broad street discussing the bulletins. Everything, however, was remarkably quiet, the feeling being mainly one of relief from a long agony of suspense. The negroes seemed to share in the general satisfaction.

LOUISIANA.

FUTILE LABORS OF THE COMMISSION—A MOVEMENT IN THE NICHOLLS LEGISLATURE.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

NEW ORLEANS, April 10, 1877.

The ill success achieved so far by the commission, the impracticability of their propositions and the apparent lack of both power and purpose displayed, are having a very bad effect upon the community, and unless something is soon accomplished may result disastrously. Public passions are again becoming inflamed upon both sides, inasmuch as the issue at [illegible] is a desperate one. Packard openly asserts his intention to defend his government, even if the United States troops are withdrawn, and the Nicholls people are equally determined, at all hazards, to enforce either their own or a military government. Both sides think themselves being trifled with, and both concede that Mr. Hayes wishes to dodge all responsibility by a political trade to which neither are inclined to become parties except upon their own terms.

WORK OF THE COMMISSION.

The labor of the commission to-day has consequently been as barren of results as ever. In the morning it received a delegation of fifteen colored citizens, which delivered set speeches up to two P. M. on general topics pertaining to their view of the situation. At three it was visited by the Mayor and City Council, who laid before it a carefully prepared statement of the city's finances for the past fifteen years, showing a great advantage in the way of economy in democratic over republican rule.

Several other delegations were then received, after which it adjourned and rode out to the lake to dine. During the morning duplicate letters were addressed to both legislative committees already appointed to confer with them, inviting some statistical information respecting the qualification of judges and other parish officers, with a view of ascertaining precisely what portion of the State government avers allegiance to Nicholls and what to Packard. These questions will be answered to-morrow.

ACTION OF THE NICHOLLS LEGISLATURE.

The Nicholls Legislature passed a resolution to-day setting forth the present disturbed condition of affairs as destructive of all public and private interests, and inviting the members of Packard's House to come and take their seats in the legal Legislature. This is preparatory to an earnest effort now inaugurated by the democrats with a view to settling the question themselves by securing the acquisition of seven more Returning Board members, thus completing their quorum. This accomplished they will at once pass a joint resolution confirming all previous proceedings of the Legislature and officially calling upon the President to remove the troops.

DEMANDS OF THE COMMISSION.

It is believed that the commission is aware of this purpose on the part of the democrats and only opposes it to the extent of demanding that two republican Senators be elected, or at least one. The democrats are not willing to concede this, but are willing to elect administration democrats or conservatives. If any settlement is speedily arrived at it will probably be upon this basis and by this method. As yet the commission has avoided committing itself in any manner or upon any point, but its influence shown in favor of such an adjustment would undoubtedly secure it. To-morrow will probably witness the development of this movement.

MR. HUTCHINSON'S MOVEMENT.

The commissioners when interviewed upon the subject to-day deny any connection with Mr. Hutchinson or his schemes, although he is still working industriously with outside politicians, but to no apparent purpose.

A DEFINITE PROPOSITION.

Persons who have visited some of the commissioners to-night report that they will hold a private session to-morrow, at which a definite proposition will be determined upon to be made to both Governors. This proposition, while adhering to the original plan, will modify the terms to the extent of fusing the Legislatures upon the basis of supervisors' returns instead of the Returning Board. This plan would give a democratic majority of four on joint ballot. It is added that General George A. Sheridan will leave to-morrow for Washington as bearer of despatches to Mr. Hayes explaining the necessity of this modification, without which the commission despairs of effecting a settlement. It is not likely that this proposition will interrupt the democratic movement, which is considered to be a shorter and better solution of the difficulty.

REJOICING OVER SOUTH CAROLINA.

At ten o'clock to-night a salute of 100 guns was fired at the head of Canal street in honor of the news just received that Hampton was in possession of the State House at Columbia.

PACKARD'S FRIENDS.

Pinchback stated in an interview to-night that seven of his friends in the Packard House were all ready to go over to the Nicholl's Legislature, and that they would do so to-morrow or next day. This, taken in connection with the democratic plan as detailed above, would seem to indicate the success of that effort.

THE LAST DAY OF GRACE FOR ABSENT LEGISLATORS.

NEW ORLEANS, April 10, 1877.

At twelve o'clock to-morrow, the probation time allotted by a resolution of the Nicholls Legislature for all absent members to take their seats with a full title to receive mileage and per diem expires. The impression among conservatives is that enough members may avail themselves of the privileges granted by this resolution to give the Nicholls House a quorum of Returning Board members.

MOLLY MAGUIRE TRIAL.

MAUCH CHUNK, Pa., April 10, 1877.

In the Court of Oyer and Terminer of Carbon county to-day the trial of Patrick O'Donnell, who is charged with being an accessory before the fact of the murder of Morgan Powell, in Summit Hill, in 1871, was commenced. Alexander Campbell, Yellow Jack Donohoe and Thomas P. Fisher have all been convicted of this crime, and are now under sentence.

James Kerrigan, the Molly Maguire who turned State's evidence, was released from custody under the two term rule to day, and left for his home in Tamaqua.

A BOY STOLEN.

MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE OF MARTIN HAVEN—AN OHIO CHARLEY ROSS CASE.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 10, 1877.

Intense excitement prevails in Orange township, Delaware county, over the mysterious disappearance of Martin Haven, a boy aged seven years, from his father's house last Sunday morning. When last seen the child was in company with Edward Booker, a colored man employed on the Haven farms. Two days have now been spent in looking for the missing boy, but up to this time no trace has been discovered of him or the colored man in whose company he was last seen walking about the home farm. As soon as Booker's wife, who was also a servant on the farm, discovered that her husband was missing she hurriedly came to this city, where she was arrested to-day, but persisted in declaring that she knew nothing of the whereabouts of the boy or her husband. The missing child has a fair complexion, and when last seen had on a faded blue suit. Booker and his wife are well known to the police here, and both have in the past been under arrest for drunkenness. Booker is very dark colored, about thirty-three years of age and about five feet eleven inches high. It is supposed he has taken the child to hold it for a reward from its father, who is in very good circumstances.

NEW ORLEANS RACES.

JACK HARDY, SAM HARPER AND BOB WOOLLEY THE WINNERS.

YACHTING NOTE.

Yacht Nettie, N.Y.Y.C., Mr. Osgood, from New London, passed Whitestone yesterday afternoon en route to New York.

LEE'S CONFESSION.

Evidence Accumulating That It Was Garbled by the Law Officers in the Interest of Brigham Young.

SPECULATING OFFICIALS

The Gilman Affidavit and Lee's Hopes for a Reprieve.

The position promptly assumed by the HERALD on the question of the reliability of the version of John D. Lee's confession, given to the press by the United States District Attorney at Salt Lake City, proves to have been the right one. From all quarters comes evidence that the so called confession was garbled and intended to further a sharp piece of speculation on the part of the law officers of the United States in Utah. The following letter from Salt Lake City, from a reliable correspondent, throws much light on the conspiracy, and shows the relationship that is more than suspected to exist between the chiefs of the Mormon Church and the representatives of the government:—

SALT LAKE CITY, U. T., March 30, 1877.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

You have hit the nail on the head. This second confession was constructed on speculation, but was written by Lee under the most solemn pledges to him by the District Attorney and United States Marshal that his life should be spared. There are witnesses here who heard these pledges made by the above officials to Lee. It is also the intention of the same parties to publish a book upon the subject, from which it is hoped to realize a much larger amount than was obtained from the sale of this confession. The officials are most certainly speculating in this matter, not only by the sale of the confession and of the proposed book, but also in the gold of the Mormon Church. It is a fact that can be credibly substantiated that James Jack, the financial agent of Brigham Young, has been closeted with both the United States Attorney and Marshal for hours at a time, both before and after Lee's execution, and a careful examination of the confession referred to fails to disclose any direct implication of Brigham Young in the massacre. With Brigham whitewashed and Lee foully disposed of it was thought that the investigation of this and kindred Mormon atrocities would cease. But the attention of the press, that censor of public opinion for forty millions of people, has been called to the subject, and what was fondly hoped by the Mormon leaders and their hirelings would be the end will prove but the beginning of disclosures, fatal alike to Mormonism and corrupt United States officials.

The name of the writer of the above is withheld from publication for obvious reasons. The Mormon official ring have no scruples with regard to such correspondents.

ANXIETY OF THE OFFICIALS.

Of course the suspected officials deny the truth of all statements charging them with collusion with the Church authorities and suppressing evidence against Brigham Young and his chief priests. Yet a feeling of deep uneasiness pervades official circles, and feverish protests of innocence are heard in Salt Lake City. From the United States District Attorney the following telegram is addressed to the HERALD:—

SALK LAKE, April 9, 1877.

J. G. BENNETT, NEW YORK HERALD:—

If one Gilman has made a statement regarding me, I inform you it is false. Mormons have used and concealed him.

HOWARD, U. S. District Attorney.

In the desperate effort to conceal the facts the accused parties are believed to be capable of resorting to violence if necessary. It is, therefore, considered unsafe for any one knowing the details to utter a word regarding them in Utah Territory.

GILMAN'S AFFIDAVIT—A STATEMENT FROM ONE OF LEE'S GUARDS CHARGING DISTRICT ATTORNEY HOWARD WITH SUPPRESSING IMPORTANT PARTS OF LEE'S CONFESSION.

WASHINGTON, April 10, 1877.

A strange sequel to the tragedy of John D. Lee's execution at Mountain Meadows is contained in an official paper which was filed yesterday with the Department of Justice in Washington.

A PROMISE OF PARDON.

This is no less than an affidavit by Edwin Gilman, of of Salt Lake City, that Lee was induced to make a confession to the United States District Attorney on the promise that in return for such confession he should receive a reprieve and eventually a full pardon. This promise, Gilman alleges, was made to Lee by the District Attorney in furtherance of a plan to implicate, expose and punish all the Mormon leaders, from Brigham Young down, who were believed to be concerned in the Mountain Meadows massacre.

GILMAN'S EMPLOYMENT.

Gilman alleges that he was specially engaged as a go-between by the District Attorney to make the overtures to Lee for the confession, and to promise eventual immunity to Lee in consideration of the disclosures he should make. In his capacity of guard at the Penitentiary at Beaver, he had free access to the cell of Lee, and was occupied quite a while in conducting the negotiations before a mutual understanding was had between Lee and the District Attorney. Lee was cautioned by the latter not to make known the substance of his confession to anybody, not even to his wife Rachel, who, it will be remembered, was the constant companion of his closing hours on earth, and attended him in his cell up to the moment of his removal for execution.

HE READS LEE'S CONFESSION.

But Gilman says that the confession was read by himself and by Rachel during odd moments when Lee happened to be absent from his cell taking exercise, during which intervals their curiosity got the better of them and they read the folios of manuscript as they lay on Lee's writing desk.

SUBSTANCE OF THE DOCUMENT.

From these furtive and detached perusals of the confession Gilman acquired a general knowledge of its substance, which he says is at variance with the confession given to the public by the District Attorney.

THE HERALD STORY.

It will be remembered that the HERALD published in advance of the press a telegraphic report from Salt Lake City of Lee's confession, in which Lee directly and unequivocally charged Brigham Young with being responsible for the order under which the dreadful massacre at Mountain Meadows was perpetrated.

IT IS THE UNGARBLED VERSION.

Discrepancy between the two confessions on this point of Brigham Young's alleged guilt was commented upon widely at the time, and is now accounted for by by Gilman, who says that the charge against Brigham Young made by Lee in his confession to the District Attorney was expunged, and that the entire paper was garbled in the interest of the Mormon chief after it had passed out of Lee's possession and before it was given to the public. The original confession published by the HERALD was made by Lee when he was under sentence of death and before any delusive promise of a reprieve and pardon could have been held out to him according to the statement of Gilman. It is strange, therefore, that under the inducement of such promised pardon, the second confession should be less severe upon Brigham Young.

REQUESTED TO DISMISS HIS LAWYERS.

Gilman also says that in taking his first message to Lee from the District Attorney, he was instructed to tell the prisoner that if he would dismiss his lawyers and put himself wholly in communication with and under the protection of the District Attorney, he, Lee, would be serving his own interests in the most salutary way.

IN THE TOILS.

Hence it was that Lee gradually came under the influence of the District Attorney, who thenceforth plied him with the hope of pardon until he secured the confession in its entirety, and then kept his victim under the belief that reprieve would arrive at any moment, until the fusilade of the firing party ended his life and his deception together.

LEE DECEIVED.

It may seem improbable that a man of the cunning and discernment of Lee should not have detected the deception practiced upon him, when, during the last few hours of his life, he was taken a hundred miles away from the reach of the telegraph to be done to death in a solitude where reprieve could reach him only by a miracle. But those who have prompted Gilman to make a clean breast of his connection with what they denounce as an outrage upon the sacred name of justice point to the manner of Lee's death as evidence that he was sustained to the last moment by the expectation of a reprieve.

HOPING TO THE LAST MOMENT.

His theatrical bearing, his imperturbable coolness when, sitting on the coffin, he gave suggestions to the newspaper artist as to how he should be sketched—all, they say, indicate a secret belief that he was acting a farce, and that his ushering into eternity was as unexpected as if he had been struck by lightning. This is the web of the story as woven by Gilman in his affidavit, and elaborated by the persons who have urged him to make it.

GILMAN'S REASONS.

Gilman says that he was first moved by remorse to tell what he has revealed as above. As to the discrepancy in the two confessions he says he can be corroborated by Rachel, the widow of Lee.

HOWARD'S MOTIVE.

As to the alleged motive of the suppression of the part implicating Brigham Young, it would hardly be just to the District Attorney to repeat it until he has had an opportunity to explain why the suppression was made, if it really were made.

GILMAN'S CHARACTER.

Gilman has had the benefit of a testimonial from the District Attorney, who, in recommending him a month ago for an appointment as mail carrier, testified that he was a reliable and competent man.

WAITING TO HEAR THE OTHER SIDE.

On the other hand it is said in defence of the District Attorney that the charge against him is the work of a number of politicians anxious to get him removed from his office in the interest of a favorite, and that the whole thing is a conspiracy which will come to light in due time.

RETICENCE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL.

Meantime the Attorney General refuses to allow the affidavit to be made public. He says that persons accused have rights as well as accusers.

A PERTINENT QUESTION.

[From the Salt Lake Tribune, March 31.]

Why did not Governor Brigham Young investigate the Mountain Meadows massacre himself? He was Governor at the time, commander-in-chief of the Utah militia, and ex officio Superintendent of Indian Affairs for the Territory. Indeed, he had Utah under martial law so far as he had the power to declare it.

THE CRUCIFIXION.

LECTURE BY RABBI E. B. M. BROWNE.

Rabbi E. B. M. Browne delivered last night in Irving Hall a lecture on the Crucifixion of Christ, wherein he undertook to prove that the Jews are innocent of the blood of Christ. The lecturer said that Mr Moody and Senator Sargent, of California, had, by their recent remarks, in which it was charged that the Jews crucified Christ, called out the statements he would make in refutation of the accusation.

The lecturer said he would assume, for the sake of argument, that all contained in the New Testament is true and that Christ is God, and, having assumed the form of a man, he must be considered as any other member of the human family. Jesus came down knowingly to be put to death, and it was necessary for his plans that his divine nature should remain a secret. The question then was, Did the Jews crucify Jesus; are they responsible for his death; do they approve of his assassination; do they rejoice in having participated in it?

The lecturer went into an elaborate argument to show that the whole narrative of Christ's apprehension, trial, conviction and execution, as related in St. Mark's Gospel, are at square issue with the known facts governing the Hebrew law in such cases. There could be no doubt but Christ aspired to be the Messiah, or Saviour of his people. He performed many miracles, but nearly all of them took place in the wild mountains of Galilee, where the people were extremely ignorant. Rabbis, too, had been known to perform miracles. About that time a rabbi caught the devil, literally, and held him in bondage for a good while; another got hold of the angel of death's sword so that for a considerable period no one could die and God was put to a good deal of trouble in persuading the rabbi to give up this tremendous weapon. Hence it was nothing extraordinary that Jesus should work miracles in Galilee. The lecturer then defended Judas Iscariot and argued that the money he received was not as a reward for a traitorous betrayal of Christ, but rather because he had tried to have Jesus conveyed to a place of safety. Judas was a good and faithful servant of his great master.

SEVENTH REGIMENT VETERANS.

A FASCINATING WORK ON AN ENTRANCING TOPIC

HE WILL COME,

by

STEPHEN H. TYNG, Jr., D.D.

This work is not prophetical. It discusses the topic as a Divine promise. Its plan is to follow the narrative of a Christian's experience of the revealed facts in the next dispensation. There is not a line of controversy in the volume. Yet it is full of bold and original thought, apt illustration, and forcible writing, and it is a work which no one who is "watching and waiting" for the Lord can afford to miss.

WALL STREET,
TUESDAY, April 10—6 P. M.

Not even the political news, which still comes to-day in a threatening shape from Europe, has any perceptible effect upon the market for railway shares. Cereals have improved and the price of gold has advanced, but the great lines of traffic, which are to be especially benefited by the transportation of produce to the seaboard for shipment, refuse to respond. The rumor alluded to yesterday regarding the leasing of Lake Shore by Central and Hudson was this morning worked up into a plausible shape, details being given as to the percentage of rental and the exact amount of stock acquired by Mr. Vanderbilt in furtherance of the scheme duly stated. Perhaps one-half per cent or so was squeezed out of the Shore line in the way of a rise by the ingenious invention, but believers were few and stock plentiful, and the price shortly fell back to opening figures. Of more serious moment was a real sensation provided by a break down in Rock Island and Northwestern shares. The first named declined from 96¾ to 94, and of the second the common sort fell from 31⅜ to 27, and the preferred from 48⅞ to 46⅝. To account for this there were plenty of slop-shop reasons, ready made to suit the tastes of inquisitive operators; and of these the following received chief credence:—First, that Mr. Tracy was desperately ill, if not deceased; and, second, that a certain bank holding these stocks as collaterals against loans had called in the latter and compelled a forced sale of the securities. By way of lending additional pungency to the sensation, it was whispered (in a Thespian way) that a prominent operator on 'Change had come to grief through the compulsory process aforesaid. We have reason to believe the report to be entirely unfounded, and the subsequent rally, although of moderate proportions, confirms the impression. A fall back on the part of Burlington and Quincy from 102¼ to 100½ was regarded as a suspicion that the entente cordiale between this company and Jay Gould's Western combination was not so well founded as had been represented, but nothing definite was known about the matter.

The market closed nearly as it had opened, the episode referred to being the only relief to what would otherwise have been a state of supreme dulness.

THE SALES TO-DAY.

The sales to-day aggregated 192,127 shares, which were distributed as follows:—New York Central, 10,666; Harlem, 300; Erie, 200; Lake Shore, 19,100; Wabash, 300; Northwestern, 2,700; Northwestern preferred, 7,150; Rock Island, 13,390; Milwaukee and St. Paul, 600; Milwaukee and St. Paul preferred, 6,300; Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, 57,420; New Jersey Central, 1,000; Delaware and Hudson Canal, 4,844; Morris and Essex, 530; Michigan Central, 5,400; Illinois Central, 1,050; Union Pacific, 500; Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, 840; Ohio and Mississippi, 300; Panama, 200; Western Union, 57,400; Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph, 154; Pacific Mail, 2,350; Quicksilver, 200; Adams Express, 285.

PRODUCE EXPORTS.

The exports of produce for the week ending to-day were $5,995,142, against $4,523,402 for the corresponding week last year, and $4,151,269 in 1875. The exports of produce since January 1 were $72,837,279, against $69,336,951 for the corresponding period last year, and $66,752,418 in 1875.

Government bonds, in sympathy with gold, were firm and higher, and they closed firm at the following quotations:—United States currency sixes, 123½ a 123¾; do. do., 1881, registered, 112⅜ a 112⅝; do. do., do., coupon, 112¾ a 113⅛; do. do., 1865, registered, 105⅞; do. do., do., coupon, 108⅜; do. do., do., new registered, 109⅛ a 109⅜; do. do., do., coupon, 109⅛ a 109⅜; do. do., 1867, registered, 112 a 112¼; do. do., do., coupon, 112 a 112¼; do. do., 1868, registered, 113¾ a 114; do. do., do., coupon, 113¾ a 114; do., ten-forties, registered, 111⅛ a 111⅜; do. do., coupon, 112 a 112¼; do. fives, 1881, registered, 111⅛ a 111⅜; do. do., do., coupon, 111⅛ a 111⅜; do. 4½'s, 1891, registered, 106⅞ a 107.

THE FOREIGN MARKET.

The London advices reported consols ⅛ per cent lower at the opening; but a recovery to 96⅛ a 96¼, the closing quotation yesterday, afterward took place. United States bonds are steady and unchanged except for ten-forties, which are ¼ higher, selling at 109¼. Illinois Central declined ½ per cent, selling at 44½. Three months' bills are discounted in the open market at 1⅛ a 1¼ per cent. The weekly statement of the Imperial Bank of Germany shows a decrease in specie of 2,500,000 marks. In Paris rentes declined to 107f. 95c., and in Frankfort United States new fives sold at 103⅛. The following were the closing prices in London:—Consols for money and account, 96⅛ a 96¼; five-twenty bonds of 1865, old, 106; five-twenty bonds of 1867, 109⅛; ten-forty bonds, 109⅛ a 109¼; new fives, 108⅜; Erie common shares, 6⅛ a 6⅜; Erie preferred shares, 16½; New York Central, 91. Illinois Central, 44½ a 45. In Montreal the stock market was very strong. TUESDAY, April 10—6 P. M.

There was a fair movement in trade and the markets were generally steady on 'Change. Flour was firm. Wheat irregular, unsettled and decidedly lower, closing nominal. Corn was higher, with a good demand. Oats strong. Whiskey firm. Pork dull and easy. Lard without decided change. Freights were quiet. Cotton on the spot was weak. Futures closed strong. Coffee and sugar remained quiet. Oils and petroleum were also quiet, as were also naval stores.

ASHES were quoted at 5c. for pots and 6¾c for pearls.

ANTIMONY was quiet at 13c. a 13½c. gold for regulus.

BEESWAX.—The market was very firm and active. The sales were 8,000 a 10,000 lbs. Western and Southern, chiefly for export, at 33½c. a 34½c. Some holders were asking ½c. above those prices.

BROOM CORN was dull and nominal at 3½c. a 5c. for red tipped, 5c. a 6c. for medium and 6c. a 7c. for choice green.

COFFEE.—There was a fair business passing in Rio at steady prices. Sales were 500 bags ex Humboldt, 2,470 ex F. H. Todd, and at New Orleans 4,000 bags ex Elmina, all on private terms. Mild coffee was quiet. We quote:—Ordinary cargoes, 16c. a 16½c.; fair do., 18¼c. a 18½c.; good do., 18¾c. a 19c.; prime do., 19¾c. a 20c.; extreme range for lots, 16c. a 21½c.; Santos, fair to good, 18½c. a 19c., gold, 90 days; Java, government bags 22c. a 23c.; do., grass mats, 23c. a 24c.; Singapore, 19c. a 21c.; Ceylon, 19c. a 21c.; Maracaibo, 18c. a 20c.; Laguayra, 18c. a 20c.; Jamaica, 17c. a 18c.; St. Domingo, 16c. a 16½c.; Porto Rico, 18c. a 20c.; Costa Rica, 18c. a 21c.; Mexican, 18c. a 19½c.; Macassar, 19c. a 21c.; Angostura, 19c. a 20½c.; Savanilla, 18c. a 20c.; Curacoa, 16c. a 18½c.

COOPERAGE STOCK was quiet. We quote:—Molasses shooks, 32-inch, with heads, $1 75 a $2 10; sugar shooks, with heads, 38-inch, $2 30 a $2 65; do., do., 36-inch $1 50 a $2; box shooks, 75c. a 80c.; rum do., $4; pipe do., $6 a $6 50; empty hogsheads, $2 50; hoops, 14 feet, ordinary to prime, $33 a $35; hoops, 12 feet, do., $28 a $30 per M.

COPPER.—We note sales of about 300,000 lbs. lake at 19¾c. a 19⅞c.; market closing firm.

CORDAGE was unchanged. We quote:—Manila, large and small size, per lb., 11½c. a 14½c.; do., cordage, bolt rope yarns, 16c. a 17c.; tarred Manila, 14c.; Sisal rope, 10c. a 11c.; New Zealand, 11½c. a 12½c.; Russia hemp, tarred, 14c.; American do., 14c.; Russia bolt rope, 17c.

COTTON on the spot was quiet but unchanged, although prices were weak. Our market opened about 1-32c. lower than last night's closing. Liverpool was dull and easier; middling quoted at 6¼d.; sales 5,000 bales and futures 1-32d. cheaper. Later advices from Liverpool were more encouraging, and our market closed strong, with an advance for the day of from 1 to 6 points. The closing prices to-day compare with Monday's closing as follows:—

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

David Tynberg, manufacturer of paper collars, at No. 81 Walker street and No. 232 West Twenty-sixth street, has failed. The liabilities amount to about $60,000 and the actual assets are about $20,000. An offer has been submitted to the creditors to compromise at thirty cents on the dollar. Many of the creditors have signed an acceptance of the terms offered and the settlement is nearly effected.

Thomas Tate and Thomas Osborne, composing the firm of Tate & Osborne, dealers in stone at the foot of Ninety-first street and East River, have been adjudicated involuntary bankrupts on the petitions of a number of their creditors, and Register Fitch has received a warrant against them. The following are the largest claims of the petitioning creditors:—Robert Tate, $4,768; Prentiss & McIntyre, $3,177 04; the Dorchester Union Free Stone Company, $1,817 94; Marmaduke Richardson, $973. The first meeting of creditors is called for April 24.

Harvey S. Almy, the assignee in bankruptcy of Conrad C. Stutts, dealer in glassware at No. 27 Barclay street, applied to Register Fitch yesterday for his discharge as assignee and the settlement of his accounts. The application will be granted. The creditors have received five cents on the dollar.

A meeting of the creditors of Adolph Isaacson, dealer in bug powder at No. 46 Fulton street, was held yesterday at the office of Register Ketchum. A number of claims were proved and Mr. Leonard E. Curtis was elected assignee in bankruptcy.

In the County Clerk's office yesterday there was filed the assignment of James Dammarell to Ephraim R. Sale.

THE COAL COMPACT.

A GROWING IMPRESSION THAT IT WAS NO COMPACT AT ALL.

The recent compact of the coal producing and carrying companies was the subject of considerable comment on the street and among the coal trade yesterday, and the sentiment seemed to prevail that nothing had really been accomplished after all the councils held. As reflected through the quoted prices of some of the coal stocks this view seemed to take firm hold of operators and receive confirmation to the extent that with active transactions there was noticeable a sharp decline.

To ascertain how the coal trade viewed the situation a HERALD reporter called on a coal man of some experience. This gentleman, while hoping that the roads would adhere to the agreement for which they voted, said it could not be denied that they had failed to accomplish the objects for which they met. He complained of the fact that they put off till June the contemplated raise of fifty cents a ton, and remarked that without agreeing to a penalty for a violation of the compact there was really nothing but self-interest to hold any of them to the percentages or the other terms of the agreement. He said there were many good reasons why they did not agree to any penalty. Some, he believed, considered the percentages unfair to them because they had but one outlet, while others had a northern as well as a southern outlet for the coal they produced.

Coal consumers will not be very likely to regard this as unwelcome news, whatever the trade may think.

COTTON RULES.

The following amendment to the bylaws of the Cotton Exchange has been promulgated:—

All questions relating to the grades, quality or condition of cotton on time contracts under rule 1 requiring the examination of the samples for decision, if not otherwise agreed upon by the deliverer and receiver, must be decided by the two brokers acting for them; or if they fail to agree then by the two brokers and any member of the Exchange upon whom they may agree, the three agreeing as arbitrators, the award of the majority to be binding and subject to appeal to the Committee on Classification only as to the classification of cotton delivered.

QUARTERLY BANK STATEMENT.

The quarterly statement of the State banks of New York city shows the total liabilities to March 31, 1877, to be $57,398,900, being a decrease of $386,400, as compared with the quarter ending December 23, 1876. The total resources at the same date foot up an increase over the resources for the previous quarter of $2,200.

SUBURBAN GASLIGHT.

The Aldermanic Committee on Law was yesterday directed to look into the allegations relative to the over charges by the Suburban Gaslight Company in furnishing the annexed district with gas. The resolution was adopted on motion of Alderman Cole at yesterday's meeting of the Board. The same gentleman presented a resolution calling upon the Gas Commission to take away all unnecessary lamps in the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth wards.

Alderman Purroy objected to the introduction of such resolutions without his knowledge. It was discourteous, as he represented that district. The speaker knew where these resolutions came from. Since annexation only fourteen lamps had been placed in the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth wards.

Alderman Cole denied any discourtesy to the gentleman, and considered that he had a right to introduce whatever measure he pleased.

After some further debate both resolutions were referred to the Law Committee.

WATERED MILK.

Dr. Post, of the Board of Health, caught Ernest Schwartz, a milkman, of No. 548 Eleventh avenue, in the act of selling watered milk. Yesterday he was arraigned at the Fifty-seventh Street Court, and held in $500 bail.

PROTECTING THE ORPHAN.

A DECISION OF THE GENERAL TERM OF THE SUPREME COURT WHICH WILL REJOICE WIDOWS AND ORPHANS—NO COSTS TO BE ALLOWED TO PARTIES DEFEATED IN A WILL CONTEST.

The General Term of the Supreme Court, presided over by Judge Davis, seem to be engaged in a laudable endeavor to correct the various abuses of the law, some of which were referred to at length in the HERALD of Sunday. The decision of the General Term unanimously rebuking Judge Donohue for his "unjustifiable" and illegal action in fining a debtor the amount of judgment and costs which had been obtained against him, for contempt in refusing to answer a question, and committing him to jail until he should have paid this unprecedented fine, was a sadly needed warning to others of our judges. While that decision was a welcome protection of the outraged rights of personal liberty another is equally important in guarding orphans and widows from the rapacity of lawyers who are ready to contest wills, even when they have no genuine case, and, if they are defeated, feel sure of getting at least heavy counsel fees out of the estate. Judge Davis has just delivered an elaborate opinion, concurred in by Judges Brady and Daniels, deciding that the Surrogate cannot allow costs to the defeated party in a will contest.

THE OBJECT OF THE DECISION.

This decision is meant to break up a practice, or, rather, malpractice, which has been going on for years, and robbed many a poor widow and helpless orphan of the best portion of their inheritance for the benefit of some speculative lawyer. In the present instance the amount of costs involved is only $3,000 out of an estate of about $100,000; but it is the principle which is of importance, and not the accidental amount in any case. The present case arose out of the contest over the will of Eliza Hearsey. The Surrogate found against the contestants, the Children's Aid Society and St. Luke's Home, but allowed their counsel, Messrs. D. R. Jaques and H. L. Clinton, $3,000 for fees and disbursements. The executors of the will, which was admitted to probate, appealed to the General Term from that part of the Surrogate's decision making the allowance, and the latter has now been reversed, so that the lawyers in question have to go without their fees and are not even reimbursed for their actual expenses. They have, however, appealed from this decision annulling their allowances to the Court of Appeals, whose final adjudication of the question will, of course, be looked forward to with unusual interest by the legal fraternity. After showing by numerous quotations from laws and precedents that such allowances to defeated parties were never contemplated by the statute, Judge Davis proceeds in his opinion as follows:—

JUDGE DAVIS' OPINION.

We think, therefore, that the Surrogate has no power under the act of 1870 to make allowances to parties who do not "prevail" in cases contested before him. He may excuse such parties, if the case be in his judgment a proper one, from the payment of costs personally; but he cannot take the subject matter of the contest which he adjudges to belong to the successful party and distribute it or any part of it among his defeated antagonists. A construction which permits that to be done is hostile to the spirit of our laws, which in cases of established testacy requires estates to be divided according to the will of the testator, and in cases of intestacy according to the statute of distributions. It is also against public policy, for it virtually offers a bribe to reckless contestants and their counsel to prevent the settlement of estates by promoting litigation and engendering strife, when every interest of the public calls for their speedy adjustment. It might lead to great abuses to the injury of the widows and orphans, and the creditors of deceased persons whom all courts should be sedulous to protect. It would be a hazardous experiment for a wealthy man to attempt to dispose of his estate by his own will if it could be distributed at the mere will of the Surrogate among the counsel of all who choose to set up whatever pretence of contest the ingenuity of avarice can devise. We do not mean by these suggestions to indicate that the will in this case was improperly contested, but on the contrary we think the contestants had probable cause to resist the probate of the will propounded and that their contest was in all respects fairly conducted, and for that reason we have excused them from costs in all the appeals. Without considering the several other questions presented by the appeal, some of which are fatal to a large portion of the allowance, we think it our duty to reverse the parts of the order appealed from, but without costs.

THE HISTORY OF THE WILL.

The above decision will revive the interest attaching to the case out of which it arose, and which is also pending before the Court of Appeals. Eliza Hearsey, an old lady of seventy-seven, living at No. 40 Charlton street, died on February 3, 1875, leaving an estate valued at about $100,000. Two wills were found, one executed on July 11, 1874—only seven months before her death—which left her property to a niece in Boston, a Miss Noyes, and the family of James Loveridge, who had lived with the old woman for a year previous to her death. Another and prior will, executed on February 8, 1872, provided for Miss Noyes also but in a smaller degree, left the Loveridges out in the cold entirely, and left a large portion of her estate to the Children's Aid Society and St. Luke's Home. The last named societies contested the will through their counsel, Messrs. D. R. Jaques and H. L. Clinton, on the ground of undue influence exercised by Miss Noyes and the Loveridge family. It appeared on the trial that the latter had leased the Charlton street residence of Mrs. Hearsey, under agreement to leave certain rooms for her exclusive occupation, and to provide her board (in lieu of paying rent). Mrs. Hearsey suffered from a variety of diseases, was feeble and even flighty in her mind—so much so that she sometimes imagined she was in her old King street residence. One of the strongest points made by the contestants was that the attesting witnesses were all parties interested in the second will, and that no one knew of its execution, not even Mrs. Hearsey's old nurse, until after her death. Mr. Loveridge testified that the will was drawn up by him in the basement upon instructions received up stairs in her room from the testatrix, but that he had torn up the instructions. Surrogate Hutchings, in an extended opinion, admitted the second will to probate on the ground that neither mental weakness nor undue influence had been established sufficiently to reverse it. The General Term confirmed this decision on appeal, but the case has now been carried to the Court of Appeals, where it is still pending.

THE BURNED UNFORTUNATE.

At last the "unknown" party, who was suspected of having set fire to the clothing of his mistress, Lucy Freeman, at a house of ill-fame in Twenty-seventh street, on the 3d inst., and so causing her death, was taken into custody yesterday at the corner of Houston and Mulberry streets by detectives Ferris and Adams. The prisoner is a low sized man, aged forty-five, and of a very excitable temperament. When relating his connection with the sad affair before Mr. Toal, the Coroner's clerk, he waved his arms to and fro and gesticulated wildly. His name is Henry Cooper; he is a native of Holland; has a strong foreign accent and has lived at No. 162 East Houston street. He is a pastry cook and had been acquainted with the unfortunate girl for some time and called on her, according to his own statement, on the 3d inst. The pair were smoking in the girl's room, and the accident occurred through Lucy's own carelessness. She twisted up a piece of paper eighteen inches long, lit it at the gas jet, passed it to Henry, who lit his cigar with it and then handed it back to Lucy, who also lit a cigarette. Then she dropped the paper into the spittoon, a little behind her, and before she was aware of her danger her train had caught fire and she was enveloped in flames. To use Cooper's words:—

"I tried to stamp and put out ze flame, mais, I cannot; I run to ze bath room, get water, do all possible to stop ze fire. It is no use. Ze girl cry out; ze house is alarm; people come; I am 'fraid; don't like to be caught in such place; so I fly; mais, not by ze bath room."

During this speech, made in the strongest of French accents, which no doubt accounts for his having been described as a Frenchman, he was laboring under the most intense excitement. He concluded:—

"I did not make fire to dis girl. Nevare! Nevare! If ze vorld sall not believe me, I appeal to Heaven!"

This was said with all the melodramatic gesture calculated to add effect to the words. The man was then taken to the Central Office, to be kept there until this morning, when he will appear at the inquest.

REV. (?) MR. VALENTINI.

When the reverend Mr. Valentini, the Italian clergyman of many creeds, whose alleged vile career was noticed in yesterday's HERALD, left the court room on Monday afternoon for his cheerless cell in the Tombs his face was as rosy as a ripe apple and his appearance that of a man accustomed to good living. Yesterday, when taken out for further examination, he was a marvellously changed man. The ruddy complexion had given place to a death-like hue. His eyes were wild and haggard, his cheeks sunken, and his entire form appeared to have shrunk. A more marked change in twenty-four hours is of rare occurrence. Every feature of his pale face told of the suffering he had undergone during his brief incarceration.

The case made against him on the day previous by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children was rendered infinitely worse yesterday by the testimony of a boy of thirteen years, who swore to further vile practices by Valentini. The lad told his story in an unblushing manner, and admitted his own complicity with such coolness that it were difficult to determine which of the two, Valentini or the boy, supposing the story to be true, was the most degraded.

After a brief examination Justice Kilbreth increased the prisoner's bail $2,000, making it $3,500, and in default of the same he was again sent to prison.

A COSTLY CUSTOMER.

In the case of Mrs. Caroline Peterson, under the Civil Damages act against Charles Walker, proprietor of the West End (Long Island) Hotel, whom she sued for $500 for having sold her husband liquor, the jury returned a verdict in her favor for $400.

THE YOUNG MAN FROM TIOGA.

On board the steamer Rhode Island Orrin F. Ruggles, of Tioga county, Pennsylvania, yesterday took passage for Providence. Orrin is a young man, fresh from his native heath and innocent of guile, and as he strode the vessel's deck yesterday he longed for a cheerful companion. Such a one presented himself in the person of Ed Nesbit, a gentleman peculiar "for ways that are dark," but who, in a vest and coat of clerical cut, is a man of singularly meek and saintly presence. In such guise he came yesterday and to Mr. Ruggles he imparted, with a show of consequence, that he was a leather merchant who had a cargo of hides on board. The young man from Tioga was delighted to make so reputable an acquaintance, and when the latter showed him a pocketbook filled with gold coin his opinion of the stranger became still higher. After absenting himself for a while to look after his merchandise the clerical looking stranger reappeared, and said hurriedly that he was at a loss for change to pay some freight charges, and taking out a one hundred dollar bill he laid it on Orrin's lap and said—

"Will you loan me $45 for an hour or two till we can change that bill? Keep it till then."

Mr. Ruggles was only too happy to be in a position to oblige his new acquaintance, and he at once counted out the required sum. The stranger took it, smiled his gratitude, rose to go, and then, as if an idea struck him, he said:—

"Ah, perhaps I could get some change for the bill below. Let me have it if you can and take this," at the same time producing the plethoric pocketbook in which was the gold coin. "Take it, my dear sir," he added, seeing that Mr. Ruggles hesitated, "it is a mere form, of course, but judicious, sir, very judicious among business men. One cannot tell nowadays with whom one is dealing. Take it, sir, till I return."

The stranger, smiling still more suavely, bowed himself away, and the Tioga youth placed the pocketbook in his coat, thinking all the time how precise and formal these business men were in their dealings. There had been a witness, however, to this colloquy in the person of a small but thoroughly posted darky, who expressed his contempt of the whole proceeding by halloing out,

"Hay, Boss! Reckon you're sold. That 'ar ole cuss'll dust away with the sugar. You're robbed boss, shuah."

At this Orrin F. Ruggles, of Tioga, rose to his feet, and, in his surprise and consternation, hoarsely articulated:—

"Sonny, I kin run some."

And he could. Before the stranger had left the pier Orrin had overhauled him, and with his hand fiercely clutching the coat of clerical cut he demanded his money. His acquaintance of the upper deck looked up in surprise.

"What!" said he, "did you think I was stealing it, sir? If you did, sir, here it is. Now give me mine."

At this moment Sergeant Gastlin, of the steamboat squad, appeared and arrested Orrin's friend, who was no other than Edward Nesbit, alias Adams, a well known confidence operator.

It is needless to add that the plethoric pocketbook contained a lot of bogus coin.

LOVE VERSUS LAW.

The Brooklyn Board of Health procured a warrant from Justice Walsh for the arrest of John Walsh, residing in Little Nassau street, near Kent avenue, charging him with having resisted the efforts of the officer in charge of the smallpox ambulance to remove a patient to the County Hospital, Flatbush. The patient is his daughter, a girl thirteen years of age, sick with the smallpox. The penalty for resisting a sanitary officer under such circumstances is imprisonment for not more than thirty days, or a fine of not less than $10.

We have another hit of the play in the very rich acting of Mr. Wallack as an English Barrister addressing a jury for his injured client. Yet he does not remind you of Buzfuz, but rather of a man of note, and that style of eloquence which a clever pleader uses before an English jury.
No one without the thousand little elegances of expression and manner which only Lester Wallack has could begin to play the part as well.—Correspondence Cincinnati Enquirer.

INFERNAL MACHINE, OR WHAT?

The Steamer Frisia's Mysterious Cask of Wine.

PANIC AT THE PUBLIC STORES.

Is There Another "Dynamite Fiend" in Existence?

From Deputy Collector Blatchford, down through the superintendents, examiners, gaugers, samplers and laborers at the United States public stores, Washington and Laight streets, this city, there was considerable commotion yesterday afternoon. This commotion was unpleasantly linked with a real, downright, disagreeable fright that for a while blocked the wheels of business and made one and all alike hold their breaths and shudder at "what might have been." The cause of this sudden turning topsy turvy of a well regulated department of the customs was the discovery in an unpretentious cask of unpalatable wine of a tin can that contained cartridges of dynamite, enough in number and quantity to have blown the public stores and all within them, men and merchandise, to Davy Jones' locker. This deadly explosive agent was neatly packed away, with several hundred feet of fuse, of two varieties, and about two and a half gallons of glycerine, making an infernal machine of the most frightful character. Luckily the discovery was made without accident, but the rolling and the turning and the thumping and the jarring that the cask and can received before the presence of the terrible agent and its villainous accompaniments were known seem sufficient to have exploded the cartridges, and that this result did not come to pass seems like a special interference on the part of Providence. How the infernal machine, or whatever it may be appropriately called, was discovered is as follows:—

A PERPLEXED GAUGER.

The cask of wine—and a meaner looking cask never was seen—was discharged from the hold of the Hamburg-American Packet Company's steamship Frisia, at Hoboken, on the 23d of March last. "Wein" was marked conspicuously on one of the heads, and under it, in white paint, was this address:—

Mr. JACOB FRECH,
Huntington,
Huntington county,
North America. Indiana.

Rolled out of the way until the gaugers could attend to their duty of looking after the cask it remained on the dock for several days. The steamer's manifest showed that it was consigned to Messrs. A. C. L. & O. Meyers, forwarding agents, of New York. How much the cask was bounced about on the Hoboken pier none of the laborers in the steamship company's employ now care to admit, but its insignificant appearance was the cause of its being frequently tossed and tumbled around out of the way of the larger freight. Had they known what was inside of its sturdy staves that dock would have been cleared within the twinkling of an eye and given a very wide berth until the danger was removed. In due time the gauger, armed with his gauging rod, came along and stopped before Frech's cask. His companion, the official "bung starter" followed, and at once commenced the thumping process to start the bung and leave the gauger's way clear. Down into the depths of the wine—right, left and through the middle—went the rod part of the way, but the examination failed to be satisfactory.

"Queer sort of wine, this!" growled the gauger.

"Why, what's the matter?" asked the bung starter.

"Don't know, but it's devilish queer wine—some Dutch stuff," again growled the man of the rod, and down the second time he endeavored to plunge the instrument. As before it struck something very solid, and, as wine "don't come that way," the gauger thought, he gave up the job.

"Let me try," urged the bung starter, and with the handle of his wooden mallet he plunged in every direction inside the cask, and he, too, failed to discover the obstruction.

"Them's smuggled goods in there," shouted gleefully the man of the mallet.

"Sure as smoke," chimed in the man of the rod.

"Let's report it," exclaimed the first.

"Agreed," cried the gauger, and the cask for a time was left alone, the above officials proceeding with their work, while visions of "percentage" from the sale of the valuable goods within flitted through their minds.

AT THE PUBLIC STORES.

In due time Mr. Joseph Farrington, chief examiner of liquors at the public stores, was apprised of the mysterious cask taken from the Frisia's hold, and he at once ordered it across the river to the sample room in the building. It arrived two or three days since, and yesterday morning, when Mr. Farrington first saw it, he seemed rather disgusted that the cask was so small. It would hold not more than eighteen gallons. Farrington forgot all about the size of the cask in a few minutes, and stood aghast at what it disclosed. The staves were fully an inch thick, and several iron and wooden hoops at intervals of only two or three inches made it very strong. All being ready for the official examination of the cask's contents, the work was commenced in the presence of several persons. A pail was procured and the wine removed. There was only a moderate quantity, and that was of the most miserable quality. "Not fit to drink," said everybody. "No, not even fit to smell," added they. And so the liquor was placed aside as of no value and beneath notice.

"Knock those wooden hoops off," ordered Farrington.

A dozen smart raps with a hammer and the hoops were on the floor.

"I'll take the head out," said Farrington, and suiting the action to the words, the cask could be looked into in a minute.

INFERNAL MACHINE OR WHAT?

Braced fore and aft and athwartships, in the centre of the cask, was a can, hermetically sealed, about 11½ inches long and 10 inches through. There was no mark to determine its contents. Farrington called for tools, when he cut the thick wire braces and lifted the can from its place. The Frisia's voyage of thirteen days from Hamburg had failed to move it. Another tool was called for and Farrington went to work more lively than ever to find out what was inside of the can. The top was soon cut open, and then—well, there were more white faces about that cask than there has been about any similar cask in the public stores for an age. By instinct, seemingly, every man was instantly conscious that there was danger in the air. The two varieties of fuse lay neatly coiled in the centre of the can, and filling it was some dark fluid—glycerine, it was called. Two mysterious, small tin boxes lay on top, and around the sides were the dynamite cartridges. How many could not be ascertained, nor is it likely that the number will ever be known, as neither Mr. Farrington nor his attendants desired to extend the investigation.

So soon as the company gathered their wits the can was tenderly taken in hand and removed to the yard adjoining Hubert street, where, in the centre of the lot, it was placed. Here the HERALD reporter had a good chance of looking at the internal machine during the afternoon. The cartridges were 2½ inches long by ¾ inch through, and around each was a coarse straw colored wrapper, with the following business mark:—

GEBR. KREBS & CO., in Coln.

THE NEXT MOVE.

Out of the building safely, the next move was to get it out of the way altogether. To this end Deputy Collector Blatchford, who had been apprised of the whole affair, sent word to the headquarters of the Fire Department, and later in the day William Terhune, Inspector of Combustibles, with an assistant, responded. Neither of these officials liked the looks of the can and its contents, but what to do with it perplexed them decidedly. The HERALD reporter left them standing beside the machine, evidently undetermined how to act, but the feeling seemed to be that the best place for the entire contrivance was at the bottom of the North River. And there it likely is, or was placed, out of harm's way.

DEPUTY COLLECTOR BLATCHFORD'S THEORY.

Deputy Collector Blatchford's theory is that the shipper of the cask wished to send the dynamite to his friend Frech in Huntington, Ind., for business purposes and adopted this plan. The latter desired to blast with it, perhaps, and not for any design against life or property. Dynamite, since the attempt of Thomas to sink the Mosel, is not allowed to be carried in any shape by steamships across the ocean, and Frech and his foreign friend knowing this attempted its transportation surreptitiously. The careful bracing of the can leads to this conclusion, or so thinks Mr. Blatchford. Yet, if the cask should have fallen when being lowered into the hold of the steamship at Hamburg or being lifted out at the Hoboken dock, it would have blown the vessel into pieces. Such a terrible result must have occurred at any time had the braces of the can been started and a concussion of sufficient force befell the cask. "All's well that ends well," however, and the dynamite cartridges are now where Mr. Frech will never see them. The Frisia arrived at this port on the 20th of March with a full cargo and 272 passengers.

A DENIAL.

Joseph Barnabo, who is charged by Valentini, the ex-clergyman now in the Tombs on the charge of having acted outrageously toward children who went to his lodging house, with having been his partner and of enjoying the questionable luxury of seven wives, denies that he ever was a partner of his and laughs to scorn the accusation about the plurality of wives. "I have but one wife," said Barnabo to a HERALD reporter yesterday, "and she is a lady."

WASHINGTON.

GENERAL WASHINGTON DESPATCHES.

WASHINGTON, April 10, 1877.

THE ORGANIZATION OF THE NEXT HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES—CLERK ADAMS ON THE CONTESTED SEATS.

The Clerk of the House of Representatives to-day, in the course of conversation, said that up to this time he had furnished to the Treasury Department the names of such members of Congress elect only as he was satisfied ought to go upon the roll. The information had been asked by the department in order that it might know to whom instalments of salary might be paid. The Clerk also furnished the proof on which he thus acted. There are some certificates of election about which he supposes there may be a difference of opinion, and these he is now carefully considering with a view to a correct conclusion, and that he may act in the premises in conformity with what he understands to be the requirement of law.

The Clerk to-day received a brief despatch from Mr. Patterson, of Colorado, who denies the right of Mr. Belford to a seat in the next Congress on the ground that he could not be elected at the same election to fill the fragment of a term in the Forty-fourth and a full term in the Forty-fifth Congress. The convention providing that one representative from the State at large should be elected at the first election under the constitution and thereafter at such times and places as may be prescribed by law, Mr. Patterson contends that as such provision has not been made by the State his own election is valid under the general law of Congress, which establishes the Tuesday next after the first Monday in November as the day in each of the States and Territories for the election of Representatives and Delegates to the Forty-fifth Congress. The Clerk says he is now carefully considering the law and all the facts of the case of contest between Messrs. Patterson and Belford, and therefore cannot as yet even pretend to know exactly what he will do with regard to Colorado. His duty, however, requires that before each meeting of Congress he shall place on the roll the names of such persons only whose credentials show that they were regularly elected in accordance with the law of the State or the general law of the United States.

The Clerk has before him two sets of certificates from Louisiana; one of them from Governor Kellogg, giving the republicans four and the democrats two members, and the other from Governor Nicholls, giving the democrats four and the republicans two members of the House.

THE MAIL MESSENGER SERVICE IN NEW YORK—ASSISTANT POSTMASTER GENERAL BRADY'S DECISION RECONSIDERED.

Second Assistant Postmaster General Brady to-day reconsidered his decision of yesterday in relation to readvertising for proposals for mail messenger service in New York city, upon the showing of the bondsman that, notwithstanding the discrepancy in the date of his signing the bond, he was present when the bond was filed and when the bid was opened, thereby assenting to it. Under this statement of the case it was again referred to Judge Spence, Assistant Attorney General for the Post Office Department, who heard counsel for J. K. Otis, who claims the contract as the lowest bidder, and for Dodd & Co., the present contractors. Judge Spence delivered his opinion to General Brady late this evening, but the final decision of the department will not be announced until to-morrow. It has also been decided to readvertise the station service in Philadelphia, the wagons described in the advertisement being found, on investigation, not suitable for the service.

APPOINTMENTS IN THE TREASURY DEPARTMENT—THE LAW OF APPORTIONMENT TO BE RIGIDLY ENFORCED.

The following is the law relative to appointments in the Treasury Department:—

That on and after January 1, 1876, the appointments of this department shall be so arranged as to be equally distributed between the several States of the United States, the Territories and the District of Columbia, according to population.

Act approved March 3, 1875.

The above law Secretary Sherman will rigidly enforce, and under it there can at present be no appointments from New England, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Maryland, Delaware, West Virginia, Arizona and the District of Columbia. The Secretary will also insist that only one member of a family shall be employed in the Treasury Department.

REVENUE FRAUDS IN NORTH CAROLINA—MALICIOUS PROSECUTION OF THE AGENTS.

Very extensive revenue frauds in the manufacture of tobacco in North Carolina have recently been discovered, and the department purposes taking vigorous measures to bring the parties concerned in them to speedy punishment. Some thirty manufacturers in the county of Surrey are charged with participation in these fraudulent transactions, and have been indicted before a grand jury of the United States Circuit Court for the Western District of North Carolina within the past few days, through the efforts of Revenue Agents Brooks and Wagner. Major Wagner has charge of the district in which these frauds were perpetrated. As a means of deterring the revenue agents from the performance of their duties, a number of suits have been brought against them for alleged technical violations of law, but the department has signified its intention to fully sustain the agents in their zealous prosecution of these and all other violations of the internal revenue laws, and has assured them that the power of the government will be invoked to protect them against all such malicious suits. The frauds discovered in North Carolina are estimated by the revenue agents to exceed one-third of the total amount of internal revenue taxes collected in that State.

THE TRIAL OF OTTMAN, THE ALLEGED TREASURY ROBBER.

The case of W. H. Ottmann, indicted for receiving $47,000 stolen from the United States Treasury, was given to the jury at four o'clock this afternoon, but no verdict has yet been rendered, the jury being unable to agree.

THE ELECTORAL COMMISSION.

MINUTES OF THE CONSULTATIONS PUBLISHED IN THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—ATTITUDE ASSUMED BY JUDGE BRADLEY.

WASHINGTON, April 10, 1877.

The Congressional Record issued to-day makes a volume of 108 pages, covering the remarks of members of the Electoral Commission in the consultations thereof, as reduced to writing by themselves, in accordance with the resolution of the Commission.

JUSTICE BRADLEY'S POSITION.

Associate Justice Bradley, who was so often specially referred to by the press, took the ground that Congress cannot institute a scrutiny into the appointment of electors of a State; it would be taking it out of the hands of the State, to which it properly belongs. This never could have been contemplated by the States when they agreed to the constitution. It would be going one step further back than that instrument allows.

It is the business and jurisdiction of the State to prevent frauds from being perpetrated in the appointment of its electors and not the business or jurisdiction of Congress. The State is a sovereign power within its jurisdiction, and Congress can no more control or review the exercise of that jurisdiction than it can that of a foreign government.

LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEES.

The investigations made by legislative committees in the loose manner in which they are usually made are not only not adapted to the proper ascertainment of the truth for such a purpose, but are totally unauthorized by the constitution. As methods of inquiry for ordinary legislative purposes, or for the purpose of laying the foundation of resolutions for bringing in an impeachment of the President for unconstitutional interference, of course they are competent, but not for the purpose of receiving or rejecting the vote of a State for the Presidential office. They are not made such by any constitutional provision or by any law. Legislation may be based on the private knowledge of members, and a resolution to bring in an impeachment may rest on ex parte affidavits or on general information, and, therefore, the evidence taken by a committee cannot be deemed incompetent for such a purpose, but is often of great service in giving information to the houses as legislative bodies, and to the House of Representatives as the grand inquest of the nation. But the decision to receive or reject the vote of a State is a final decision on the right of the State in that behalf, and one of a most solemn and delicate nature, and cannot properly be based on the depositions of witnesses gathered in the drag net of a Congressional committee.

NAVAL INTELLIGENCE.

MOVEMENTS OF NATIONAL VESSELS—ORDERS.

WASHINGTON, April 10, 1877.

The Navy Department has received information to the effect that the United States steamer Huron arrived at St. Thomas on the 28th of March. She experienced head winds and a heavy sea during the greater part of the passage from Port Royal. After coaling she was to proceed to Port au Spain, Trinidad.

The Ossipee was at Havana on the 31st of March.

The Plymouth was at Baton Rouge yesterday, on her way up the Mississippi River. Her decks were thronged with visitors, who were coming from all parts of the interior.

ORDERS.

Assistant Surgeons George E. H. Harman and Frank B. Stephenson are ordered to examination preliminary to promotion. Boatswain Joseph McDonald is ordered to the Saratoga at Washington, D. C. Surgeon William K. Van Reypen is detached from the Naval Hospital at New York and granted four months' leave of absence from May 24, with permission to visit Europe.

THE JEWETT TRAGEDY.

Beyond the taking of the deposition of Mr. Joseph A. Dean by Coroner Ellinger there was nothing of note developed in regard to the Jewett tragedy yesterday. When the jurors convene to-day the deposition will be read to them. It would be improper, Mr. Ellinger said, for him to give the statement of Mr. Dean to the public until it should have been laid before the jury, and therefore he declined to say anything about it when questioned last evening. It was learned, however, that the story of Mr. Dean throws no additional light upon the mystery surrounding the death of the Jewetts. A number of gentlemen connected with the paint and oil trade met yesterday pursuant to a call in order to pass resolutions relative to the death of Mr. George W. Jewett; but, in view of the mystery surrounding his taking off, it was decided to defer the resolutions until the matter shall be cleared up.

A PRIZE FIGHT INTERRUPTED.

TWO ROUNDS FOUGHT, FOLLOWED BY A GENERAL STAMPEDE.

There was to have been a prize fight last night between Tom Dwyer and Cappy Lynch, a couple of uptown pugilists, at the new dumping grounds at the foot of West Fifty-ninth street. Captain Ward heard of the announcement, and, with twenty men dressed in citizens' clothes, arrived at the scene of the encounter and mingled with a crowd of about a hundred people, who were already in waiting. The principals appeared in full arena costume, and began pummelling each other in strict accordance with rules of the fistic art. Two rounds were fought when some of the onlookers recognized the Captain. Immediately the alarm was given and the crowd began to scatter. At this moment Officer Jefferson leaped into the ring and grasped both combatants, but was a moment later knocked senseless by a burly ruffian behind him. A scene of confusion ensued, in which shots were fired, but seemingly without effect. Lynch made good his escape, but his opponent was arrested, as were the following persons:—James Cassidy, Ed Graham, James McNeil, Michael Rogers, Dan Riley, John Fabbs, Joe Eagan, Thomas McSorley, Thomas Reddy, Hugh Heady and John Clarke.

OBITUARY.

DR. N. GERHARD HUTCHISON.

N. Gerhard Hutchison, M. D., died yesterday at No. 479 Clinton avenue, Brooklyn, of diphtheria. The deceased, who was a son of ex-Health Commissioner Joseph C. Hutchison, contracted the fatal disease while in attendance on a patient about a week ago. He was born in Missouri about twenty-four years ago, and graduated in the Long Island College Hospital and the New York College of Physicians and Surgeons. He began practice about two years ago, and his marked ability and kindly disposition early opened to him a path which was highly promising of success in the pursuit of his profession. Dr. Hutchison was Assistant Surgeon of the Twenty-third regiment, N.G.S.N.Y., and was attached to the medical staff of St. Peter's Hospital.

HON. WILLIAM JAMES COVENTRY.

Died, at Earl's Croome Court, near Worcester, England, in March, the Hon. William James Coventry, fourth and youngest son of George William, seventh Earl of Coventry. He was born 1st of January, 1797, and was, therefore, in his 81st year. He married, on the 26th of July, 1821, Mary, second daughter of the late James Laing, of Jamaica. Matters affecting the welfare of local agriculture engaged his sympathy and zealous co-operation. He was Vice President of the Worcestershire Agricultural Society in 1844. He conspicuously attended its meetings. This was especially the case thirty or forty years ago. He gave staunch support to fox hunting. As late as 1861 he became major of the Worcestershire regiment of yeomanry. He died deeply lamented by the community. Mr. Coventry was the oldest blood relative of Mr. Coventry Waddell of New York.

ANDREW HALLIDAY DUFF.

The cable announces the death of Andrew Halliday-Duff in London yesterday. He was the son of the late Rev. William Duff and was born in Scotland in 1830. He was educated in Aberdeen. On completing his studies he repaired to London and soon found occupation as a journalist, making his first attempt on the Morning Chronicle. He then became a contributor to the Cornhill Magazine and became a friend of W. M. Thackeray. In 1861 he was invited to join Charles Dickens' staff on All the Year Round, and was for many years one of the principal contributors to that periodical. Three volumes of his essays, contributed to Mr. Dickens' serial, have been republished—viz., "Every Day Papers" (1864), "Sunnyside Papers" and "Town and Country" (1866). Mr. Halliday-Duff at last drifted into dramatic literature, and, besides many farces and burlesques, produced plays and dramatic adaptations from the novels of Dickens, Scott, Hugo and Ainsworth.

RHODE ISLAND REPUBLICANS.

REORGANIZATION OF THE STATE CENTRAL COMMITTEE.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 10, 1877.

The Republican State Central Committee met for organization this morning. Postmaster C. R. Brayton, of this city, was re-elected chairman. The criticisms made upon his participation in politics, and the charge of disaffected republicans that his prominence in the recent gubernatorial campaign nearly defeated the party, it is alleged induced him to decline the position. A resolution, however, was adopted, thanking him for the arduous and efficient services rendered as chairman of said committee during the past year.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

THE LOCAL CONTEST IN TRENTON.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

TRENTON, N. J., April 10, 1877.

The city elections here yesterday resulted in the election of Daniel B. Bodine, dem., Mayor; William Lalor, dem., School Superintendent; Walter F. Bartlett, rep., Receiver of Taxes, and five democratic and three republican members of Council. The Council now stands twelve republicans to nine democrats. The contest throughout was more of a local than a political character, and, on the whole, the republicans won the most substantial part of the fight. Professor Ellis, the defeated republican candidate for Mayor, made a very creditable run, and, but for the opposition of the operative potters, most of whom belong to his party, he would have been elected.

AN EVEN THING IN PATERSON.

PATERSON, N. J., April 10, 1877.

At the election in this city yesterday Benjamin Buckley, rep., was elected Mayor by 570 majority. The democrats elected two Assessors. The Board of Aldermen remains a tie, as for two years past.

MURDERER ARRESTED.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

ST. LOUIS, April 10, 1877.

Eli Robinson, who recently murdered his brother, Colonel Jeff Robinson, at Union Star, Dekalb county, Mo., was captured yesterday at Harrisonville, Clinton county, by T. R. Livingston, constable at Plattsburg. He will be delivered to the authorities of Dekalb county. Constable Livingston, his captor, is seventy-four years old.

SAILED.

Steamers Idaho (Br), for Liverpool; Wyanoke, Richmond, &c; Agnes, Philadelphia.

MARITIME MISCELLANY.

STEAMER EMPIRE STATE arrived at Fall River from Bristol Saturday, where she will be fitted sufficient to allow her to proceed to Philadelphia, where she is to have new boilers and other repairs, preparatory to going on the route between New York and Long Branch, which route she is to run this coming season.

STEAMER RUSLAND (Ger), ashore at Long Branch, has parted forward and is gradually breaking up; all work suspended.

SHIP PETER MAXWELL (Br), from Baltimore for Europe with petroleum, while tying off Fort McHenry, ready to sail sprung a leak, and the surveyors have ordered her to reduce her draft to 22½ feet, in order, if possible, to find the leak. Her original draft was stated at about 24 feet. The agents of the vessel are confident that she will be placed in a seaworthy condition in a few days and start on her voyage.

SHIP W H MARCY, from New York, which arrived at San Francisco April 9, had been spoken off Falkland Island Feb 8, leaking 10 inches per hour.

SCHR GOV BURTON, from Philadelphia for Charleston, before reported abandoned March 20, was boarded March 21, Hatteras light 15 miles distant, and found to have 5 feet of water in her hold and railroad iron on deck. A log book and her papers were secured by schr M M Merriman.

SCHR WINNER, Leighton, from St Domingo with logwood for Chester, Pa, put into Inagua (not St Thomas) March 25, leaky.

SCHR RAMBLER (fisherman), on her way to Gloucester to bait, anchored off Cross Rip, and was run into by an unknown schooner night of 6th. Was struck forward of the foreriggings and was badly stove. Returned to Gloucester in a crippled condition. [The vessel in collision with the Rambler was the schr George D Loud, Murphy, of St George, Me, from Maryland for Kennebunk, arrived at New Bedford 9th. She reports that the Rambler was at anchor and had no light. The Loud had bowsprit, jibboom and cutwater carried away.

SCHR MARY STOWE (of Saybrook), from Hoboken for Pawtucket, was run into Saturday night while lying at anchor near Pumham Light, in Providence River, by schr Helen Mar (of Southport), from Providence for New York. The Mary Stowe had her starboard bow crushed in and foremast sprung. The Helen Mar had bowsprit and all head gear carried away, and returned to Providence for repairs.

SCHR LIZZIE having midship house badly stove and not being able to ride out the gale, slipped both anchors and was towed to Delaware City by steamtug Lennox.

SCHR CANARY, from Mobjack Bay, with lumber, for Boston, parted her chains at Lewes, Del, 9th inst, and went ashore on the bar and filled with water.

SCHR GODDESS was in Newcastle, Del, Harbor April 10, with loss of anchors and chains and maingaff broken.

SCHR SINALOA, from Machias, before reported towed into Newport April 9 with loss of bowsprit, &c, from collision, will discharge at Newport and repair.

SCHR TRADE WIND, from Alexandria, Va, coal laden, for Hoboken, parted her chains at Lewes, Del, April 9, went on the bar opposite Lewes and filled with water.

SCHR JOHN A GRIFFIN, Foster, coal laden, from Baltimore for Jersey City, parted chains, and went ashore 9th inst on the beach near Lewes, Del.

SCHR CHARLEY WOOLSEY, Brown, from New York for St Marc, was spoken March 31, lat 32 20, lon 73 30, leaking badly.

SCHR LADY ELLEN, from New York, is ashore on the rocks near Hope Island, Narragansett Bay. [A despatch dated 10th says the Lady Ellen has been pulled off, probably without damage.]

HALIFAX, NS, April 10—Navigation is open to Sydney. Steamer Northern Light, at Picton to-day, reports the Gulf clear of ice.

HYANNIS, Mass, April 9—The bark seen ashore on the SE part of Horseshoe Shoal Sunday has since proceeded.

LEWES, Del, April 10—Ship L Grand Gustav (Belg), from Antwerp, remains ashore on the bar inside the Delaware Breakwater, in good condition.

Bark Sirena (Ital), from Hull, remains aground on the bar inside the Delaware Breakwater, in good condition. The gale is moderating slightly.

MYSTIC, April 9—Brig Florence, at this port, reports passing 8th inst, Block Island bearing NNW 22 miles, a large (supposed automatic) buoy.

PORTLAND, April 9—Capt Gardner, who wrecked the Eastern Clipper on the Nova Scotia coast in a fair day last October, sold her at auction, pocketed the money and then disappeared, has been heard from once more. He left the Provinces for Gloucester, Mass, and shipped on a fisherman bound to Georges Banks. The vessel was wrecked and Mr Gardner lost his life.

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

BALTIMORE, April 10—A day mark has been established on Leading Point, in the Patapsco River. It consists of a mast surmounted by a black iron ball 3 feet in diameter, and is the range coming up Brewerton Channel that must be kept with the lighthouse on Hawkins' Point, one mile distant, the compass bearing of the points named being WSW and ESE.

They are capable of printing 7,000 copies each per hour of an eight page paper, and both sides at once, and can be speeded to 10,000 if necessary. The working room required for each press is 15 feet long, 10 feet wide and 7 feet high. The labor required to operate these two presses is four men (or boys) and a foreman.
Accompanying these presses, which are capable of printing 14,000 an hour, we will throw in one Wetting Machine and the following LIST OF STEREOTYPE MACHINERY BELONGING THERETO.
1 Furnace, with Metal Pot and Bonnet;
2 Casting Boxes, one of which is ribbed;
2 Finishing Boxes, made of iron;
2 Shaving Machines,
1 Tail Cutter,
1 Block for turning plates on and
6 Knives for shaving machine.
The lowest cash price for the entire machinery and presses is $10,000. These presses and machinery cost $35,000. They can be seen every morning at work on our daily edition.
The price of a single press, without the Stereotype Machinery, is $5,000.
The motive for selling these presses is that our immense circulation compels us to use the improved double Bullock press.
These presses are suitable for printing a paper the size of the Tribune or Times, or a paper of any smaller dimensions. Address JAMES GORDON BENNETT, New York Herald.
